PITTSBURG LABOR BANK CLOSED; THREE OFFICERS UNDER CHARGES

State Examiner Files Complaint Alleging Illegal Use of More Than $100,000 of Institution's Funds.

BOND SALESMAN AND WIFE MISSING

He Is Alleged to Have Had More Than $300,000, Including Part of Bank's Money.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 16.—Charges of conspiracy in connection with the alleged illegal use of more than $100,000 of the funds of the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Co. of Pittsburg, which was closed by the Pennsylvania Department of Banking today, were placed against three officers of the institution and two other men this afternoon.

The complaint was filed by a State bank examiner, R. P. Ferguson, and bail was fixed at $50,000 each. A hearing in the case will be held Oct. 20 before an Alderman.

One of the defendants, Charles A. Knapp, known as a bond salesman, is missing. He is alleged to have disappeared with more than $300,000, including some of the bank's money.

The funds, detectives alleged, represented a pool for the purchase of bonds said to be owned by a defunct banker. Knapp, after obtaining the money late yesterday, failed to reappear with the bonds. It was learned today that his wife also had disappeared from their apartment.

Three Officers Accused.

Others named in Ferguson's complaint were R. A. McCrady, president of the bank; W. J. Kelly, vice president; J. L. Nelson, treasurer and Frank T. Redman.

The latter, not a director of the institution, was said to have signed a note for $102,000, which sum went into the pool. Bennie Diamond, previously questioned in the case, was not arrested and was not named in Ferguson's charges.

The Brotherhood Savings and Trust Co. is the only labor bank in Pittsburg and numbers working people principally as its depositors. It was incorporated Aug. 27, 1923, with representatives of various labor unions as directors.

The bank has a capital stock of $158,400 and a surplus and undivided profits, according to the last annual statement of $15,763. The total deposits are $522,616, with total assets placed at $728,619.

The arrests were made, detectives said, when they were informed that securities valued at approximately $640,000, which Knapp was to deliver to the bank yesterday, failed to arrive. Redman was said to have indorsed a note for $102,000 to complete a fund of $320,000 needed by Diamond and himself to pay for the bonds which were to have been bought at a big discount.

Union Men on Directorate.

Following posting of the notice closing the bank, two policemen were stationed at the doors, but there was no excitement. Ferguson took charge of the bank's affairs. Three examiners began an audit of the books.

The bank's board of directors was made up of many labor representatives, including railroad conductors, railroad trainmen, carpenters, iron and tin workers and coal miners. One of the directors was D. D. Miller, a railroad man, of Terre Haute, Ind.

NEW MARKET NOT PROVING SUCCESS IN FINANCIAL WAY

Stall Rentals Bring Less Than City's Calculated Return Upon Its $1,000,000 Investment.

COMPTROLLER HAS CALLED CONFERENCE

When Opened There Was Waiting List of 100, But Now 21 Stands Are Vacant.

It appears that the city's new $1,000,000 Union Market is a financial failure.

It is a beautiful structure on the exterior, an adornment to the block bounded by Broadway and Sixth street, Lucas avenue and Morgan street, its interior is a model of sanitation and elegance, but it does not get the business. Comptroller Nolte will meet its occupants next Friday to discuss what can be done.

When it was opened last December merchants of vegetables, fruits, meats and table delicacies stormed the Comptroller's office for allotments of space. Every stall was taken and there was a waiting list of 100. Last month there were 21 vacant stands and no one could be found to rent them. Rentals paid the city last month were $7165, compared with $8997, the first full month of its operation. The city has calculated a 4½ per cent return upon its investment. It is receiving now less than 4 per cent.

Lack of Display Blamed.

Merchants within the Market believe that its design is at fault—that there is no opportunity to advertise their luscious wares to passers—no show windows, no stalls on the exterior, which pedestrians found hard to pass in the old market where the stands opened upon the sidewalks.

Comptroller Nolte believes the answer lies in the changed habits of housewives. The market basket now makes its trip back and forth between the home and the chain stores. Housewives no longer stock up for several days. They run from meal to meal with a grocery just around the corner. Apartment life has led to more frequent dining out. Nor is there the pride in home-cooking that there once was. The search for choice cuts and the freshest of garden produce has ceased.

Old stand owners—those who have been in Union Market for a decade—are holding their customers. New stand owners are finding it nearly impossible to acquire regular buyers.

Market a Model, But—

Market storekeepers declare that when plans were discussed for the market, they pointed out that there must be some way of displaying their produce to the passerby, but that they were overruled. The market was designed by L. R. Bowen, engineer in the office of the Board of Public Service. He visited several cities which had built modern markets. An expert who had made a success of public and private market design in Cleveland came to St. Louis to advise and the new market plan was drawn largely from his suggestions. It is flawless in all respects except that its patronage is a disappointment.

William A. Meletio, one of the stand proprietors, said that at Friday's meeting with the Comptroller it would be suggested that the city remodel the market to provide outside display.

Meanwhile, the city garage, which occupies the second and third floors of the building, is financially successful. It is filled with automobiles almost constantly and more space could be used. So far as returns to the city is concerned, Comptroller Nolte says that it would have been better had the whole building been designed for a garage.

STOCK MARKET LEADERS DROP 2 TO 6 POINTS

Bear Traders Continue to Hammer With Success—Steel Down 20 From Recent High.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—The stock market continued to give way today before another onslaught of selling which drove the prices of speculative leaders down 2 to 6 points to the lowest levels of the October reaction. Encouraged by yesterday's sharp decline, the most violent since the March break in prices, bear traders continued to hammer away with considerable success.

United States Steel sold nearly 20 points below its recent high; General Motors dropped to 144¾ compared with a high mark of 173½ two weeks ago and Dupont sagged to 317¾ as compared with its 1926 peak of 360.

DESIRE TO 'SHOW OFF' COST DAVIS HIS LIFE ON LINER

Lawyer Says Florida Real Estate Man's Display of Acrobatic Skill Caused Plunge Into Sea.

TWO WOMEN ONLY ONES TO SEE FALL

Reports of Suicide Described as "Pure Rot"; Will Filed at Tampa Gives Estate to Two Sons

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—D. P. Davis, wealthy New York and Tampa real estate operator, was drowned because he persisted in displaying his acrobatic talents upon a window ledge in his drawing room aboard the steamship Majestic Wednesday morning, and called for help too late when he fell into the sea, Leroy B. Delaney, his attorney, says.

The only two witnesses of Davis' fall, Delaney said, were Mrs. Alice Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Lucille Zehring, both believed to be from New York, who were in the drawing room with Davis. The two women, who are widows, went to Southampton after testifying at the captain's court of inquiry aboard the ship.

Son Heartbroken.

Davis' 10-year-old son, George Reilly Davis, who now is co-heir to at least $10,000,000, was brokenhearted when told of the tragedy, but had regained his composure upon arriving at Paris. Delaney is looking out for the youngster until he ascertains the boy's actual guardian. The Mrs. Davis who now is in Paris is George's stepmother. The real estate operator married her last year. George has a four-and-a-half-year-old brother, David P., who is with an aunt in Tampa.

Delaney described rumors that Davis had committed suicide as "pure rot," saying that he had left the real estate operator shortly before midnight Tuesday with the understanding that they were to resume the discussion of their business affairs at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Davis would not have brought his publicity man, his chief salesman and his young son along if he had contemplated suicide, the attorney said. Davis had lost nothing in the recent hurricane in Florida, Delaney added.

No Trouble With Wife.

The lawyer was equally emphatic in stating that there were no differences between his client and Mrs. Davis. The latter has been traveling in Italy, England and France for the last six months. She sent a radio to the ship reading: "Love, awaiting you Friday."

Delaney explained the presence of Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Zehring in his client's drawing room by telling of Davis' penchant for entertaining. He never retired before early morning and always had guests in his suite.

Delaney said that Davis had been a bit nauseated at noon Tuesday and had called in the ship's doctor who had advised repose. At 4 o'clock that afternoon, Davis had summoned his attorney to discuss whether they should try to acquire sites on the French and Italian Riviera for exploitation on a similar scale as in Florida, or whether they should first visit Marken Island, Holland, which has some similarity to Davis Island, off the coast of Florida.

When Davis fell out of the window, he was wearing a dinner jacket, which did not contain any of his important personal papers which now are in his lawyer's custody or have been impounded among his baggage at Southampton.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 16.—George Davis and David P. Davis Jr., young sons, are named as principal beneficiaries in the will of D. P. Davis, Tampa realty dealer, filed for probate here. The value of the estate was not given.

The will was drawn May 25, 1925, before the second marriage of Davis.

THREE DEAD IN MEXICAN RIOT

Trouble in Legislature Starts When Gallery Hoots Deputies.

The trouble started when spectators in the gallery hooted the deputies. The lawmakers and spectators thereupon engaged in a free-for-all fight, in which pistols were freely used. SOLDIER WITHOUT NAME "IDENTIFIED" BY THREE PERSONS

Many Gold Star Mothers Hope That "Jerry Tarbot" Is Their Son.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Three possible identifications had been put forward today for "Jerry Tarbot," the World War soldier who has lost his memory.

Charles Smith of Brooklyn, a cook, says "Tarbot" is Bruce Harpin, formerly owner of a lunch wagon in Brooklyn. Smith's wife recognized "Tarbot" as Harpin, but "Tarbot" does not recall ever having seen the Smiths and has no memory of the place where Smith says Harpin worked.

"Tarbot," according to Israel M. Greenberg of Baltimore, is George Beaupre, a French-Canadian he knew in the A. E. F.

S. M. Marcus of Glendale, Cal., former navy surgeon, believes Jerry is Pierre Dubois, a former student at Fordham University. Dr. Marcus said he studied Tarbot's case while treating him. The veteran spoke French fluently, he said. Tarbot says he cannot speak French.

A dozen gold star mothers have notified the Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion that they are coming to see "Tarbot" in the hope that he may be a missing son. Two mothers who went to the legion convention failed to identify him.

11 DROWNED WHEN SHIP SINKS IN STORM IN ST. LAWRENCE

Freight and Passenger Steamer Goes Down in Heavy Weather; Plied From Quebec.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Que., Oct. 16.—Eleven persons, including one woman, lost their lives when the freight and passenger steamer Guide sank in heavy weather last night near Godbout, on the northern shore of the St. Lawrence.

News of the disaster was received today by the North Shore Trading Co., owners of the vessel.

Five men on board the steamer were saved. Among the missing are Capt. J. M. Caron, First Mate Henri Fortin, and four passengers, Miss Anna Marcoux, address unknown; J. K. Laflamme, a former Mayor of Levis; Joseph Belanger of Natashquan, Quebec, and Joseph Collar of Romaine, Quebec.

The guide at 6 o'clock last night, two hours before the tragedy, passed Pointe Des Monts, about 15 miles below the place where she sank. She gave no signs of being in distress at that time, and it is believed that she capsized when her cargo was shifted by the heavy seas.

The Guide was a passenger and freight steel screw steamer, registering 156 tons, and built in 1891 at Dumbarton. She plied between Quebec and points on the northern coast of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

PRUSSIAN DIET PASSES BILL SETTLING WITH EX-KAISER

$3,600,000 to Be Paid and 167,000 Acres of Former Estate and Castle Given Him.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The compromise bill providing a settlement between the Government and the Hohenzollern family with regard to the property of the former ruler, has become law, thereby removing one of the disturbing factors of German politics.

The bill was adopted by the Prussian Diet yesterday, 258 votes to 37, with 65 abstentions, after three readings attended by rowdyism and comments unequaled in German parliamentary history. A strong police guard was necessary to protect the Diets' offices, and a reserve of 100 men was ready for any emergency.

The bill provides $3,600,000 is to be paid to the Hohenzollern family, which also will receive 167,000 acres of the former Kaiser's estates. A castle at Homburg is to be set aside for the former Kaiser and his wife, Princess Hermine.

100 PASSENGERS SHAKEN UP WHEN 'AMERICAN' IS WRECKED

DENISON, O., Oct. 16.—Four mail clerks were slightly injured and more than 100 passengers slightly bruised when the westbound Pennsylvania Flyer, "American," New York-St. Louis train, jumped the track at Fisher, near here, at 5:30 a. m. today.

The mail car and seven sleepers were derailed when the tank car on the second locomotive of the double-header struck a defective rail.

The mail car plunged down a 35-foot embankment, turning over several times. None of the sleepers went over the embankment. The two locomotives and the observation car, last car on the train, remained on the tracks.

Passengers on the sleeper were severely shaken up and in some instances thrown from their berths, but none of them was injured. They were transferred to another train, which took them west. Traffic was held up for several hours.

The four mail clerks who were slightly injured were: Allen McCue, St. Louis, Mo.; W. E. Harris, Pittsburg, Pa.; D. C. Carson, Greenup, Ill., and H. H. Craig, Newark, O.

COMMERCIAL AND SOCIAL RIVALRY ARISES OVER VISIT OF QUEEN MARIE TO AMERICA

Question of What Make of Automobile She Shall Use Causes Controversy—Jealousy Over Report of Woman Dancer's Influence.

QUEEN MARIE OF RUMANIA.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The social aspects of Marie's visit to New York still remain in some disarray. Great pressure has been made upon officials at the City Hall for the opporunity to go down the Bay on the Macom as members of the welcoming party. Grover Whalen, as chairman of the Mayor's commission for reception of distinguished visitors, however, had adroitly solved the problem of having on the Macom a bulky gathering of persons imbued with curiosity or social eagerness by announcing that there will be on the steamer only himself, Mrs. Astor, Major-General Summerall, representing the Secretary of War; Rear Admiral Plunkett for the Navy; J. Butler Wright for the State Department; Major-General Haskell for Gov. Smith; William Nelson Morris for Minister to Sweden; Alexander P. Moore, representing the Sesquicentennial Exposition; Charge d'Affaires Djuvara and several others.

Preparations for meeting Queen Marie down the bay at Quarantine next Monday, are going on apace. The official attire of the men on board the welcoming steamer Macom, to which the Queen will be transferred and brought to the Battery, has been announced by Whalen. What Mrs. Vincent Astor, New York City's special envoy to the Queen will wear has not been specified.

The men will wear frock coats, striped trousers, grey cravats, gray spats, black shoes and silk hats. Each will carry a dark lacquer cane.

Question of Proper Auto.

Another little conflict in the arrangements for Marie is said to have grown out of what kind of automobile she will use while in New York. Rader Djuvara, the Rumanian charge d'affairs, is said to have designated one make of car, while the Hotel Ambassador people declare that the official car will be of another make.

Detectives have been engaged to shadow Lois Fuller, dancer, in an effort to ascertain what part she purposes to play in the activities of Queen Marie of Rumania when she arrives here next Monday, says the New York World.

There have been reports that the dancer, who back in the 90s created a sensation on the stage with her "butterfly dance," was endeavoring to influence the Queen, whom she visited at the royal palace in Sinaia, in her social activities. Report also had it that Djuvara, who is in charge of the arrangements of the Queen, had resigned because of unwillingness "to work under a dancer." This report has been denied.

Dancer Denies Interference.

Miss Fuller is said to be ill with bronchitis at the Plaza Hotel here. Through a companion she issued a statement saying she was absolutely innocent of any trouble in the Rumanian Legation over the visit of Queen Marie. The statement denied that she had been in radio communication with the Queen or that she had received any radio from Marie.

The idea that Miss Fuller had been authorized to take charge of arrangements for Marie's visit was characterized as preposterous. Some enemy of Djuvara was at the bottom of the whole thing, in the opinion of the dancer, according to her spokesman. Miss Fuller was represented as thinking that the Queen would not eliminate California from her tour, as one report said she intended to do.

A wireless dispatch from the Leviathan says Queen Marie has been presented with a watch smaller than a dime, studded with 20 diamonds set in platinum. It was made by Arde Bulova, a Rumanian living in New York. It took six months to make it. The message said the Queen had accepted the watch and was wearing it. It was a gift of the New York News Photographers Association.

Queen Has Morning Swim Aboard Liner Despite Her Cold.

By the Associated Press.

S. S. LEVIATHAN, Oct. 16.—Although suffering from a slight cold for the last two days, Queen Marie felt good enough this morning to take another dip in the Leviathan's pool after having a cup of tea. Marie and her daughter, Princess Ileana, remained in the water about 10 minutes, and emerged much refreshed.

The Rumanian sovereign and her suite are much concerned over the clashes about contracts for her literary output in America under conditions which are variously interpreted.

On board the Leviathan is a

MOONSHINERS KILL WOMAN IN MOUNTAINS

Her Body, in Charred Blankets, Found in Colorado Canyon—Had Informed on Men.

By the Associated Press.

TRINIDAD, Col., Oct. 16.—Enmity aroused when Miss Rosa M. Perdue, form Wisconsin welfare worker, informed officers of the location of mountain whisky stills, resulted in her being shot to death by moonshiners two weeks ago at her Sarcillo Canyon home, police said following the finding of her body yesterday.

The body, clad only in overalls and a coarse shirt and wrapped in charred blankets, was found by Ray Wolcott, a rancher, when riding through the canyon. Apparently an attempt had been made to burn the body as bits of burned blanket and an overall buckle were found in the ashes of a camp fire in another part of the canyon. The condition of the body would not permit location of bullet wounds.

Miss Perdue had been the object of a search started by ranchers Oct. 4, when two children visited her cabin at the chicken ranch she opperated and found it in disorder, with no trace of the owner. A shattered oil lamp lay on the porch, while Miss Perdue's collie dog lay dead in the yard. Bullet holes in the cabin walls and blood stains leading from a door indicated she had been called to the porch in the night and shot to death.

Three miles down the canyon from the fire in which the slayers attempted to burn the body, officers found complete distilling equipment. The theory that robbery was the motive for the woman's murder was discounted when it was discovered she kept only small sums of money in the cabin.

Miss Perdue was about 43 years old.

He was fined $5000.

INJUNCTION IN CLERKS' STRIKE

New York Court Grants Plea of Butter and Egg Dealers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A strike without violence may be enjoined from picketing, the appellate division ruled yesterday.

The ruling reversed a decision by Supreme Court Justice Valente, who had refused to grant a small butter and egg corporation an injunction to prevent members of the Retail Clerks' Union of Greater New York from picketing its stores. Alexander Rose, attorney for the corporation, said it was the first case to his knowledge in which a decision like this was given, when the plaintiff's argument discarded the issue as to whether there was any violence done in the picketing.

D. C. STEPHENSON BOUGHT OFF FROM MAKING EXPOSE, SAYS LAWYER

Promise of Aid to Ex-"Dragon" in Getting New Trial Said to Have Been Price.

PAPERS THOUGHT TO BE HIDDEN IN CHICAGO

Another Attorney Declares He Knows Nothing of Deal and Is Not Interested in Graft Inquiry.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—D. C. Stephenson, former "grand dragon" of both the Republican party and the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, who caused a political panic in the state two weeks ago by threatening to expose widespread corruption among Republican office holders, has been "bought off" by persons acting in the interest of the frightened officials, it was declared last night by Thomas V. Miller, one of Stephenson's attorneys.

The consideration paid for Stephenson's silence, Miller told newspaper men, consisted in assurances of substantial legal and financial assistance in his efforts to obtain a new trial.

Stephenson is serving a life term in the State prison for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer, and an appeal is soon to be filed with the Supreme Court.

Why He Refused to Talk.

It was in accordance with the bargain, Miller declared, that Stephenson refused to talk when he was brought from prison to Indianapolis, Wednesday.

In letters sent out from the prison earlier, Stephenson had stated that he was ready, if given an opportunity, to produce documentary and other evidence of corruption. On Wednesday he was taken before the Marion County grand jury investigating the corruption charges. He also appeared in court in a civil case. When placed on the witness stand in the civil proceeding, he stood on his rights and refused to answer questions. Proceedings in a grand jury are secret, but there seems every reason to believe that he pursued a similar course there.

Miller Opposed Deal.

Miller said last night that he had opposed the bargain, and had advised his client, Stephenson, that he probably would be "double-crossed" in the end, as the chief concern of those with whom he was dealing was to insure Stephenson's silence until after the election on Nov. 2. That election is of unusual importance, because United States Senators James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson, both Republicans, and a large number of Republican Congressmen, are up for re-election.

Stephenson's original charges were made public through a committee of the Republican Editorial Association which had been investigating reports of corruption of the State Government. Upon giving them out two weeks ago, Thomas Adams, the chairman, called a joint meeting of the committee and six State Senators. The Senators and the editors examined the charges together, and then appealed to Gov. Jackson to permit them to question Stephenson at the prison, to ascertain the nature and extent of the proof.

Warden Defied Court.

Gov. Jackson not only refused them admittance, but he refused admittance to all others desiring to see Stephenson. When an Indianapolis Judge issued an order on Warden Daly, the Governor's appointee, to produce Stephenson in court in a civil case where he might be questioned, the warden defied the order. The celebrated prisoner simply could not be seen.

Then, on last Saturday, the news leaked out of the prison that John J. Maroney, an agent of the Department of Justice who has frequently acted as a personal attendant to Senator Watson, had not only been allowed to see Stephenson, but had spent more than an hour alone with him.

Two More Visitors.

Early this week, Stephenson received two more visitors. One was John H. Kiplinger, a lawyer who had represented Stephenson during the murder trial, but who was supposed to have withdrawn from the case subsequently. The other was L. G. Julian of Evansville, once a partner with Stephenson in the coal business, and generally regarded as Stephenson's

CALLES PROPOSES STATUTE LIMITING CLERGY IN NUMBER

Regulation Would Reduce Roman Catholic Priests in Federal District From 350 to 90.

RESTRICTIONS ALSO FOR TWO TERRITORIES

Under Law, Protestant Denominations Could Increase Their Clergy in Federal District.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 16.—President Calles has submitted to Congress proposed regulations limiting the number of Catholic priests and ministers of every denomination permitted to function within the Federal District to 90 for each denomination.

It is estimated that there are now 350 Catholic priests in the Federal District and 40 ministers of all other religious congregations.

Eighteen clergymen of each denomination would be permitted to function for the territory of Lower California and three for the territory of Quintana Roo (Yucatan).

The number of Catholic priests in the Federal Distirct has been decreased recently. Foreign priests have departed because of enforcement of the religious clauses of the Constitution, which provide that no foreign clergy may function in Mexico.

Under the proposed regulations the various denominations other than Catholics could increase their ministerial representation in the Federal District to 90, while the Catholics would be forced to reduce theirs to 90.

The new regulations would apply only in the Federal District and Mexico's two territories, because each state already has the power to fix the number of priests and ministers.

The new regulations, if passed by Congress, would not affect the religious regulations promulgated by President Calles in July, which caused the Catholic episcopate to suspend services in all Catholic churches in the republic.

The new regulations provide for dismissal from office and also possible fine or imprisonment for all Government officials failing to enforce the limitation of priests and ministers. The priests and ministers would be required to register with the municipal authorities. Failure to do so would be punishable by a fine of 500 pesos ($250) and 36 hours in jail, of 15 days in jail if the fine were not paid.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Jean Nash of New York, known as "the best-dressed woman in the world," was married in the city hall of the Sixteenth Ward of Paris yesterday to Paul Dubonnet, son of the millionaire cordial manufacturer. Dubonnet, her fifth husband, recently was divorced from the daughter of the perfume manufacturer, Francois Coty.

After a honeymoon in the Riviera, the Dubonnets will go to New York and later in the winter will go big game hunting in Africa. Mrs. Dubonnet before her first marriage was Jean Donaldson of New York.

The loss was said to be mostly $10 and $20 bills, while two of the robbers herded the customers and bank employes into the rear room, another carrying a large brief case threw the case to the floor in the cages and scooped the money into it from the drawers.

P. C. Teegarden, employe of the Marmon Co., said the robbers took money from several persons who had just cashed checks.

WILLIAMS CITES WILSON ON PROHIBITION ISSUE

Says Late President, When Governor, Refused to Consider Question Political.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., Oct. 16. United States Senator Williams, in a speech here last night, said that his Democratic opponent, Harry B. Hawes, had changed his position on the World Court to keep Senator Reed "off his back."

The wet and dry issue, the speaker declared, was not political. He told his audience that when Woodrow Wilson was Governor of New Jersey he refused to make the problem an issue.

"Don't misunderstand me. It is a great question, but not a political question," the Senator said.

D. C. STEPHENSON BOUGHT OFF FROM MAKING EXPOSE

most trusted friend. A widespread belief has existed that Julian has the custody of many of Stephenson's confidential papers.

Up to last night, Julian had not returned to his home in Evansville, and was reported to be in Chicago, where some of the much sought papers are reported to lie in a safety deposit box. Kiplinger returned to Indianapolis, and later went to his home in Rushville.

It was after the visit of Kiplinger and Julian that Stephenson was brought to Indianapolis.

Miller, who lives in Muncie, was retained a few weeks ago by Court Asher, Stephenson's former lieutenant, to prosecute the appeal. Kiplinger's reappearance in the case surprised Miller, who thought he had withdrawn. Miller did not conceal the fact that all was not harmonious between himself and Kiplinger.

"However, I will say for him that he seems to be going ahead with the appeal," he said. "I had been wondering where the money would come from, but Kiplinger told me he has it. I don't know where it came from."

Kiplinger's Statement.

Kiplinger was reached at Rushville over long-distance telephone early this morning, and Miller's statement was repeated to him.

"I know nothing of any such deal," he said. "The question of whether Stephenson has any evidence of official corruption has never been discussed between us. His contemplated appearance in court and before the grand jury was not mentioned when I saw him. In fact, I am not interested in this probe stuff. I am interested only in appealing his case. "There isn't any mystery about where the money is coming from. It won't take more than $75 to prepare this case."

"But will not a much larger sum be required for legal fees?" he was asked.

"Well, that probably would be taken care of beforehand," he replied.

"For what purpose did Julian accompany you to the prison?"

"I don't think we'll go into that," Kiplinger said. "I've never found it necessary to try my cases in the newspapers."

"Do you know whether Julian has possession of any documents formerly owned by Stephenson, which might be used as evidence against public officials with whom he had dealings?"

"I'm not interested in any of Stephenson's papers except those that are connected with this case."

Kiplinger Doubts Deal.

Kiplinger added that while Miller was associated with him in the preparation of the appeal, Miller had never mentioned the matter of a "deal" such as Miller had described to newspaper men, and that he was very doubtful that any such bargain had been struck.

There is every likelihood that Miller will be summoned before the grand jury when his statement reaches the eye of Prosecutor William Remy who is in charge of the inquiry.

Those who are pressing the inquiry into the corruption charges believe that Stephenson's papers are deposited in several places, with a separate custodian of each deposit. It has been established by the statements of a photographer that soon after Stephenson was locked up on the murder charge he caused photographic copies to be made of a large number of documents and canceled checks.

It may be significant that the three persons who are believed to know most about the papers have been sought unsuccessfully since the grand jury started its investigation. These three are Foster Strader, former secretary of Stephenson; Miss Mildred Meade, to whom Stephenson had been attentive before his arrest, and Julian.

Strader's whereabouts have been unknown here for months, and Miss Meade disappeared from her home Sunday and has not been found.

The grand jury adjourned last night until Monday, after hearing testimony by State Senator Frank Daily. Before being called Senator Daily told the correspondent that he could give evidence of corruption in the State Legislature in 1925.

This was immediately after Jackson had been elected Governor with Stephenson's support, and Stephenson was credited with controlling 67 of the 100 members of the House and 19 of the 50 members of the Senate.

Daily told the correspondent that he knew of money being contributed for political purposes in consideration of certain legislation, and that corrupt proposals had been made to him on more than one occasion.

Because of his refusal to acquiesce, he said, he had been "slaughtered" by the Republican county organization in the subsequent primary election and consequently failed to renomination.

Senator R. Robinson in a statement branded as "an infamous lie" the charge made yesterday that the Senator had contributed to an alleged defense fund for Stephenson in his trial for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer. Robinson's statement said:

"The statement made by Thomas H. Adams of Vincennes, Ind., naming me as a contributor to an alleged defense fund for D. C. Stephenson is an infamous lie and he knows it is a lie. I never saw Stephenson after he was arrested, nor did I have any communication with him, directly or indirectly, nor was I ever solicited to make any such contribution directly or indirectly.

"So far as my appointment to the Senate was concerned that was the act of the Governor of Indiana and so far as I know he was guided by his own judgment in making the appointment."

Watson Denies He Opposes Investigation; Willing to Help.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—United States Senator Watson today denied reports that he opposed investigation of Indiana political corruption charges by Senator Reed's Campaign Investigating Committee.

Referring specifically to a statement in the Chicago Tribune of today, which represented Senator Watson as saying he would question the right of the Reed committee to investigate the Indiana situation on the ground that its powers extend only over 1926 primary election matters, the Indiana Senator said that he had "made no such statement to anyone nor did I even direct any person to make any such statement."

The Tribune said the statement was made through John Hayes, Senator Watson's secretary. The Senator is in a hospital here recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident last Sunday.

The Senator's statement given out today by the Republican State Committee follows:

"I read with surprise the Chicago Tribune statement today that I would oppose the Reed committee coming into Indiana to conduct an investigation. I made no such statement to any one at any time nor did I even direct any person to make any such statement for me.

"Insofar as I am concerned, the Reed committee will be welcomed to Indiana any time its members see fit to come and I shall be glad to aid insofar as my physical condition will permit, in any investigation it shall see fit to undertake."

Hayes also sent a message to the Chicago newspaper denying he had given out the statement.

NEW CHIEF OF LEGION SERVED IN ENGINEERS

Howard P. Savage of Chicago Is Elected Commander on Twenty-First Ballot.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Wending their way homeward today after the eighth annual convention of the American Legion, veterans and their wives and daughters appeared as of one mind that next year's convention in Paris must be as successful as the one just ended.

"See you in Paris next year," was the parting greeting of the legionnaires. Enthusiasm was unlimited as the former soldiers visioned a second trip to France—and Paris. To a number who will make the trip, however, it will be their first visit to the French capital, for not every member of the A. E. F., as many can well testify, was able to participate in the "Battle of Paris."

The 1926 convention will be remembered for the stiffest fight on election of a national commander in the history of the organization.

The Legionnaires balloted 20 times, unable to give any one candidate the necessary number of votes, and it was not until in the midst of the twenty-first ballot that Howard P. Savage of Chicago, who had been leading throughout most of the balloting, was elected. A few minutes later he was declared the new National Commander by acclamation. The previous record for the number of ballots taken was made at the San Francisco convention when the roll was called 11 times.

J. Monroe Johnson of Marion, S. C., was Savage's principal opponent, and his withdrawal on the twenty-first ballot gave the latter the election. Thomas A. Lee of Kansas and Jay Williams of South Dakota were the two other candidates nominated for the highest office in the Legion.

The Rev. Joseph J. N. Wolfe, a Catholic priest of Philadelphia, was elected national chaplain.

The new national commander is 42 years old and served during the war as a First Lieutenant of Engineers constructing and repairing railroads. He is superintendent of maintenance of way of the Chicago Elevated. He was once a pitcher in professional baseball.

Mrs. Adalin Wright Macauley of Menominee, Wis., was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary.

HAWES SAYS DEMOCRATIC HARMONY DISTURBS G. O. P.

Declares in Kansas City Speech That New England Has Regained Control of Government.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16.—Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, addressed two large crowds at the Eighth Ward Democratic Club and the Gladstone Theater last night.

Hawes attacked centralization of Government, the tariff, and the Coolidge administration, throwing some jibes at the record of Senator Williams, his Republican opponent.

"We have harmony in Missouri and it is worrying the Republicans," Hawes said. "The so-called 'wets' and 'drys,' the Reed folks and the anti-Reed folks have buried their hatchets and are out working for party success."

Hawes assailed what he termed the Republican machine, which he said was being directed from Jefferson City.

The power of New England in the Federal Government was lamented by Hawes, who said New England did not regain its sectional control until after the Wilson administration had gone out of power.

"The farmer is in distress. This is best illustrated by the failure of 200 banks. Part of this, of course, was due to the incompetent examiners appointed by Hyde and Baker, but part of it was due to unfavorable agricultural conditions.

"And what about Gov. Baker's Senator on the farm question? He asked Senator Reed to make a speech against the farm relief bill and when the roll was called, and it was certain to be defeated, he voted for it. He strangles and gets mad when we accuse him of that."

BELIEVE COW KILLED BABY

Orwell, O., Officers Say Girl Wandered Into Wood.

ORWELL, O., Oct. 16.—Belief that Isabel Zandarski, 2 years old, whose body was found in a swamp near here Tuesday after she had been missing from her home for three weeks, had wandered into the wood and was killed accidentally by a cow, was expressed by investigators last night. No further investigation is expected unless new evidence is disclosed.

The statement, signed by Sheriff Hannum and two Cleveland detectives, was issued after the baby had been buried and a recheck of all available evidence had been made.

SPOTS DECIDE COURT ON DOG'S OWNERSHIP

G. H. Hanlon Gets Animal J. W. Wallace Claimed and 34 Witnesses Tried to Identify

A dog, like a leopard, cannot change its spots, and thereby hung the decision of Justice of the Peace Werremeyer at Clayton today, when he awarded a handsome setter to G. H. Hanlon, 7187 Washington avenue, University City, after 34 witnesses had divided evenly on the question of the dog's ownership.

Justice Werremeyer officially identified the dog, which had been claimed by Hanlon and by J. W. Wallace of 643 Hanley road, Clayton as "Abraham Lincoln," dubbed Link for short, a half-breed setter belonging to Hanlon.

It followed from the Justice's decision that the dog therefore is not—or apparently is not—Wallace's dog, which was a thoroughbred setter and bore the name of Sir Bob Redney, nicknamed Bob.

May Go to Higher Court.

However, both sides announced in advance they would appeal and a higher court may have to determine the ownership of the dog, which has been called Link for the time being. Court costs in the case already are more than $100, and attorneys fees promise to make the dispute a costly proposition and the dog a costly dog for the party which ultimately wins it.

Six photographs, which Hanlon produced to prove the dog was his, showed a dog with an evenly defined "blaze" or white band in the center of the forehead. The dog under dispute had such a blaze. Also, Hanlon's photographs showed a black patch on the right side. The dog in court had a similar black patch.

Wallace also produced photographic proof, but he had only one print and a negative. The print showed a "blaze" on the dog's forehead, but it was not evenly defined and ran either to the right or the left as the negative was reversed. On this evidence, Justice Werremeyer said, he awarded the dog to Hanlon.

Woman Also Claims It.

A humorous twist in the case appeared today on the eve of the Justice's decision, when Mrs. Bert Skepala, 4619 Rosa avenue, appeared and said the dog belonged to her. She examined the animal and asserted that except for a few black spots on its legs, it was exactly like the setter dog she had found in the county last March and lost in the county last June. She may be an intervening petitioner for the dog.

The dispute between the Hanlon and Wallace families over ownership of the dog originated as told Thursday in the following manner:

The Wallaces had a setter named Bob. The Hanlons had a setter named Link. Bob was a thoroughbred and Link a "dropper" or half breed. Link was five years old and Bob three. But they looked so much alike that 18 witnesses swore the dog in court was Link and 16 witnesses swore it was Bob.

Keeps Dog; Returns Collar.

On Jan. 14 last Bob disappeared. Wallace did not see a dog which looked like Bob again until the night of Sept. 23, when he picked up a dog in court on the Hill road near Delmar boulevard. This dog wore a collar and license issued to Hanlon. Wallace took the dog home and sent the collar back to Hanlon. The latter missed his dog, Link, the same evening that Wallace found the dog wearing Link's collar. Hanlon claimed Wallace had not found his own dog, but had picked up Link by mistake. So he sued Wallace for the dog.

The only individual entirely happy about the case thus far is the dog, which has been identified as Link by Justice Werremeyer. Link loves everybody. He answered to the name of Bob and the name of Link. He did tricks for both Wallace and Hanlon. He even responded genially when Mrs. Skepela thought he was her dog.

Today, when Justice Werremeyer awarded Link to the Hanlons, Mrs. Hanlon appeared in court and claimed the dog. She thanked the Judge and walked happily out, followed by Link, who wagged his tail. Mrs. Wallace did not appear. Neither husband appeared. So there the matter rests, unless the Wallaces decide to appeal.

Millionaire's Son Seeks Divorce.

By the Associated Press.

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, Oct. 16.—Suit for annulment of his marriage at Elkton, Md., in 1923, on the ground that it was performed without the consent of his parents, necessary because he was a minor, has been filed in District Court here by H. Harrison Silleck III, said to be the son of a millionaire lumberman of New York City.

E. A. KOERNER, FAMOUS RESTAURATEUR, DEAD

Defied Government, Was Convicted, But Judges "Forgot" to Send Him to Jail.

Ernst A. Koerner, whose restaurant at 408 Washington avenue was nationally famous and was for 40 years a rendezvous of epicures, and who, when Constitutional Prohibition became effective, repeatedly defied it, died last night at his home, 3559 Halliday avenue, as the result of a complication of diseases from which he had suffered for several years. He was 73 years old.

Four of his years were lived on "borrowed time"—thanks to an unofficial act of mercy by representatives of the Government whose Constitution he had defied.

When in March, 1921, after three arrests by Federal officers on charges of violating the prohibitory laws, Koerner was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $1000 by Federal Judge Faris, he appealed. Meanwhile, he failed to appear in court on other charges because, physicians said, of the dangerous state of his health. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Judge Faris, but it granted a stay of the order directing Koerner to give himself up to serve the sentence.

Mandate Was Forgotten.

Attorneys for the restaurant man presented physicians' certificates showing the condition of his health to be precarious. Dr. Albert Taussig, sent by Judge Faris to examine the defendant, declared it would be "inhuman" to commit him to jail. As the result the Federal Judges agreed among themselves to "forget" to issue the mandate directing Koerner to serve his sentence, for they were convinced that he would never live to complete the term.

He had diabetes, dropsy and heart disease, the reports of all physicians showed, and though the Federal law did not grant to United States Judges the power of parole, their humanity dictated forgetfulness. The mandate was never served. "Forgotten," it lay in the pigeonholes of the Circuit Court of Appeals until his death.

After his futile clashes with the prohibition law, Koerner retired from the restaurant, turning it over to his son, Arthur E. Koerner and devoted himself to the care of his health. He spent a few weeks in a Wisconsin health resort, was given dietary treatment, and within less than a year of the time the mandate was "forgotten" he was feeling in best of trim.

Made New Man of Him.

"By golly, that trouble with the Government nearly finished me," he once said. "I had had diabetes for many years and paid no attention to it. Now it is gone and s are the dropsy and heart I walk in the park ev stay on the diet they Waukesha."

A man who for many y weighed about 350 pounds, he th at the age of 73, tipped the scale at 183.

Ernst Koerner's was an honored name among the bon vivants of St. Louis. Coming to St. Louis when a youth from Germany, where he was born and where he had received his 'prentice training in the restaurant business, he established a restaurant and saloon business in 1877, with his brother, the late Charles Koerner. It was located, at first, between Sixth and Seventh streets on Washington avenue, and then moved to the north side of the street between Broadway and Fourth street. Shortly after the business was removed to 403 Washington avenue, where it remained until the veteran caterer retired from its management.

It was Koerner's boast that he had been the first to bring certain brands of Rhine wine, beer and cheese to St. Louis. He was himself a lover of good food, and in the days of his greatest prosperity there were prodigious feasts served at the big round table reserved in the restaurant for "Papa" Koerner and his friends. There he was king at his own banquet board.

Music Was His Hobby.

Outside business hours music was his hobby, and he was extremely proud that to him and his brother, Charles, St. Louis owed its first summer seasons of light opera. In the early 80's they established the tradition out of which Municipal Opera has grown. In Koerner's Garden, which the brothers operated jointly on Eighteenth street near Lafayette avenue. Later Charles Koerner opened a second Koerner's Garden with light opera attractions, at Kingshighway and Arsenal street.

After his brother's death in 1899 Koerner incorporated his business as the Merchants' Catering Co., under which title it remained until prohibition troubles finally resulted in his retirement and the ultimate padlocking of the place. Those troubles began early in 1920, and before Koerner's jail sentence was "forgotten" he had been arrested four times by the Government and once by the city police on charges of violating prohibitory laws. He had paid into the Federal treasury $2000 in fines and $100 into the city's purse by way of a penalty.

Koerner is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna Koerner, and two sons, Arthur E. and Victor H.—the latter named for Victor Herbert, the composer, who had delighted in Koerner's food and delighted him with music in return.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. from an undertaker's chapel at 2632 Cherokee street, to the Missouri Crematory.

COMMERCIAL AND SOCIAL RIVALRY OVER QUEEN MARIE

Prince Nicholas and Mr. Buchman spent some time together in England and during the voyage of the Leviathan they have dined together.

Princess Ileana has the Niagara Falls and the Grand Canyon in her mind as places which will prove of greatest interest to her, but she also wants to see "lots of Indians, living in their native state." Like Prince Nicholas, she is fond of motor cars and is eager to visit Detroit and watch the manufacture of cars there. Ileana said that at home she drove her own car and sometimes tinkered with the mechanism.

Mrs. Wilson Hostess.

Queen Marie at Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's birthday tea yesterday displayed another beautiful creation in the gown she wore. It was of sapphire velvet with a flaring skirt, which showed the waistline clearly. The neck and hem were trimmed with white fur. Marie wore her usual pearls and a sapphire pendant. A simple mulberry colored silk frock, with scarcely any trimming, was worn by Princess Ileana. Mrs. Wilson wore a black costume.

There was a birthday cake—a large oblong caramel-coated loaf decorated with pink roses—and Mrs. Wilson's suite was filled with flowers sent by the steamer's officers and many passengers.

Queen's Business Manager Reveals Exclusive Contract for Interviews.

TORONTO, Oct. 16.—The Toronto Globe has received a dispatch from its correspondent traveling with Queen Marie on the Leviathan in which he says that the trip is being commercially exploited, and that this became known when "the Queen's business manager, Mme. Simone Lahovary, admitted to American press representatives aboard the Leviathan that they might be allowed to see Marie today (Friday), but could not be permitted to print interviews because the Queen is under contract to do all her talking for money."

The Globe correspondent says in his dispatch that the agent for the syndicate holding Queen Marie's contract is aboard the Leviathan, and that the agent, after consultation with the Queen's suite "flatly forbade" publication of the interviews "under threat of cancelling the agreement."

HARRY TURNER AND ALICE MARTIN HELD

Editor and Publisher, Charged With Mailing Obscene Matter, Gives Bond.

Harry Turner, editor of "Much Ado," an occasional publication, and Miss Alice Martin, former dancing teacher, who is the publisher and business manager, were last night in the city jail in lieu of a $5000 bond upon a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails. They were released today at 11 a. m. when bond was given.

The charge was based upon an article in the current issue of "Much Ado." It is a reprint of an article printed in a San Diego weekly referring to the Aimee Semple McPherson case in Los Angeles. The San Diego newspaper was supressed and its publisher charged with sending obscene matter through the mails.

Postmaster Alt on Thursday barred the issue of "Much Ado" from the mails and called the attention of postoffice inspectors to it. They intercepted a copy as presented it to United States Attorney Breuer, who drew an information. This was followed by the issuance yesterday of a warrant by United States Commissioner Atkins.

Short on Taxi Fare.

Turner and Miss Martin were arrested at the office of the magazine, 4111 Washington boulevard. Deputy Marshal Puls proposed to take them to the Federal building on a street car. Turner insisted upon the privilege of summoning a taxicab and was permitted to do so. The taxi charge was $1.10. Turner had only $1 and the deputy marshal paid the 10 cents.

In the office of the Marshal Turner laughed continuously and loudly and punned and joked with his predicament. Miss Martin, whom he addressed as "General," was a little rueful. However, she abided by Turner's decision to make no effort to obtain bail. Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 25 and Turner declared his intention to remain in jail for the intervening 10 days.

However, shortly after his arrival, with Miss Martin, in a patrol wagon, at the city jail, his attorney Sarpy Noonan, began to make inquiries about bond.

Third Brush With Law.

The maximum penalty for each fraction of the obscene-matter law is five years in the penitentiary or a fine of $5000 or both. No minimum is specified.

This is Turner's third brush with the Federal law. He was arrested in 1918 on a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails, but was discharged on a demurrer. His second conflict was under a charge of counterfeiting obligations of the French Government. Demurrers to this charge also were sustained by the Court holding that the counterfeited interim certificates were obligations of Morgan & Co., bankers, not of the French Government. He later was tried in a state court on a charge of forgery, growing out of the counterfeiting, and acquitted.

AUTO THIEVES WHO SHOT POLICEMAN CAUGHT, WOUNDED

Captured in East St. Louis Rooming House and Say They Are J. E. Fox and R. E. Williams.

CHAUFFEUR TELLS THEIR HIDING PLACE

One of Pair Admits They Atacked Oficers During Holdup, but Say Latter Fired First.

Two automobile thieves who exchanged shots with three policemen, wounding one, in University City last night, and then escaped, were themselves wounded.

They were captured at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in a rooming house at 223 North First street, East St. Louis. They said they were J. E. Fox, 28 years old, and R. E. Williams, 22, both of Oklahoma City.

Fox was wounded three times, twice between the shoulder blades and once in the lower back. Williams was wounded in the right forearm, a bullet having broken a bone. Another bullet had grazed his neck.

The two went to the East St. Louis place this morning after checking out of a Washington boulevard Hotel. Williams left a blood-stained suit in the hotel room, and this led to their capture. Police learned of the suit and learned also the name of a chauffeur who transported the two to East St. Louis. The chauffeur guided police to the rooming house.

Admits Firing at Policemen.

Fox, weak from loss of blood, admitted to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he and Williams had fired at the policemen. He insisted the policemen fired first, at a time when his back was turned. Police, however, say he must have been wounded as he and Williams fled on foot, after wounding Patrolman John Kaiser of the University City force.

The exchange of shots was the result of a young man in gray suit and cap holding up G. G. Gage, 6615 Kingsbury boulevard, in front of his home and escaping with $5 at 9:30 o'clock. Patrolmen Kaiser, Gafney and Price, all in civilian clothes, set out from headquarters in a department automobile and halted a Studebaker car at Melville avenue and University drive, because one of the two young men in it was dressed like the man who robbed Gage.

Shot From Back Seat.

As the policemen surrounded the car with drawn revolvers, announcing they were officers, the driver raised his hands and said: "Don't shoot—I've got 'em up."

But the gray-clad youth in the rear drew a revolver and fired at Kaiser, a bullet striking him in the lower left arm, breaking a bone. Gaffney and Price then fired at this youth, and he returned the fire.

A score of shots were exchanged. Suddenly both youths jumped from the car and ran. His own revolver empty, Gaffney grabbed Kaiser's weapon and fired at the fugitives. They got away, running south on Melville to an alley, west a block to Adelaide avenue, and about two blocks south to the Washington University campus.

Take Auto From Students.

Here they held up five students sitting in a Packard sedan, taking a billfold and $8 from one student and driving away in the sedan.

The sedan was found abandoned at 11:30 o'clock on Cardinal avenue, north of Washington boulevard. There were blood-stains on the steering wheel, seats and footboard. The stolen billfold was in the car.

Bloodstains in Auto.

Bloodstains also were visible in the Studebaker car abandoned by the youths at the scene of the shooting. This car, the property of Branch F. Spencer, 4468 West Pine boulevard, had been stolen from its parking place at Washington boulevard and Theresa avenue, at 8 o'clock.

The students held up were Carl Langenohl, Parker Kosser, Alfred Kissack, Richard Wade and Carl Pickel. They were in Kosser's Packard sedan, parked on Fraternity Row, near the Beta Theta Pi house, on the university campus.

Students Criticise Police.

As the robbers drove away in the stolen car, they were pursued by Langenohl and two students, Harry Crane and Thomas Hukriede, who had been in the house. The three students boarded a passing car, occupied by a man and woman, and chased the robbers east in Forsythe and Lindell boulevards to Grand boulevard. Here Hukriede got out to seek a policeman, while the others continued east to Leonard avenue, where the robbers' car disappeared.

Patrolman Kaiser is 29 years old and resides at 5608 Cresr avenue. He is at St. Mary's Hospital. Two years ago he was shot by a robber, now in prison, near the scene of last night's shooting.

AUTO THIEVES WHO SHOT POLICEMAN CAUGHT, WOUNDED

CHAUFFEUR TELLS THEIR HIDING PLACE

One of Pair Admits They Attacked Oficers During Holdup, but Say Latter Fired First.

Two automobile thieves who exchanged shots with three policemen, wounding one, in University City last night, and then escaped, were themselves wounded.

They were captured at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in a rooming house at 223 North First street, East St. Louis. They said they were J. E. Fox, 28 years old, and R. E. Williams, 22, both of Oklahoma City.

Fox was wounded three times, twice between the shoulder blades and once in the lower back. Williams was wounded in the right forearm, a bullet having broken a bone. Another bullet had grazed his neck.

The two went to the East St. Louis place this morning after checking out of a Washington boulevard Hotel. Williams left a blood-stained suit in the hotel room, and this led to their capture. Police learned of the suit and learned also the name of a chauffeur who transported the two to East St. Louis. The chauffeur guided police to the rooming house.

Admits Firing at Policemen.

Fox, weak from loss of blood, admitted to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he and Williams had fired at the policemen. He insisted the policemen fired first, at a time when his back was turned. Police, however, say he must have been wounded as he and Williams fled on foot, after wounding Patrolman John Kaiser of the University City force.

The exchange of shots was the result of a young man in gray suit and cap holding up G. G. Gage, 6615 Kingsbury boulevard, in front of his home and escaping with $5 at 9:30 o'clock. Patrolmen Kaiser, Gaffney and Price, all in civilian clothes, set out from headquarters in a department automobile and halted a Studebaker car at Melville avenue and University drive, because one of the two young men in it was dressed like the man who robbed Gage.

Shot From Back Seat.

As the policemen surrounded the car with drawn revolvers, announcing they were officers, the driver raised his hands and said: "Don't shoot—I've got 'em up."

But the gray-clad youth in the rear drew a revolver and fired at Kaiser, a bullet striking him in the lower left arm, breaking a bone. Gaffney and Price then fired at this youth, and he returned the fire.

A score of shots were exchanged. Suddenly both youths jumped from the car and ran. His own revolver empty, Gaffney grabbed Kaiser's weapon and fired at the fugitives. They got away, running south on Melville to an alley, west a block to Adelaide avenue, and about two blocks south to the Washington University campus.

Take Auto From Students.

Here they held up five students sitting in a Packard sedan, taking a billfold and $8 from one student and driving away in the sedan.

The sedan was found abandoned at 11:30 o'clock on Cardinal avenue, north of Washington boulevard. There were blood-stains on the steering wheel, seats and footboard. The stolen billfold was in the car.

Bloodstains in Auto.

Bloodstains also were visible in the Studebaker car abandoned by the youths at the scene of the shooting. This car, the property of Branch F. Spencer, 4468 West Pine boulevard, had been stolen from its parking place at Washington boulevard and Theresa avenue, at 8 o'clock.

The students held up were Carl Langenohl, Parker Kosser, Alfred Kissack, Richard Wade and Carl Pickel. They were in Kosser's Packard sedan, parked on Fraternity Row, near the Beta Theta Pi house, on the university campus.

Students Criticise Police.

As the robbers drove away in the stolen car, they were pursued by Langenohl and two students, Harry Crane and Thomas Hukriede, who had been in the house. The three students boarded a passing car, occupied by a man and woman, and chased the robbers east in Forsythe and Lindell boulevards to Grand boulevard. Here Hukriede got out to seek a policeman, while the others continued east to Leonard avenue, where the robbers' car disappeared.

Patrolman Kaiser is 29 years old and resides at 5608 Crest avenue. He is at St. Mary's Hospital. Two years ago he was shot by a robber, now in prison, near the scene of last night's shooting.

"What If Lazzeri Hit?" Old Alex Asks, Quitting Town After Week as Hero

A real handshake—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the World Champion Cardinals (at right) bids goodby to Alexander the great, who departed last night to pick up more dollars and more adulation in other cities after "a hard week" in St. Louis.

"Yea, He'd Be the Hero Instead of Me, and I'd Have Been a Bum," He Philosophizes, Sighs Prodigiously and Hops Train for Chicago.

"Don't," said Alexander the Great, shortly before he took a train for Chicago last night, "don't ever be a hero."

"If you've got to be one, be one, but avoid it as long as you can. It's been a long hard week."

And then: "But I sure appreciated it."

The last audience at the last performance at the Ambassador Theater had applauded his last appearance on the stage in St. Louis for this week. The last worshipful fan had beseeched his last handshake and autographed ball. Hullabaloo sounded no more, the world series was history, the roof still rested on the Railway Exchange Building and already the Cardinals were being spoken of as last season's champions.

It was, if ever, a time for philosophy, and old Alex was there in the pinch. He pulled his famous green felt hat, which had rested most of the week on the back of his head, well down over his forehead. He straightened his knit tie, pawed at by a thousand very, very old friends. He smoothed the buttonholes in his lapels, twisted out of shape by flowers and index fingers.

"This fell on me," he said, "all of a sudden. I haven't lit yet. But you'll tell 'em, you'll tell 'em I sure appreciate it? I-I—."

He fumbled for words, he looked embarrassed as if he were searching around at his feet for an easy grounder to the pitcher's box, but couldn't find it.

The reporter promised to make the assist and not charge Alex with an error.

"You know," he went on, finally, "being an actor and shaking hands and having everybody pat you on the back can almost ruin a guy. When baseball fans are strong for you, they're strong for you. But—come to think of it—what if Lazzeri had hit a home run with the bases full instead of striking out?"

Grover Cleveland Alexander, hailed as the greatest pitcher in baseball, the idol of St. Louis, the hero of Dallas, Omaha, Tulsa, Phoenix and points west, straightened himself in the seat of a fine limousine with uniformed chauffeur as it carried him out to the Buckingham Hotel.

"If that had happened," he observed, "Lazzeri would be the hero instead of me. I wouldn't have been a hero. I'd have been a bum."

He sighed prodigiously.

Funny Way Things Happen.

"Sure is funny," he went on, "the way things happen. I've been thinking about that play at night. You see, there was a man on first, a man on second, a man on third, and Lazzeri was up in the seventh inning of the deciding game of the world series. It sticks in my head. Man on first, man on second, man on third, and two out. No place to put Lazzeri. The count was two and two. So I said to myself, 'Grover Cleveland Alexander, you been in this game longer than he has. He's up there for the first time and he's got to hit it. You just pitch him another wide curve and he'll swing at it.' And I pitched it and he swung and he missed it. He missed it that far."

He indicated a distance of two feet with his hands.

"How many more years of big league baseball do you expect to see?"

"They've been asking me that every year for the last ten years. How do I know? Some day I'll be out there throwing them over, only they won't go over and, when they do, they'll be socked hard. Then I'll know my time is up. Sure is funny. I remember about 15 years ago, I was playing catch with a good pitcher before a game. He threw an easy one to me and said, 'I've got a kink in my arm.' It never came out. He was through. He never pitched again."

He clenched his right fist. Was the good right arm still good?

"Sure it is," the veteran boasted. "Sure it is. I'm going to pitch a game in Omaha Sunday. I feel as good as I ever did."

But the day was coming. Monday, it must have seemed a million years away; Wednesday, not more than a thousand; Thursday, something under a hundred, and this was Friday—with the tumult ended, the rooters gone, and Grover Cleveland Alexander off by himself with a reporter in a limousine.

"You know," he said after a long pause, "it's funny about relations. Did you ever hear of a thirty-fourth cousin? Well, I've got one. I've got a thirty-fourth cousin and a sixteenth cousin, and a dozen uncles by marriage. I never had so many relations before in my life.

"They've been looking me up and sending me telegrams and writing me letters. I hope I have nerve enough to tell them where they stand. Listen—there was times in my life when a nickel or a postal card would have looked good to me. Where were all my relations then? They never had any use for me for 17 years, and all of a sudden they come in strong with the congrats. Funny, isn't it? Funny as hell."

But he patted the packets of telegrams in his pockets and felt better. Phoenix wanted him to name his own price for a week there. Fort Worth had wired offering $1500 for an appearance. Kansas City wanted him to referee a prize fight—$500 for one night. He was to go to Chicago, and then to Omaha for a baseball game Sunday. Then he will appear at a burlesque house there all week, skipping Thursday to keep the Kansas City appointment.

The prospect bewildered him.

Pestered Since Early Afternoon.

Since early in the afternoon, well meaning men had pestered him. "Alex, I want you to know Mr. Umph-bumf of Dallas. He sent that Bonehead telegram . . . sure you do? He asked Joe McCarthy of the Cubs to join the Bonehead Club for firing you." . . . "Meet Mr. . . Arf Arf . . . he wrote that poem about you . . . " . . . "Say, Alex, if I was you I'd get me a manager and clean up" . . . "You gotta great chancet, boy . . . Texas and Oklahoma and Nebraska are crazy about you" . . . "Sure, that's what you oughta do . . . I'd get me a manager" . . . "Alex, meet Mr . . Humph Humph . . . Mighty glad to meet Alexander the Great . . . I'll say you're great . . . I saw that game in New York Sunday . . . sure was a critical moment . . . How'd you feel? . . . How much did Lazzeri miss that strike . . . Well, I guess that made you mad, eh? . . . " . . . "Sedalia calling Mr. Alexander . . . . Well, it's time for you to go on again . . . you gotta big hand this aft . . . voice carries good . . . "

Now a tired and haggard man was trying to grasp it all. He fingered telegrams restlessly. He dug into this pocket and that. He opened and re-opened the same envelopes.

"I guess I can make some money," he muttered . . . "only I wish I could hit right out for St. Paul, Neb. They'll give me a big welcome in Omaha I hear . . . but St. Paul . . . "

"The old home town?"

"Yes. It's got 1600 people, and every one of them is a man. That is . . . I mean they're good folks. My mother lives there. Of course I appreciate all this . . . sure do appreciate it . . . but I can't go everywhere. I can't make it. Now you take the shows . . . I don't like that stuff. I'd rather pitch to Babe Ruth. They tell me if I keep it up, I'll get good. But . . . hell, I don't look like a hero . . . They cheer me but . . . sure would like to hit for St. Paul."

Was he going to take the stump for the Democratic party?

"I think too much of the party to do that," he replied.

Was he going into vaudeville through the winter?

"Maybe . . . maybe . . . I haven't had time to think. You can't think. A guy doesn't know where he's at. Course I appreciate it—but—listen, I'm a hero. I been a hero before, but not a hero like this. But say—take my advice, don't you be a hero."

The limousine drew up before the Buckingham Hotel, where Alex must rush and pack and make ready for the train. Nobody was there but a doorman.

Around on the other side of the hotel a crowd of university students was cheering a football team.

"I sure appreciate that," said Alex.

BILL FOR $36,000 GIVEN GUARANTORS OF EXPOSITION

Business Firms and Individuals Pledge $100,000 to Meet Any Deficit That Might Result From Fair.

Guarantors of the Greater St. Louis Exposition were informed today by the Chamber of Commerce that they would be called upon to make up a deficit of $36,018.52.

A fund of $100,000 was pledged by business firms and individuals in advance of the opening of the exposition to meet any loss that might be entailed. As is known, rain cut heavily into the attendance.

An accompanying statement shows that the receipts for the exposition were $451,785.95. Expenditures to date have been $447,861.27, leaving a cash balance of $3,924.68. Additional collectable revenue is given as $15,250. However, there still are outstanding obligations subject to adjustment of $55,193. From these figures, the Chamber estimates the probable deficit at $36,018.52.

The Exposition originally was to run in Forest Park from Sept. 4 to 19. At the end of that period it was approximately $16,000 in the hole, and Ben G. Brinkman, banker and owner of Forest Park Highlands, was out $30,000 which he had given to John S. Berger, the promoter employed by the chamber, for one-half of Berger's interest in any profits. Berger's contract with the chamber provided that he was to receive half of any profit.

Under these circumstances it was decided to curtail the entertainment expense and continue the exposition another week in hope that the deficit would be met and Brinkman could recover some of his loss.

MAN IN AUTO INJURED WHEN BRIDGE GIVES WAY

Two Pinned Under Sedan by Breaking of Span Over River des Peres.

Two men were pinned down in a sedan and one of them was injured last night when a 60-foot bridge over the south branch of River des Peres, on Denny road near Conway road, collapsed as the apparent result of an automobile striking part of the steel work.

Edward Waldmann of Overland, a contractor, suffered a gash in the back of the neck and injuries to the back. R. O'Donnell of 1396A Temple place, who was driving, was slightly injured. Arthur Waldmann of 1504 Hodiamont avenue, nephew of the contractor, said he heard the bridge crack as his automobile passed over it, and shouted back to O'Donnell, who was following, but that the bridge already had fallen and the sedan overturned in the 12-foot ravine.

Highway Engineer Jablonsky examined the bridge and reported that the south "batter post," or south end of the steel structure above the wood floor, apparently had been struck head-on and knocked from the concrete abutment, leaving that end of the bridge without support.

TAKES OVER INSURANCE FIRM

St. Louis Organization Assumes Business of Kentucky Company.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 16.—Retirement of the Transylvania Casualty Co. of Louisville from the automobile insurance field was announced last night when the Indemnity Company of America, St. Louis, took over by reinsurance the entire outstanding business of the firm. The amount involved in the transaction is said to have been approximately $300,000.

The Transylvania Casualty Insurance Co. was incorporated in Kentucky in September, 1911. By the end of 1925, the company had paid up capital of $103,070 and surplus over all liabilities of $35,172, with an earned premium income of more than $250,000.

MRS. M'PHERSON SCORES POINT IN CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Wife of Army Air Officer Testifies She Was Author of Telegram From Gila Bend, Arizona.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—When the preliminary hearing of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, on a charge of conspiracy, was resumed today Mrs. Gayle Koontz was called to the stand out of turn by the defnes to testify that it was she and not "the evangelist" who sent the telegram from Gila Bend, Ariz., June 15, stating that her automobile had been broken down and that she was proceeding by train. A telegraph operator at Gila Bend told investigators he was certain the woman who sent the telegram was Mrs. McPherson. The defense action aroused a storm of protest and Forrest Murray, Deputy District Attorney, objected to taking her testimony out of order. He was overruled, however, and W. I. Gilbert, chief of defense counsel, began the examination.

Mrs. Koontz said she was driving near Gila Bend, Ariz., last June when her automobile broke down. She sent a telegram, she testified, from Gila Bend. Gilbert had the witness write the telegram on a piece of paper and it was offered in evidence.

It follows:

"Mrs. Alex Pearson, Tucson, Ariz.: Will arrive tonight eleven. Meet me.

(Signed) "GALE."

Mrs. Koontz said she was the wife of an army air officer stationed at Manila. She added that she intended going immediately to a San Francisco hospital for an operation, after which she would sail for the Philippines, Oct. 29. It would be impossible to return here until next year, for a court appearance.

Judge Identifies Mrs. Virla Kimball as Miss X.

SALINAS, Cal., Oct. 16.—Judge J. A. Bardin early today identified Mrs. Virla Kimball of Oakland as the woman who appeared before him on Aug. 15 last and made an affidavit saying she was the "Miss X" in the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnaping case.

Mrs. Kimball has denied she was "Miss X," or that she had made an affidavit saying she was. She is a sister of Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff, star witness at the evange-list's preliminary hearing on conspiracy charges in Los Angeles and a codefendant with Mrs. McPherson.

Mrs. Wiseman has testified that she was engaged and paid to aid the Angelus Temple pastor in establishing an alibi. The State contends Mrs. McPherson occupied a cottage at Carmel, Cal., with Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator, for a part of the time the pastor was missing last summer. Ormiston has joined Mrs. McPherson in a denial of this and made an affidavit in Chicago saying the woman with him was a "Miss X." It was to produce a "Miss X" principally that Mrs. Wiseman said she was engaged.

At first Mrs. Wiseman said "Miss X" was her sister, Mrs. Kimball, and that she was with Mrs. Kimball and Ormiston as chaperone. Now Mrs. Wiseman denies that it was Mrs. Kimball and says it was Miss Rachel Wells, formerly of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Kimball, following the identification by Judge Bardin, still denied she was the woman or that she was "Miss X" and returned to her home in Oakland. She was brought before Judge Bardin by a San Francisco newspaper man.

ROBBERS SHOVE BUCKNER BANK CASHIER IN VAULT; GET $2000

Bank Across Street, Closed While Cashier Lunched, Is Not Enteed.

BUCKNER, Mo., Oct. 16.—Two robbers today entered the Bank of Buckner here, shoved J. P. Botts, the cashier, into the vault, and escaped with $2000 in currency. Only two men entered the bank, but witnesses said two or three others waited outside in a car.

In May, 1923, the Bank of Buckner and the Farmers' Bank were held up at the same time. Today the Farmers' Bank, which is just across the street from the Bank of Buckner, was closed while the cashier was at lunch. Police here believe that fact saved it from being robbed, too.

4000 Cases of Liquor Destroyed.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Oct. 16.—Four thousand cases of whisky taken off the seized rum ship Elma here four months ago has been destroyed by a crew of 15 Negro laborers under direction of United States Marshal Ward. The liquor was valued at bootleg prices at $375,000.

Story of Mrs. Coolidge's Girlhood Is Withdrawn

It Was Prepared by Mrs. Hoover for Girl Scout Magazine—President's Wife Objects to Publication in Newspapers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Newspaper publication of a series of articles under the title "When Mrs. Coolidge Was a Girl," prepared by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, has been abandoned because such publication would be displeasing to Mrs. Coolidge, the Washington Evening Star announces in explaining the failure of the first of the series to appear.

"Some time ago," the Star's statement said, "the editors of the American Girl, official publication of the Girl Scouts, approached Mrs. Hoover, who has been active in scout work, with a request that she get from Mrs. Coolidge a story of her girlhood for publication in the magazine.

"Mrs. Coolidge was unable to undertake preparation of the story but with her approval, Mrs. Hoover wrote it, from her own knowledge and with the assistance of friends of Mrs. Coolidge. Neither Mrs. Coolidge nor Mrs. Hoover had any idea it was to be published elsewhere than in the Girl Scout magazine.

"The editors of the magazine, without consulting Mrs. Coolidge or Mrs. Hoover, voluntarily offered the story, with the magazine's compliments, to the North American Newspaper Alliance, of which the Star is a member, for newspaper publication. It developed yesterday that their action was displeasing to Mrs. Coolidge. Therefore, as a matter of course, newspaper publication of the story was abandoned.

FOURTEEN ARMY OFFICERS ON TRIAL FOR ANTISOVIET PLOT

Monarchist Literature Alleged to Have Been Found on Person of Leader of Group.

By the Associated Press.

KHARKOV, Russia, Oct. 16.—Fourteen former officers of the imperial army and later of the White Russian forces were placed on trial here today charged with plotting to overthrow the soviet government and maintaining contact with the Polish and Rumanian general staffs.

The public prosecutor alleged that monarchist literature, destined for distribution among the ranks of the red army, was found on the person of M. Urenuik, a former teacher, and alleged leader of the group.

Urenuik was said by the prosecutor to have confessed that he was sent to Russia by Gen. Gerua, Rumanian representative of the Grand Duke Nicholas, to organize counter revolutionary groups in the Crimea, the Ukraine and White Russia.

The state further alleged that most of the train wrecks that occurred in the new Moldavian Republic of Russia were due to the activities of this group, which, it was charged, maintained contact with Polish, Bulgarian, Rumanian and Turkish espionage sources.

WOMAN SHOOTS NEIGHBOR, WHO IS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

Mrs. Mamie Atwell, 30 years old, was shot in the right jaw with a revolver yesterday afternoon following a quarrel with Mrs. Elta Gearing, 42, who occupies an adjoining flat, opening on the same rear porch, at 1709A North Broadway.

Mrs. Gearing's husband, Oliver Gearing, told police he had fired the shot, but since Mrs. Gearing turned over a revolver with two discharged cartridges, her story was accepted. Mrs. Gearing said that she and Mrs. Atwell had quarreled before. She related that after threatening yesterday to break down her door, Mrs. Atwell, when she opened it, threw a cup at her, whereupon she got her husband's revolver. Mrs. Atwell, in a serious condition today at City Hospital, was unable to discuss the affair.

1200 CHINESE SOLDIERS DIE IN STEAMER FIRE

Munitions Explode on Troop Ship in Yangtze River Before Men Can Escape.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 17.—Approximately 1200 Chinese soldiers perished by fire, explosions and drowning when a troop ship took fire at Kiuklang, Kiangsi province, dispatches received today by the Toho News Agency said.

The steamer Kuangy Yung, transporting 1500 soldiers of Marshal Sun Chaun-Fang, and a full cargo of munitions, caught fire while anchored in the Yangtze River. Before the troops could be taken off in small boats, the munitions exploded, killing many at once and spreading the flames throughout the ship.

As successive explosions hurled fire and shells upon them, the soldiers were seized with panic. Many plunged overboard and were drowned. Only 300 are believed to have reached shore.

The Kuang Yung, which was entirely destroyed, was owned by the China Merchant Navigation Co.

GOVERNOR GRANTS REPRIEVE TO HARRISBURG (ILL.) SLAYER

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 16.—Gov. Len Small, at 10:30 o'clock last night issued a reprieve until Friday, Nov. 12, to Joseph Chesnas, 22 years old, sentenced to hang at Harrisburg, Saline County, this morning.

Although Chesnas pleaded guilty of slaying William Small, a mail carrier, attorneys representing him told the Governor that they did not have an opportunity to talk to the prisoner at times, because he had been taken to the county jail of Franklin County for safe keeping.

It is said an effort will now be made to have Chesnas declared insane and if this fails his case probably will be taken before the Supreme Court.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Oct. 16.—Many persons were permitted by Sheriff Small to pass through the jail today and past the cell of Joe Chesnas who was to have been hanged today, but who got a reprieve from Gov. Small. Sheriff Small was not notified until a few hours before the time for the execution when Chasnas' attorneys, who called from Decatur, stated they were on the way with the reprieve. They reached here at 6 o'clock this morning. The news spread rapidly over the county, but was not sufficient to prevent great throngs assembling early last night.

"Some of my friends on the outside helped me and I am deeply grateful," said Chesnas. "I slept about three hours last night."

He was kept busy shaking hands with people as they passed by his cell.

Time of game—2:30 o'clock.
Place—Francis Field.

Washington University will meet Nebraska at Francis Field at 2:30 o'clock today in the first engagement between the two institutions since 1918, when Washington emerged victor by a 20-7 score. This afternoon the Huskers will average 187 pounds per man to the Bears' 168.

The Bears will start under the added handicap of an injury list that was increased last night when Halfback McDonough reported with a bad hip from Thursday's scrimmage.

His loss to the local eleven will be especially felt, as Capt. Mahan, halfback, will also be forced to see the contest from the sidelines. Mahan's practice injury has been slow in healing and Coach Higgins is taking no chances on crippling his star runner for the season. Another letter man who will be on the bench is Earl Millard, quarter and halfback, whose knee will keep him out of action. With these men missing, the reserve list is badly cut down.

Harding will replace McDonough. The change will detract from the squad's driving power, as McDonough weighs 180 pounds and is a great plunger, while Harding is better at sweeping the ends.

The announcement yesterday that Bradley, powerfully built recruit, whom Higgins was coaching for a backfield berth, had been declared ineligible because of failure to pass a conditional examination, was a further blow to the backfield strength. Along with Bradley, Jacoby, halfback, Mikkelson, guard, Bray, end, and possibly Miller, end, and Heinrichs, tackle, have failed to pass their conditional exams.

The Nebraska eleven arrived this morning, going to Francis Field immediately for a survey of the gridiron. Coach Bearg brought a total of 25 of his Husker grid candidates, and should the game progress according to form, he will probably get the chance to season some of his reserve material in the third and fourth quarters.

That Nebraska is much the more powerful combination is admitted. "We shall consider ourselves lucky," Coach Higgins stated last night, "if we can confine Nebraska to a low score."

Washington followers are hoping no rains falls, as a heavy field will be a further handicap for the light eleven whose best chance will come on a firm footing.

BILLIKEN FRESHMEN BEAT JACKSON U., 19-0

The St. Louis University freshmen scored their second victory of the season yesterday at St. Louis U. Field over Jackson University of Chillicothe, Mo., winning, 19 to 0. It was the Billikens' game all the way, the visitors lacking the nice co-ordination of the local frosh.

Showing a powerful driving attack and a good aerial game, the freshmen went over for two touchdowns in the opening period, Decker scoring the first one and Daubner taking the other over on a pass from Lintzenich. Lintzenich scored the third marker in the fourth quarter. Coach Mathews directed the campaign from the bench and about 1000 persons were present.

FOOTBALL HAS FIGHT ON HANDS AGAINST ENEMIES, SAYS ZUPPKE

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 16.—"Football has more than a game on its hands; it has a battle against the enemies of football." Coach Robert Zuppke told 7000 Illini rooters who jammed the gymnasium annex to hear the Illinois mentor on the eve of the homecoming battle with Iowa today.

"First, it was said that football hurts players' studies and it was found the athletes received better grades than the average student. Then it was charged that football took too much time from the student spectators' studies and that was found to be without foundation. The opponents of football are constantly picturing fooball as it isn't. Football has a battle on its hands against its enemies."

ROOSEVELT DEFEATS WESTERN M. A., 13-3

Roosevelt High gained a 13 to 3 victory over Western Military Academy of Alton yesterday at Roosevelt Field. Carroll went over for both of the South Siders' touchdowns in the first and second quarters, and kicked the goal after the first score. The Roosevelt line showed improvement.

Borah of Western accounted for the losers' points when one of his several attempts from the field sailed through the posts in the third quarter.

Rags, Former Record Holder, Runs Tonight

Bingham's Greyhound One of Best Hurdlers in the Country.

Rags, which recently come into the limelight at Butte by establishing the world's hurdle record which was broken by Monclair, will make his debut at the Madison Kennel Club tonight. He is entered in the steeplechase, along with Monclair's greatest rivals, Little Judge, Shenandoah II, Cimaroon Pat and Tiger Bill.

Rags is owned by Jesse Bingham, who recently returned from Charleston, where a race meeting has just closed. Since his arrival, a match race between the Bingham dog and Monclair has been advocated by fans and dog men and it is possible the two will hook up in a special event during the coming week. Because of their consistency and good showing, Little Judge, Cimaroon Pat and Tiger Bill also may be given the opportunity to compete. Should the race be held it would not be surprising to see a new world's record hung up, but the event hinges on Monclair's recovery from a bad fall Thursday night. He was not seriously injured and if C. O. David, his owner, acquiesces, the race will be made up.

A fast field of dogs will parade to the post in tonight's fourth event, which is secondary in interest only to the steeplechase. Reigning Regent, Capt. Raby, Irish Vic and Orpiment are the ones which figure best and a close finish is likely to result from the running.

No Foolin', Bromley, Judgement and Mike's Hare, all winners, will be pitted together in a futurity which is down as the seventh event. All four are right at the height of their form now, with hardly an edge in favor of any one of them.

The distance event, a five-sixteenths-of-a-mile affair, will present a field of fast route goers, such good ones as Reckless Buck, Texas, Acting Buddy and Robin's River participating.

Ohio State, Chicago and Notre Dame Are Favored to Win Intersectional Games

Perry Picks Dartmouth to Defeat Yale and Navy to Down Princeton—Missouri Should Gain Victory Over Southern Methodist Eleven.

By Lawrence Perry.
(Copyright, 1926.)

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Scouts and coaches of the Western Conference have a high regard for Ohio State this season. The general idea is that the Buckeyes are likely to remind the public very much of the great Buckeye outfits of 1920-21.

Watching the Ohio team in final practice before the players packed their grips and left for New York to meet Columbia University, today, the writer gat a distonct impression of a fast, powerful and heady eleven.

Defensively the eleven is likely to hit hard and accurately. All in all the writer feels that the Buckeyes are entirely worthy to represent the Big Ten organization in the East.

There is a fine spirit in the Ohio State camp this season. Swede Oberlander, the great Dartmouth forward passer, now a member of the Buckeye coaching staff, has a fine personality and his youthful enthusiasm, combined with technical ability as a teacher, have won him the respect and liking of Dr. Wilce and his coaching family, while the players are all keen about him.

Ohio at present is by no means where it is hoped she will be two or three weeks from now; but just the same those backs of the eleven are sanguine that its showing will not prove disappointing. The writer picks Ohio State to win the game. He thinks the margin will be at least two touchdowns.

Many Fine Games.

Thoroughout the country the schedule of games bristles with important contests. The Dartmouth-Yale struggle at New Haven is certain to be a corker. Spectacular doings will unquestionably characterize this meeting. In view of the fact that the Green reported for preliminary practice a week earlier than the Elis, the writer feels that the Hanover eleven should nip out a victory.

The Pennsylvania-Chicago battle at Philadelphia is another prospective thriller. Inasmuch as the Maroons have traditionally been at a loss to defend against multiple backfield passes; inasmuch also as the midway outfit is young and green, the Quakers are picked to take this contest.

Princeton has been going badly since the season started. Her forward passing was rank last week, her defense was weak and her tendency to offside was dismaying in its consistency. It seems unlikely that a remedy has been applied within the short space of a week. Princeton always seems to be weak at this season of the year, and yet has a faculty of holding the Navy in check. Just the same, the writer feels that the Navy has a splendid chance to tie a knot in the Tiger's tail this year.

Illinois Is Favored.

Illinois, with her two regular guards, Muegge and Mittenwaller, ineligible, and two backs on the hospital list, is limping a little. But the big squad contains so many good players that the team cannot by any means be regarded as anything but formidable. Iowa should give the Illini a good hard game on Saturday, but Zuppke's men should win.

Michigan rules as the favorite to win over Minnesota. In fact, the Wolverines are looked upon as the cream of the Middle West just now.

Wisconsin bids fair to triumph over her conference rival, Purdue.

The Army should get a good grilling from Syracuse, but it seems as though the Cadets should win. Cornell, going stronger than in recent years, ought to turn in a victory over Michigan State.

Notre Dame Is Picked.

The Alabama-Georgia Tech game is a real classic. The Yellow Jackets played fine football in beating Tulane and seeing that the Atlantans will be on their own field, Alabama should have a hard time winning this game. But the writer thinks she will win it.

Northwestern will probably beat Indiana. Notre Dame and Penn State will have a sharp tussel which the South Benders should win. Missouri ought not to have any real trouble with Southern Methodist, but Kansas is certain to have her hands full with the Kansas Aggies; in truth the Aggies are herewith picked to thrash the State university.

On the West Coast there will be an interesting struggle at the Berkeley Stadium, where California will meet the gigantic Oregon Aggies team. The Northwest farmers bid fair to garner a fine Bear pelt at Berkeley. Nevada should make no trouble for Stanford, nor should Idaho bother Washington.

SIX HORSES FINISH ENDURANCE CLASSIC WITH PERFECT SCORE

By the Associated Press.

BRANDON, Vt., Oct. 16.—The eighth annual 300-mile endurance ride designed to stimulate interest in the breeding of good saddle horses ended here last night with six horses out of a starting field of 14 completing the course with perfect scores.

Seven mounts set out to cover the fifth and last day's ride of 60 miles yesterday morning, but at the forty-fifth mile Blue Bell of the Army Remount Service was forced to drop out through exhaustion.

Peggy, a bay mare entered by the Third Cavalry and winner of the last two tests, was slower than usual. Critics believe the horse was affected by a fall.

This morning the horses will be judged for winners. The judging is based 60 per cent on condition at the end of the race and 40 per cent on speed.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 16. — Sammy Vogel, New York lightweight, outpointed Armando Shekels of Belgium in a 10-round bout here last night. Vogel's clever glove and footwork were too much for the Belgian fighter.

Athletics Get Boley, Orioles' Star Shortstop

Baltimore Club Obtains Players and Cash for "Silent Joe."

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 16.—Joe Boley, star shortstop of the Baltimore International League club, realized a seven-year major league dream today when Manager Jack Dunn formally announced his sale to the Philadelphia American League club for cash and players.

The amount of cash the Athletics will part with for the services of "Silent Joe" for whom Dunn once refused $100,000 was not divulged, nor have the players yet been named. The deal is complete, however, Dunn announced.

Baltimore won seven straight pennants with Boley at short. He reports to Connie Mack in the spring.

Officials—Daniels, Loyola, referee; Kearns, De Paul, umpire; Millard, Illinois Wesleyan, linesman; Henry, Kenyon, field judge.
Time of game—2:15 o'clock.
Place—Sportsman's Park.

The St. Louis U. squad of Bob Mathews, new athletic director, will get its first big league competition of the season at Sportsman's Park this afternoon when it opposes Marquette University of Milwaukee, a sister school and traditional enemy of long standing. Game time is 2:15 o'clock.

While the Billiken eleven is made up chiefly of men with little or no varsity experience, the chances of turning back the Golden are fairly good. In two early season contests the Billikens ran up a total of 64 points and gave evidence of strong driving power and punt-proof defense. They have yet been scored upon.

Marquette will be handicapped by the absence of several backfield men who have been playing regularly, but Coach Murray has a good supply of reserves. The last time Marquette played St. Louis the locals were defeated, 49 to 1. Since 1920 no games have been played and today's contest is taken to mean a general resumption of athletic relations.

Cap. Kahle, Billiken captain and end, the one letter man around whom the team has been built, will not play today because of injury to his ribs suffered in the Drury game last week. Mulroy will take Kahle's place with Browning on the other wing.

Marquette worked out yesterday at Sportsman's Park and gave an impression of weight that should help the visitors in today's game, as the Billikens are lighter than usual. Don Craine, captain and center, is one of the consistent stars for Marquette and Murray will start a fast backfield in O'Keefe, quarter, Crowley and Gebert, halves, and Leary fullback.

Neither coach would predict victory last night, contenting themselves with stating that all possible effort would be put forth to win. Mathews was singing the blues, but it doesn't mean anything. Other well-known coaches have been known to do it. Murray's men were beaten by Grinnell last week, 17 to 2, so he isn't saying a whole lot.

The records of games played by Marquette and the Billikens since they first met on the gridiron is as follows:

1906—Marquette 0, St. Louis
1912—Marquette 6, St. Louis
1913—Marquette 34, St. Louis
1914—Marquette 7, St. Louis
1916—Marquette 56, St. Louis
1917—Marquette 0, St. Louis
1919—Marquette 0, St. Louis
1920—Marquette 49, St. Louis

Algonquin Player and Sunset Opponent Were Also Tied at End of Tenth Tee.

BELLERIVE COUNTRY CLUB, Oct. 16.—Playing for the St. Louis District golf title today, Clarence Wolff and Eddie Held were all square at the end of 18 holes. Wolff had a one up lead when the two finalists teed off at the 10th. However, Held squared the match at the turn when Wolff drove into the lake.

St. Louis Soccer In for a Test By Sparta Club

Tomorrow's Match Will Show Whether Locals Have Improved Their Game.

The question of whether St. Louis soccer players profit by the object lessons given them by crack foreign teams may be answered tomorrow when the local picked professional players oppose A. C. Sparta of Prague. At the close of last season, St. Louis teams played against and were defeated by the Bethlehem eleven in the national cup final and Hakoah of Vienna in an exhibition match.

In each case the St. Louisans were outplayed by the foreign-born stars, especially in the matter of combined passing movements. In each match the weaknesses of the St. Louis style were brought into sharp relief. In the past, the local lads have been eager to profit by such lessons. This is proved by the excellence of their game, developed without the aid of a coach.

Very Highest Type of Soccer.

Sparta represents the very highest type of specialized soccer. The team has grown strong and its game has become diversified through constant contact with teams of other nations. It has played more international games in the last three years than St. Louis teams have played intercity games. And almost invariably, Sparta has come off victorious, even against such strong opponents as English cup finalists.

Tomorrow's game, which will be played at Sportsman's Park, will start at 2:45 o'clock and 45-minute halves will be played. The referee will be Robert "Ribby" Murphy of St. Louis.

Mayor Victor Miller will kick out the ball to start the match. Members of the Cardinal baseball team have been invited to attend and all of those who are still in St. Louis have promised to be present, according to an announcement by Winton E. Barker, president of the local league.

It is expected that a new local attendance record will be smashed as Barker predicts a crowd approaching 15,000. The admission charge will be $1.10.

IN THE WAKE OF THE BIG SERIES

Two Pitched Balls Made A World Series Martyr Of Charles Flint Rhem

He Heroically Pitched to Ruth in an Effort to Show That a Fast Ball Could Be Slipped Past His Swatting Majesty—No Less a Hero Because He Failed.

CHARLES FLINT RHEM.

No. 2—Charles Flint Rhem.

THERE are heroes and heroes. Some are successful. Others bite the resin. Failure doesn't alter the heroism.

The world series had its unsung heroes.

There was Flint Rhem, right-handed fast and curve ball shooter, a hero and a pennant winner for the Cardinals during the season.

In the world series he didn't win a game. He didn't lose one. He just started one and finished drably without mention either way.

But just the same he was a hero. He pitched to Ruth!

Two balls were all he hurled to the statuesque slugger—one ball in the first inning, one ball in the third inning.

They Were Some Pitches.

THEY were some pitches, those balls—sizzling, burning, flaming shots, the kind that Walter Johnson used to shove by the batters. But Rhem didn't shove them by Ruth. The first one landed on top of the right field pavilion. The second one had an even more heroic fate—it landed in a window on the east side of Grand boulevard.

Two majestic home runs off two pitched balls—that was Rhem's record.

But they made a hero of Rhem. They made a martyr of him. Someone had to be offered as a sacrifice to the necessity of finding out if Ruth could really slam a fast ball.

They picked on Rhem. He proved that Babe could and thereby saved the team from the dangers of thereafter attempting to slip them past the Bambino.

There were other things worth mentioning about Rhem and his world series showing that indicate he was something besides a sacrifice offering.

In the first place, he delivered the game into the hands of his successor with a one-run lead. All that the Cardinal crew need do was to carry on and, as far as Rhem was concerned, the game was won. Not his the responsibility for defeat.

How His Record Reads.

MAYBE Rhem, in spite of those two homers by Ruth, could have held the margin. Maybe he would have been beaten. But his admirers will always argue that he would have won.

Thus Rhem's world series' record records as follows: "Runs 3, hits 7, strikeouts 4, bases on balls 2 in four innings."

The case of Rhem proved once again that a star in the regular season does not always prosper in world series. For here was a pitcher with a 20-7 record for the year, who worked only four full innings.

Rhem will be back. It was his third season in professional baseball. Experience gained in the hectic National League race should make him a better pitcher in 1927. In fact, baseball men generally think he will be one of the real shining lights of the national pastime.

Chief Uncas to Start Today in Fairmount Dash

Reputation Will Carry Top Weight in Race, Lincoln Fields Handicap.

By Dent McSkimming.

There appears to be more class in today's card at the Fairmount Jockey Club track than at any previous time during the meeting. There is a concentration of high speed in the fifth event on the card, a six-furlong dash which brings out Reputation, Stampdale, Book Binder, Blockhead, Child's Play, Senator Norris, Chief Uncas, Bolton and Magic Wand. The race is called the Lincoln Fields Handicap and there is $2000 added to the purse.

In spite of the fact that he has not won a race in his last five starts, Reputation has been assessed top weight, 117 pounds, by the handicappers and will be one of the favorites in the betting. Stampdale and Senator Norris each carry one pound less than the Harned Brothers horse. Chief Uncas gets in at 90 pounds and barring accidents should set the early pace for he is the fastest breaker of the field.

Both Blockhead and Bookbinder scored victories in their last previous starts and appear to be tightened up for a test.

Rusovia Entered Again.

Rusovia, which engaged the attention of the bettors a few days ago in the guise of a "good thing," is back today in the fourth race. He was an also ran the other day and possibly the boys will be trying to win back what they donated. However, Gliding Fox, Edward Gray, Try Again, Botch and High Prince are all likely contenders in this event and if Rusovia can show the way it will be convincing proof that he really has some class.

Fairmount Park has never looked more like a big league racing plant than at present. The steady rains of a week ago brought out fresh verdure to add color to the infield and the surrounding trees. The track is in good condition. Officials predicted this morning that the attendance today will equal the big crowds of last spring.

Yesterday, the outstanding incident was the pitiful effort of Smiling Gus in the Edwardsville Handicap. On the strength of his victory over Capt. Hal at Hawthorne a couple of months ago, Smiling Gus was highly regarded as a possible winner. He did everything but win. If Dr. Clark hadn't been loafing along in the rear, Gus would have run last in a field of six. It was noticed, however, that Jockey Mullaney did not lay his whip on Gus during the early running when he seemed to have a chance to break through. It is true that he suffered interference, but he got anything but a rousing ride.

Fire Under was another disappointment.

CARPENTIER WOULD LIKE TO GET TITLE MATCH WITH TUNNEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16. — Another man who would like to try lifting the heavyweight championship crown from Gene Tunney's brow is Georges Carpentier, French boxer, who sailed today aboard the liner France.

"I would much rather fight Tunney than Dempsey," Carpentier said. "I would like to be matched with Tunney."

Carpentier said he would return soon to make America his permanent home, bringing his wife and child.

La Barba to Box Lynch.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Fidel La Barba, world's flyweight champion, has been matched for a 10-round bout here Nov. 19 with "California Joe" Lynch. It will be a non-title affair, with both boxers coming in at the bantamweight limit.

80,000 Persons To See Yale and Dartmouth Play

Ewing, Sub for Three Years, to Start at Quarter for Princeton.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Chicago and Penn, Dartmouth and Yale furnished some of the brightest spots on today's eastern football card, top-heavy with feature games.

The Quakers had a suspicion that the Chicago Maroons, unheralded as magic workers, might be better than the team which last year bowed to Penn, 7-0.

Coach Stagg of Chicago said: "We could be beaten by a larger score than last year."

Captain Marks and other members of the Chicago team said, however, that Penn was in for a beating. "We will win this time," he said. "We've got the men and the stuff with which to do it."

Penn had some doubt about her shell-game offense because of Stagg's standing line, always in position to watch and follow the ball. The Quakers have found their hidden ball plays effective against linemen playing low.

80,000 to See Game.

Many critics favored Dartmouth, with its excellent forward passing to win its first victory over Yale whose stars are crippled. This game was the biggest magnet from the spectators' standpoint, indications being for an attendance of 80,000.

Announcement that Sam Ewing, of Princeton, after three years as a substitute, would start his first varsity game at quarter indicated that Coach Roper might be applying methods of psychology against the midshipmen as Ewing has won one game and tied another by dropkicks over Navy goal posts.

The Army and Syracuse were evenly matched.

Harvard, with two disasters behind was a favorite over Wm. and Mary.

Ohio State was favored by most critics to down Columbia at the Polo Grounds.

"Walter Camp" Gaines.

Tulane of New Orleans brought a reputation for a dashing attack against which Coach Meehan had carefully prepared his New York University team.

Pittsburgh was the favorite for its game with Colgate.

Cornell had drilled extensively for Michigan State.

West Virginia sent a great team to Washington to meet Georgetown.

Games today on a dozen fields marked inauguration of a nation wide effort to raise $300,000 for the erection of a Walter Camp memorial arch at New Haven. Many colleges have set aside a leading contest as a "Walter Camp Game."

Jesse Hawley, Dartmouth coach, after a golf match with Tad Jones, Yale coach, said: "I think we're going home on the short end of the score."

RAWLINGS, FORMER ARMY STAR, IS DEAD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Ensign Harry A. Rawlings, a backfield star of the Annapolis football team for four years, died yesterday of tuberculosis at the Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver.

He was born in Cincinnati and appointed to the Naval Academy from Kentucky in 1918, making the team during his first year and figuring in its three subsequent victories over West Point.

Last year, during the Army and Navy game in New York, the team, after its defeat, gathered around a radio microphone to send a Navy yell with Rawlings' name thrice repeated to the man in the Denver hospital. Rawlings' home was in Newport, Ky., where he will be buried.

PENNSY SCORES TOUCHDOWN IN OPENING PERIOD

Murphy Crashes Through Chicago Line for First Points of Game.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—Contrasting with the rain and cold which greeted them a year ago, Pennsylvania and Chicago elevens locked here today in balmy weather in one of the season's outstanding intersectional struggles.

The contest marked the sixth game between the two rivals, with Pennsylvania's slate thus far unmarked by a defeat.

The lineups:

Pennsylvania.	Position.	Chicago.
Thayer	L. E.	Apitz
Smith	L. T.	Weislow
Duncan	L. G.	Wolff
Butler	C.	K. Rouse
Parke	R. G.	Cochran
Hake	R. T.	Lewis
Singer	R. E.	Spence
Murphy	Q. B.	McDonough
Rogers	L. H.	S. Rouse
P. Scull	R. H.	McKinney
Wascolonis	F. B.	Marks

Referee, Ed Thorpe, Lasalle; umpire, Charles Eckles, W. and J.; head linesman, M. Ghee, Dartmouth; field judge, H. B. Hackett, Army.

First Quarter.

Chicago kicked off to Pennsylvania, Rogers catching the ball on his own five-yard line and running it back 15 yards. Penn failed to gain on two stabs at the line and punted. The ball struck Marks' leg on the bounce, and Thayer recovered for Penn at midfield. Murphy, Wascolonis, Rogers and Scull then plowed through the Chicago line to the 15-yard line, where an attempted dropkick by Scull was blocked.

Chicago punted out of danger to Pennsylvania's 20-yard line. After an exchange of kicks, Murphy skirted Chicago's right end for 30 yards, carrying the ball to the Maroons' 45-yard line. Wascolonis broke through the line for 12 yards more. A forward pass, Rogers to Wascolonis netted another first down, bringing the ball to the Midwestern team's 18-yard line.

Short gains by Rogers and Murphy advanced Pennsylvania to the three-yard line. Murphy then rounded right end for a tochdown and Wascolonis booted across the extra point on a placement kick. Score: Pennsylvania 7, Chicago 0.

Scull's kick-off for Pennsylvania rolled off the goal line. After the ball had ben taken out to the 20-yard mark, Singer tackled Rouse for a five-yard loss as the period ended.

SECOND QUARTER.

An exchange of punts opened the second period, with the Maroon gaining 10 yards. Chicago could not plow through the Pennsylvania line and again was forced to kick. A 15-yard penalty for holding pushed the red and blue team back to its five-yard line, from where Murphy punted to McDonough. The latter then brought off Chicago's best gain thus far when he raced back 15 yards with the ball to midfield.

A 25-yard forward pass by Marks was intercepted by Murphy on Pennsylvania's 25-yard line, but the officials ruled interference. Chicago immediately renewed its aerial attack, but another toss by Anderson, substitute for McKinney, fell into the arms of Butler, Penn guard, and the Quakers punted to Chicago's 38-yard line.

The remainder of the period was taken up largely with a punting duel. Thayer's brilliant tackling stopped the Maroon on almost every running play, the half ending with the ball in Pennsylvania's possession near midfield.

NARCOTICS AND MONEY TAKEN IN 6 HOLDUPS

Thieves Loot Safe of Drugs and Rob Pharmacist, Wife and Customers.

Six holdups, in which amounts ranging from $5 to $100 were taken, were reported to the police between 9:30 p. m. yesterday and 3:30 a. m. today.

Two armed men entered the drug store of George Wieselman, 4070 Kennerly avenue, at 10:20 p. m., and held up Wieselman, his wife, Catherine, and three customers. From a safe, they took a quantity of narcotics, after forcing the inner doors. Mrs. Wieselman was robbed of her purse containing $8, and Nathan Berger, of 4258 Harris avenue, of $40. Dr. Louis Kohler, of the City Sanitarium, was robbed of $40, and $4 was taken from Gus Burgeman, of 4206 North Sarah street. The cash register was not molested. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

The drug store of Fred Ahrens, 451 North Kingshighway, was held up by a robber at 9:30 p. m. John Marquardt, of 4751 Labadie avenue, a clerk, was forced to lie on the floor and the man took $97 from the cash register. The robber fled in an tomobile in which another man was waiting.

Two men, one of them armed with two revolvers, entered the saloon of Henry Watler, 3265 South Jefferson avenue, at 10:50 p. m., and held up Watler's son, John, and 10 customers. From the cash register they took $75, and Barney Fisher, of 3255 South Jefferson avenue, was robbed of $15 when the men encountered him behind the bar cutting a sandwich. The other customers were not searched.

William Brush of 4823 Fountain avenue, night manager of a gasoline filling station at Pine boulevard and Beaumont street, had closed the place and started home at 12:30 a. m., today when he was held up by two men who had been waiting in a Ford car nearby and robbed of $70. Of this amount, he said, $40 was his own money. He carried $15 in his lunch kit. This was taken also.

Lewis Morrowe of 5601 Botanical avenue had gone to the truck market at Laclede avenue and Sarah street at 3:30 a. m. when he was held up and slugged by two men who escaped with $35.

Man Resisting Robber Struck.

Martin Rivera, 27 years old, and Manuel Cervantes, Mexicans, of 4064 McPherson avenue, resisted when they were held up by three Negroes in front of 2935 Olive street at 2 a. m. When Cervantes called for help one of the Negroes struck Rivera on the head with a revolver, knocking him unconscious and then robbed him of $5. The robbers escaped. Rivera suffered a probable fracture of the skull and lacerations of the scalp.

Window smashers, who apparently started out upon an expedition of vandalism and later took to burglary hurled bricks through the windows of eight stores between 1 and 2:45 a. m. and kept the police busy rushing from one section of the city to another. Damage totaled about $500 and miscellaneous articles of merchandise ranging from socks to jewelry and valued at $70 to $100, were stolen.

Smashing Activities Transferred.

The first windows broken were those of the Cupples Tire Co., 3100 Locust boulevard; Universal Tire Co., 2840 Locust, and the Master Batteries Service Co., 2834 Washington boulevard. From there the vandals who apparently traveled in an automobile, transfered their activities to 2204 Franklin avenue, where they broke into the Brownstein Dry Goods Co., and stole articles valued at $10. While police were investigating this, there arrived reports of smashed windows at the Klearman Dry Goods Co., Grand boulevard and Couzens street, and at the Cut Rate Clothing Co., 1018 North Grand. Later the Edwin Schwartz Jewelry Co., 1902 North Taylor avenue, was entered and looted of rings valued at about $50, and the shoe store of John Longhi, 2601 North Taylor, was robbed of two pairs of shoes and six pairs of socks, of a total value of about $15.

LOTTERY CHARGES DISMISSED

Detectives Do Not Prove That Frank Burke Sold Lottery Tickets.

Lottery charges against Frank Burke, 2258 Cass avenue, were dismissed by Judge Gayer of the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday when detectives were unable to produce evidence that tickets found were actually sold in a lottery.

Burke was arrested in a raid on a busy printing establishment in the Fullerton Building July 21. Detectives who were the only witnesses testified that the plant was making thousands of what appeared to be weather lottery tickets, but were unable to produce witnsesses to their actual use in gambling.

MAN KILLED WHEN TRUCK GOES IN DITCH

Walter Gillian, 24, Caught Under Machine When Steering Apparatus Breaks.

An automobile truck plunged over an embankment, and Walter Gillian, 24 years old, a tinner's helper, who was riding in it, was crushed fatally at 1 p. m. yesterday, when the steering mechanism of the machine broke on a steep double curve on the North and South road, between Clayton and Manchester roads.

The truck was being driven south and was moving up the sharp grade at the "S" turn, about a mile north of the Manchester road, when the accident occurred. John W. Brooks, 23, a tinner, employed by the Star Heating and American Fire Escape Co., 3941 Forest Park boulevard, was at the wheel, and Gillian was riding with him.

When the steering apparatus collapsed the machine lurched from one side of the road to the other for a few yards and then overturned in a ditch, pitching both men out. Brooks was thrown clear, but Gillian was caught under the truck body and died a few minutes later on the way to St. Mary's Hospital.

Gillian's home was in Nashville, Tenn., but he had been working in St. Louis about two months. His body was taken to an undertaking establishment in Kirkwood, where an inquest was held today. Brooks was held under bond pending the inquest.

Woman, 77, Struck by Auto; Condition Critical.

Miss Clara Wilson, 77 years old, of 4311 Washington boulevard, and Miss Amanda Surkamp, 53, of the same address, a teacher at the Ames Public School, were crossing Washington boulevard at Sarah street last night when they were knocked down by an automobile being driven west on Washington boulevard by William R. Shillington, 26, of 6315 South Rosebury avenue, Webster Groves. They were taken to City Hospital where Miss Wilson was found to be suffering from fractures of the skull, ribs and right arm and internal injuries. Her condition is critical. Miss Surkamp suffered lacerations of the scalp and body bruises.

RUMANIAN PRESS PREDICTS REINSTATEMENT OF CAROL

Anticipates Restoration of Former Crown Prince as Heir Apparent.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 16.—The possibility of former Crown Prince Carol's reinstatement as Heir Apparent to the Rumanian throne is a topic of increasing discussion in the newspapers.

While the articles still are veiled, it is apparent that a large section of the press expects that he formally will resume his rights shortly after Parliament reconvenes, Nov. 14. This expectation is based possibly on the reconciliation between Carol and his mother early this week in Paris, prior to the Queen's departure for the United States.

One writer says openly that the question of modifying the regency has been decided; that "one of the present regents will be withdrawn, and an important personage now absent from Rumania will assume the title of regent."

The newspaper Adverul declares former Premier Bratiano is going to Paris to see Carol "in the role of peacemaker." It adds as a significant fact, that Bratiano will be accompanied on the trip by Alexander Constantinescu, former Minister of Agriculture, who opposed Carol's renunciation of rights last January.

A certain section of the press places importance on the rapid increase in power of the new National Taranist party, which strongly favors Carol, and it is declared that Premier Averescu, alarmed by the possibility of the overthrow of his Cabinet, has made overtures to Bratiano for amalgamation of the People's party with the Liberals to offset the influence of the Taranists.

[illegible]OLIDGE SAYS VOTING IS SOLEMN DUTY

[illegible] Speech at Oratorical Contest He Also Urges Respect for Law.

[illegible] Associated Press.

[illegible]WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—An ap[illegible] for all citizens to exercise the [illegible]chise was made by President [illegible]lidge in extending greetings to [illegible] members of the first interna[illegible] oratorical contest in the Wash[illegible]ton auditorium, last night.

"Whenever a choice is to be [illegible] in electing a public officer," [illegible] President asserted, "all those [illegible] can qualify are under the most [illegible]mn and binding obligation to [illegible]ister their decision at the bal[illegible] box. To fail in that is to be [illegible]loyal to our whole system of [illegible]f-government. On our theory [illegible] the people are sovereign, to [illegible]lect to vote is to abdicate.

"We do not pretend to rely for [illegible]rect decisions on the judgment [illegible] the selfish and interested few, [illegible] rather on the patriotic choice [illegible] great body of the candid and [illegible]pendent citizens. We rely on [illegible] expression of the impartial [illegible]ers. A true election represents [illegible] untrammeled expression of [illegible]r will. It is their voice that [illegible]aks with divine authority."

Obedience to Law.

In outlining the attributes of [illegible] citizenship, Mr. Coolidge [illegible]aced with the appreciation of the [illegible]ponsibility of voting, respect for [illegible]erican institutions of govern[illegible]nt, and obedience to the law. [illegible]-these attributes, he asserted, [illegible]uld in his opinion "not be found [illegible]cept among a religious people." The oratorical contest he com[illegible]nded as a movement that would [illegible]erest young people "in a study [illegible] the science of government espe[illegible]lly as exemplified in the insti[illegible]tions of their own countries."

[illegible] the United States, he con[illegible]d, it would, it was hoped, lead [illegible] a broader knowledge of funda[illegible]ntal principles of government, [illegible]cially as exemplified in the [illegible]erican Constitution.

Candid study, he said, would [illegible]ow that "our Government is [illegible]ply what the people through [illegible]ir duly constituted procedure, [illegible]ction, ordain and establish."

"While each of our citizens [illegible]ht to have sufficient faith and [illegible]wledge to reinforce their belief [illegible] America," he continued, "after [illegible]ood citizenship is not so much [illegible]atter of information as of dis[illegible]tion, not so much of the head [illegible] of the heart: not so much de[illegible]ndent upon knowledge as upon [illegible]timent. Those who want to do [illegible]ht have little difficulty in find[illegible] out the right.

Essence of Self-Government.

"Observance of the law is the [illegible]y essence of self-government. [illegible] is the main source of certainty [illegible] all social relationships. With[illegible]t it all those elements would be [illegible]king on which we are dependent [illegible] economic structure. The pro[illegible]tion of property, the security of [illegible] person would be gone. The en[illegible] basis for credit would be lack[illegible]. No standard of value for [illegible]perty could exist. Justice would [illegible]h. The whole foundation of [illegible]zation would crumble. The [illegible]tection of the weak would dis[illegible]pear. The sole reliance would [illegible] force. Might alone would rule. "It is to rescue the people from [illegible]se conditions that constitutions [illegible] adopted and statutes enacted. [illegible]t all these will be of little avail [illegible]less there is fostered and nour[illegible]ed in the minds of our citizens [illegible] rugged respect for law and [illegible]edience to its decrees."

DIRIGIBLE MAKES FAST TRIP TO LAKEHURST

Warning of Approaching Storm Causes Change in Schedule of Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 16.—The navy dirigible Los Angeles was back home today after a hurried flight from Detroit, made necessary by an approaching storm.

Her return marked the successful completion of a test flight similar to one that spelled disaster to her sister ship, the Shanandoah, while flying over Ohio a year ago.

The return was made in 13 hours five minutes by way of Lake Erie, Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany and down the Hudson Valley to New York. The ship functioned perfectly all the way. For a time a speed of 70 miles an hour was maintained. The distance was 1550 miles.

The original plan of Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl, in command of the ship, was to remain in Detroit and vicinity until 10 o'clock this morning, but the storm warnings made necessary the change in schedule. Accordingly the proposed trip to Selfridge Field was cancelled and the hawsers were cast off from the Ford mooring mast at Dearborn at 3:30 p. m. central time yesterday. The ship arrived at Lakehurst at 5:25 a. m., Eastern time, today and landed at 7 a. m.

A full supply of gasoline and oil was taken aboard at Detroit and 300 pounds of provisions which consisted of roast chicken, veal cutlets, ham, bacon, soup, 40 dozen eggs, 100 loaves of bread and 40 pies. While the ship sped over Lake Erie the men enjoyed a fried chicken dinner.

The trip to Detroit, longer than the journey home, took 16½ hours.

The storm that caused the change in schedule was not encountered on the flight, Rosendahl said. It was due over the great lakes region this morning.

A slight frost forced the Los Angeles to hover over the air field for an hour and a half. Each time it attempted a descent to the cold level within 100 feet of the ground the ship bounced like a huge rubber ball.

GUARD HALTS ESCAPE OF 4 PRISONERS THROUGH SEWER

Two Others Still Free After Dash From Missouri Prison Road Gang.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—The four convicts of the Missouri Penitentiary who failed in an attempt to escape through the prison sewer yesterday afternoon, have been placed in the punishment hall, while two other convicts who slipped away from the prison road camp near Callwood, Callaway County, some time last night, are still at liberty.

The four who failed in their attempt to leave the prison via the sewer had broken padlocks from a manhole cover and were about to enter when a guard discovered them. They had various tools with which to cut bars inside the sewer, but prison officials said they doubted if the men could have cut the steel bars which are located in two places in the sewer.

The four prisoners are Charles McKenzie of Kansas City, serving 10 years; Ray Perry, alias Gerald Palmer of St. Louis, doing nine years, and Elmer and Grant Hartnell, brothers, from Kansas City, each under a 35-year sentence. They were convicted on robbery charges.

McKenzie escaped through the sewer in October, 1920, but later was recaptured in Texas.

The two "trusties" who slipped away from the road camp are Henry Potter, serving two years from Morgan County on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, and J. G. Bone, under a five-year sentence from Washington County for forgery.

APPLES TOPPLE INTO RIVER

Steamer Loses 400 Barrels of Fruit at National City.

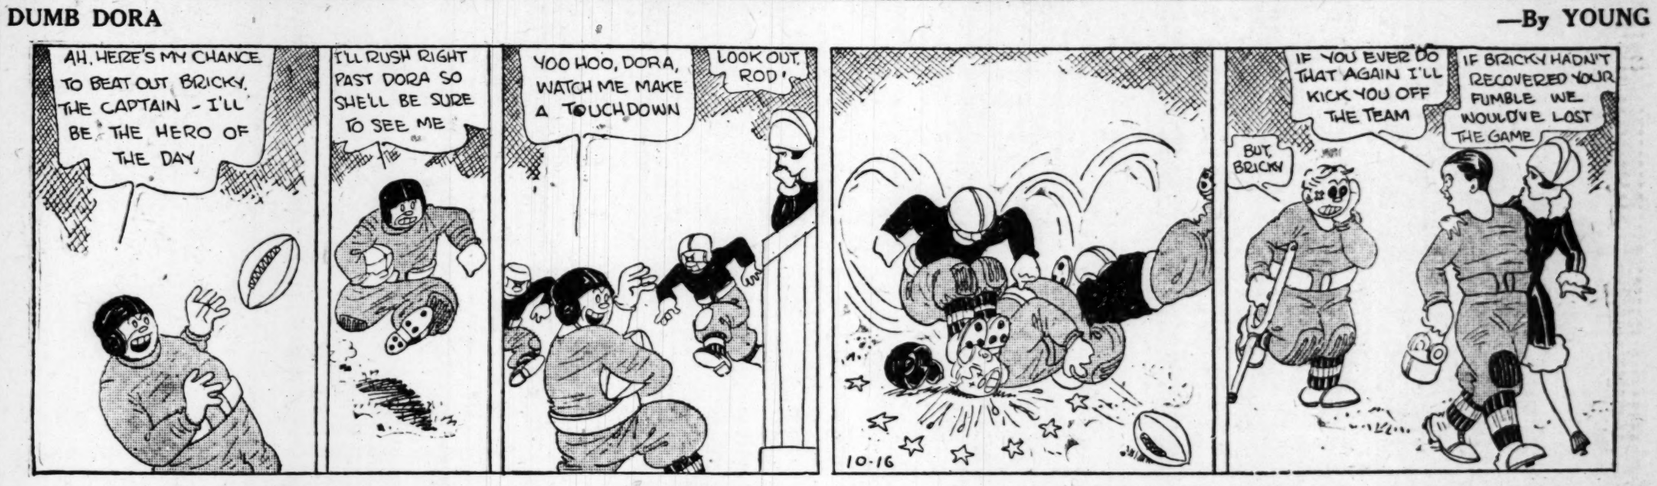

More than 400 barrels of apples, part of a consignment of 700 barrels being brought to St. Louis from Calhoun County, Ill., on the steamer Belle of Calhoun, fell into the Mississippi River Thursday as the boat was maneuvering into the wharf at National City to land a shipment of cattle. The apples were carried swiftly downstream in the swollen current.

Forty-eight barrels were recovered later at the Davis street, but the only report from the remainder is that a farmer living near Cape Girardeau, Mo., 120 miles South of St. Louis, retrieved 40 barrels Friday.

POLICEMEN TO REPORT ON SPRINGFIELD (ILL.) TESTIMONY

Commissioners to Compare Them With Manuscripts of Evidence In Mail Robbery Case.

The Board of Police Commissioners yesterday ordered Patrolmen Isaac N. Craig and John Lynch to make written reports of the testimony they gave in Federal Court at Springfield, Ill., last week at the trial of Sam Kotofsky, a St. Louis tailor, who, with two other defendants, was sentenced to 25 years in prison for complicity in a mail robbery at the Springfield station of the Chicago & Alton Railroad on April 1, 1923.

President Orrick said the Commissioners desired to compare the officers' reports of their testimony with transcripts in the case before taking further action. Particular attention will be given the report of Craig, who appeared as a character witness for Kotofsky. The policemen went to Springfield in response to subpenas issued by the Court at the request of defense counsel.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

V. O. L.—March 8, 1890, was a Saturday.

A. Y.—John Harrison Dempsey is the name of the ex-champion defeated by Gene Tunney.

H. F.—Salaries of Senators and Representatives in the United States are $10,000 a year for each man.

HAZEL — Take your song to some of the music publishers listed in the classified section of the telephone directory.

A. P.-D. READER.—The Ziegfeld Follies played in St. Louis in February, 1926, at the American Theater. This was the twentieth edition of the Follies.

C. J. B. — Inquire at the Civil Service Bureau, Customs House, Third and Olive streets, for information about examinations and positions now open.

MRS. J. W. B.—There are two evening papers in Flint, Mich., the Herald and the Journal. The police in Flint will investigate your brother for you if you write to them.

F. B. A.—Thomas Creed finally received a sentence of 10 years for his part in killing the policeman. Robert Creed was sentenced for 15 years. These sentences may be reduced by four or five years for good behavior.

A. B. C.—The sandwich may be eaten with a knife and fork or may be made into a regular sandwich and picked up in the fingers after being cut in half. The first way is best for a sandwich that is clumsy to handle because of too much filling. A three-layer sandwich may be eaten either of the above ways, though it is usually too thick to eat without cutting or separating the layers.

A. G.—Estimates for the number of Negro persons in the world approximate 139,000,000 persons. The approximate number of white persons is 896,000,000. There are 10,463,000 persons of the Negro race in the United States and 94,820,900 white persons.

H. S.—Whether eating popcorn and peanuts is bad manners or not depends on the place where you happen to be. Picture shows and similar gatherings are not the place for crackling peanut shells and greasy popcorn, because other people are annoyed by such things. When out in the open air at ball games or similar events popcorn and peanuts may be eaten with propriety, provided doing so will not be too conspicuous or annoying to other persons nearby.

P. D. Q.—For a golden wedding celebration the gifts should be of gold. Close friends and relatives usually present gold coins to the couple. The wife's share might be put in a gold leather or mesh purse and the husband's share in a gold-trimmed leather purse. Yellow chrysanthemums are now in season and can be used effectively for decorations. A yellow dinner party may be served with orange, peach and pineapple fruit cocktail, a cup of chicken soup, golden-brown baked chicken, mashed sweet potatoes, creamed carrots, grapefruit on yellowish green lettuce, with mayonnaise dressing; golden-brown biscuits or yellow cornbread; delmonico ice cream, sunshine or yellow-iced gold cake. The purses may be attached to gold ribbons which lead from the flower centerpiece, in which the purses have been hidden, to the plates of the honor guests.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

F. S. R.—Court proceedings are necessary to garnish anyone's wages for a debt.

S. L. J.—The postman is required to ring the doorbell after depositing the mail in the mail box.

J. S. — You could not now be prosecuted for the threat you made against the boys that annoyed you.

CHICAGO. — We do not think that you could do anything about the landlady that refuses to accept mail for a boarder. The boarder could sue her.

ANXIOUS. — You cannot compel the furniture company to take back the articles you bought. They can refuse to do so and can sue you for the amount still due on your contract.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

ANXIOUS.—Koch Hospital will give your tubercular husband the very best of care and treatment, under proper medical supervision, such as he could not get at home regardless of the willingness of his family to care for him. Your husband's best chance for recovery is in such a hospital.

ANTI-BACILLI.—Visible signs of the disease you mention sometimes appear three weeks after infection and sometimes do not appear for five weeks. There is no fixed time for such appearance. Hard chancre appears, about the size and hardness of a split pea. The skin is not broken, as the chancre is under the skin surface. Your other question does not deserve an answer.

BLUE PAPA.—You will not have to get a second divorce even though you lived with your wife after the original divorce decree was granted.

DINK. — Apply at the Warrant Office in the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets, and tell them about your husband who refuses to support you. He might arrange to do so if he was threatened with arrest for nonsupport.

CONSTANT READER. — You cannot be prosecuted for the overdrawn bank account if you did not know that your last check would make your account overdrawn. You can be sued for the amount of the check if the holder does not want to wait for you to make it good without the trouble of a law suit.

MRS. REE. — You should continue nose and throat treatment with either a private physician or at one of the clinics of the larger hospitals. Proper treatments can only be given when the attending physician makes a thorough examination and study of a case like yours.

R. L. B. — Disease, indigestion, overwork, worry, grief or bad living habits may cause sleepwalking and bad dreams. Correct your general health by diet, exercise, regular hours and keep free from worry and thoughts on the subject. See that your bedroom is well ventilated at night and that your bed is comfortable and that you are well-covered but not too warm.

RELIGIOUS PROGRESS ITSELF IS EVOLUTION, MILLIKAN SAYS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 16.—The history of religion provides one of the most striking possible examples of evolution, Prof. Robert A. Millikan, winner of the Nobel prize in physics in 1923, said yesterday, in a lecture at Yale University.

"Unless the present organizations of religion in the churches can adapt themselves to and keep pace with our continually increasing knowledge, they will be swept aside into the backwash of the current of progress, and some other organization wil be formed to do their work," he declared.

$2000 FOR INJURED WORKMAN

Jury Visits Range Company's Plant Before Returning Verdict.

In order that a jury might obtain first-hand information, Circuit Judge Mix yesterday sent the members to the plant of the Wrought Iron Range Co., 5661 Natural Bridge avenue, to observe conditions under which Jacob Roediger, a former machinist' foreman there, alleged he suffered injuries on which he based a suit for damages.

After inspecting a walk over which the foreman was traversing at the time he was hurt, and about which a conflict of testimony developed, the jury returned and rendered in a verdict of $2000 against the company for Roediger.

MAN SHOT FROM AUTO DIES OF HIS WOUNDS

Syrian Peddler Believed to Be Mistaken Victim in Bootleg Feud.

Kustandy Ajelouny, 35 years old, one of two Syrian linen peddlers who were making a house-to-house canvass in an automobile in University City yesterday when they were shot by three gunmen who swooped down upon them in another automobile, died last night in St. Mary's Hospital of a bullet wound in the head.

His cousin, Louis A. Badrah, 26, shot in the back, will recover.

The police theory is that Ajelouny was mistaken by Cuckoo gangsters for John Giannola, reputed leader of an Italian clique which for several weeks has engaged in a deadly feud with Cuckoo gangsters, who have attempted to exact tribute from bootleggers. Ajelouny strikingly resembled Giannola, according to police. The scene of the shooting was two blocks from 7160 Princeton avenue, where John Giannola and his brother, Vito, live.

Badrah said he and Ajelouny came to St. Louis last Monday and were rooming at 2027 Simpson place. Ajelouny was from Detroit, Badrah from Saginaw, Mich.

HEIR APPARENT TO SPANISH THRONE SAID TO BE INVALID

Hemophile With No Hope of Recovery, Says Hendage Dispatch to Paris Matin.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—A dispatch to the Matin from Hendaye says the Prince of the Asturias, heir apparent to the Spanish throne, is a hemophile, like the late Crown Prince of Russia, and the frequency of his hemorrhages removes all hope for the present of complete recovery of his health.

The dispatch adds that the convalescence of the Prince from his last illness has been very slow, and that he will be obliged to remain absolutely quiet in Pardo Chalet, near Madrid, for some time. This is said to explain why the Prince did not accompany the royal family to Barcelona. The Prince of the Asturias is 19 years old.

The Truth About Storm Damage IN FLORIDA

To the Public:

The Management of the Seaboard Air Line Railway believes it to be a railroad's duty to give those who use its service information respecting the territory traversed by its lines. Controversies that have unfortunately arisen in connection with the recent storm damage in Florida render it especially desirable that the facts be stated.

No agency is better qualified to gather the facts and ascertain conditions within its territory than the organization of a railroad.

The Seaboard Railway is extending its lines from West Palm Beach to Miami (67 miles) and below on the East Coast; to Fort Myers and Naples (100 miles) on the West Coast. Its existing lines traverse seven Southern States from Richmond, Va., to the Gulf, with 1,713 miles in the State of Florida.

It is not necessary here to discuss West Coast storm conditions; the damage to buildings in that territory was comparatively slight, except at Pensacola, which the Seaboard reaches through connections, not by direct lines.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS UNDULY CRITICIZED?

It is regrettable that the good faith of certain public officials in Florida has been questioned by a high official of the American Red Cross because of their statements limiting the storm damage to actual conditions. There is no purpose here to detract from the admirable service performed by the American Red Cross, nor to impede its collection of funds for the storm sufferers. It is unfortunate that calls for money for helping those in distress were not confined to the directions in which relief was required and not leave deductions to be drawn of wholesale ruin or devastation of a city or of a community.

The President of this railroad has had the opportunity to judge of the public spirit of the Governor of Florida; of the Mayor and City Commissioners of Miami, and of public officials of the affected localities; they have earned the confidence of the people of Florida.

Mayor Romfh of Miami and other public officials were required by the very nature of their offices to inform the public of the facts concerning the business, general conditions and the future of their respective communities. This was unfairly characterized as placing "tourist business" above the proper care of those in distress.

First reports coming from the storm area were "greatly exaggerated." This was the expression used by Florida public officials and it was properly used.

THE RAILWAY OFFERS FACILITIES

Upon ascertaining the necessities, the Seaboard Railway offered its entire facilities to the Red Cross, the Governor of Florida, and to all Relief Committees, free of cost, Seaboard wires being kept open to the storm area for their use. The first special Seaboard trains from West Palm Beach to Jacksonville carried 1,400 women and children, other trains carrying doctors, nurses, medical supplies, food and workers, all without charge, to and from the affected area.

Mr. Henry M. Baker, in full charge of Red Cross activities in Florida, stated:

"The American Red Cross has been most appreciative of the generosity and efficiency of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company in handling without cost upon our recommendation and recommendations of local committees free transportation for refugees from the disaster area."

Mr. Neal F. Tyler and Mr. Elliott W. Butts, in charge of transportation for the relief committee at Jacksonville, in a letter to the President of the railway, stated:

"Frankly, it would have been impossible for Jacksonville (transfer point for all lines) to handle these refugees with such quick dispatch to their points of destination had it not been for the fact that the Seaboard officials were the first on the ground in South and Central Florida, where the needs for transportation facilities were most urgent."

The President of this railroad has visited the hurricane area personally, except remote points from which responsible reports are in hand.

THE FACTS

At Miami, Miami Beach and Coral Gables there are approximately: 137 hotels; 1,200 apartment houses; 10,000 places of business, including bank, office and business buildings and stores, and 35,000 to 40,000 dwellings.

Of the hotels damaged, approximately 85% sustained slight damage and all will be in full operation by December 1st; year-round hotels are now in operation.

Of the apartment houses, approximately 75%, mostly now in operation, sustained slight damage and will be repaired by December 1st.

Of places of business, approximately 85%, with substantially all at present in operation, sustained some damage and all repaired by December 15th, excepting a few.

Dwellings of modern permanent construction withstood the storm, sustaining slight or no damage, while buildings of flimsy construction were damaged to the extent of 70%.

Property owned by the City of Miami to the value of $24,813,236 is reported by the authorities as sustaining a damage of only $328,200, or 1.33%.

Of all permanent school buildings in Miami and vicinity, one only was destroyed, classes continuing in the others.

At Hollywood, the three large hotels of modern permanent construction withstood the storm, with more or less damage local to each, two being now in operation and the third—the Beach Hotel—will be in full operation by December 15th. The remaining hotels in the Hollywood district sustained damage and will be in operation about the same period. Apartment houses, places of business and dwellings of modern permanent construction withstood the storm; the damage local to each has been or will be repaired by December 15th. Buildings of flimsy construction sustained severe injury.

At Fort Lauderdale, which in some sections suffered considerably from the storm, it is represented that the damage will be repaired by December 15th and that the damage to structures will average approximately 20% of their total value.

In the intervening territory to Deerfield (25 miles south of West Palm Beach), where buildings were of modern construction, they suffered to the extent of approximately 5%. Repairs will be completed by December 1st.

From Deerfield to West Palm Beach damage to buildings was slight, in many cases none. This applies to West Palm Beach-Palm Beach, to the City of Lake Worth and other places in this area.

At Moorehaven (approximately 800 inhabitants), south of Lake Okeechobee, the damage and loss of life was considerable from the breaking of the levee which was built to protect the town from the rising waters of Lake Okeechobee. A permanent levee should be built by the State, if practicable. Every serious rise of water in Lake Okeechobee has damaged Moorehaven. The overflow inundates a large section of the Everglades south of Moorehaven. The death loss at Moorehaven was approximately 150, nearly one-half of the total deaths of 370 reported by the American Red Cross in the entire storm area.

The State of Florida contains 55,000 square miles. The area affected by the storm covered approximately 495 square miles confined to Southern Florida. A large part of this area was not seriously affected.

Florida's citrus fruit crop, while considerably damaged within the storm area, will equal that of last year, this year's original crop having been much larger.

The storm fell hardest on the poorer classes of the communities. Within the area mentioned there were approximately 125 automobile camps of flimsy construction, without foundations and covered with canvas, in any hard storm subject to damage. The occupants numbered approximately 18,000, mostly non-permanent.

The President of the State Board of Health has announced that there has been no case of communicable disease developed in the storm area attributable to the storm. This effectively answers rumors to the contrary.

REHABILITATION

The progress of the work of rehabilitation has been remarkable. Those who have visited these particular sections of Florida in the past will find before the season opens facilities equal to, if not surpassing, those of 1925; reasonable hotel rates are promised.

At Miami, Florida, October 12, 1926.

The principal streets of Miami and Coral Gables now give little outward evidence of the storm.

Polo, golf, tennis and other amusement grounds will be ready for the coming season, including the Hialeah and other race tracks.

In view of these conditions there was no foundation for such statements as "Miami Wiped Out," "Miami Prostrate," "Miami Destroyed," and like terms applied to other points affected.

Galveston, Texas, suffered a tidal wave and storm damage in 1900 of $30,000,000, with 7,000 lives lost. San Francisco, Santa Barbara, San Jose and other parts of California were visited by earthquakes with great monetary loss. Mexico was recently visited by floods with reputed damage of millions of dollars; Illinois, Oklahoma and parts of the West from Illinois to Nevada have recently suffered severe flood damage. Baltimore, Maryland, suffered from the great fire of 1904 a loss of $135,000,000, wiping out most of the business area. Chicago had its great conflagration. In every instance a better and more prosperous community has resulted. So will it be with Miami, Hollywood, Fort Lauderdale and other parts affected.

SLIGHT DAMAGE TO RAILWAY

The Seaboard's Miami extension from West Palm Beach (67 miles) was nearly all graded at time of storm, mostly laid with ties and rail, largely surfaced from both termini. Twelve canals are crossed, with bridge piers and abutments at canal crossings nearly completed.

Where new earth has been thrown up for construction of grade, many instances three to four feet, on a line traversing the affected territory so great a distance, if there was the "devastation" reported, this grade and line would have been very seriously damaged.

On the contrary, and as a fact, the damage to this construction, including bridge piers and abutments, will not exceed $30,000.

Contractors' houses for labor and in many cases equipment implements were blown down, causing delay, but monetary damage comparatively slight.

A contributing factor in the rehabilitation of the affected territory will be the completion of the Seaboard's Miami extension; every agency is at work for speedy operation of freight trains as construction progresses.

On November 10th, twenty miles of the new line from West Palm Beach will be put in freight train service, with through freight service to Miami by December 15th.

Passenger train service to Miami will be inaugurated during the first week in January.

SEABOARD RAILWAY SERVICE

The Seaboard high-grade seasonal train service will meet the increasing travel to Florida and to all Southern points.

In answer to the many inquiries as to Seaboard service the coming season, it should be stated;

1. The Orange Blossom Special—the Seaboard's crack one night out train—will make its initial trip the coming season on December 6th in two sections, one to West Palm Beach-Palm Beach (connecting with comfortable bus service to Miami), present East Coast terminus (to be later extended to Miami); its companion train (West Coast section) to Tampa and St. Petersburg, both trains leaving New York at the same time.

2. The Seaboard Florida Limited will make its initial trip on January 3rd in two sections—one to the East Coast, and its companion train (West Coast section) to Tampa and St. Petersburg. Both trains leave New York at the same time.

3. The Seaboard All-Florida Special will make its initial trip on November 2nd.

All these trains are in addition to the all-year-round and other service.

Florida—the world's winter playground—with its unmatched climate, its fertile soil which has no superior, the length of the seasons, its freedom from the rigors of winters, will continue to prosper and grow, and the area affected by this storm will take on a new aspect, profiting by the experience gained.

S. DAVIES WARFIELD, President,
Seaboard Air Line Railway.

FREIGHT RATES ON COAL HIGHER IN OHIO THAN HERE

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Agent So Testifies in Interstate Commerce Commission Hearing.

LOWER RATE WOULD HURT COAL ROADS

Western Kentucky Operator Testifies His Company Has Lost Virtually All of Its East St. Louis Business

A comparison of freight rates for shipment of coal from Ohio mines to industrial centers in that State with rates from nearby Illinois mines to St. Louis was drawn yesterday at the hearing at Hotel Jefferson before Special Examiner Arthur Kettler of the Interstate Commerce Commission in an effort by the railroad companies to show that rates to St. Louis are not excessive.

The witness making the comparison was J. A. Sherman of Cincinnati, freight agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. His testimony was offered in support of the railroad's attack before the Interstate Commerce Commission on a decision last February of the Illinois Commerce Commission ordering rates from the two divisions of Group 2 zoning district, which embraces all mines within a 20-mile radius of East St. Louis, reduced in a range from 11 to 21 cents a ton.

The rate of $1.16 a ton to St. Louis from Group 2 mines was not affected by the State Commission's decision, but in the present hearing the City of St. Louis, the Chamber of Commerce, coal operators and civic associations are asking that the St. Louis rate be reduced to restore the former arbitrary bridge differential of 25 cents a ton to replace the present maximum bridge differential of 46 cents a ton.

Ohio Rates Are Higher.

Sherman introduced exhibits showing that coal rates to virtually every Ohio industrial center are more than those now in effect to St. Louis.

Cleveland, a city of slightly greater population than St. Louis and with a similar industrial situation, pays a freight rate of $1.74 a ton on coal shipped an average distance of 141.8 miles, the witness testified.

After asserting that Cleveland has no such transportation problem as St. Louis, where the coal has to move through one industrial center and across a great river to reach St. Louis, Sherman said: "The City of St. Louis does not know when it is well off."

Extended cross-examination of Sherman was deferred until Monday, when the hearings will be resumed, to give counsel an opportunity to study his exhibits carefully. Cross-examination of Edward Clemens, traffic manager of the Terminal Railroad Association, who testified concerning operations of the Terminal Association, also was postponed until Monday.

Coal Roads Would Lose.

E. L. Bodge, traffic manager of the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad, testified that revenue of his railroad company would be reduced $37,005.42 annually if rates to St. Louis were reduced sufficiently to restore the 25-cent bridge differential. Such a loss in revenue would reduce the railroad company's annual earnings to 2 per cent on its investment, he declared. Similar testimony was given by H. Tietze, general freight agent of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad, concerning his railroad.

Yesterday's hearing was concluded with the testimony of Brent Hart of the Hart Coal Corporation, operators of four mines having a daily output of 4000 tons in Western Kentucky. Hart testified that establishment of the division in Group 2 mines has caused his company to lose virtually all its business in East St. Louis.

Western Kentucky coal operators are represented by counsel at the hearing and are opposing a reduction in coal rates of St. Louis and other St. Louis from Illinois mines.

New Traces of Franklin Arctic Expedition Found

Skull of White Man and Scraps of Cloth and Leather Bear Mute Evidence of Tragic Deaths.

ARCTIC—2-12—Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EDMONTON, Alberta, Oct. 16.—Seventy-eight years ago a group of weary, scurvy-ravaged skeletons of men dragging upon a heavy sled a large whale boat toiled from the snow-swept reaches of King Williams Land in the Western Arctic across the ice of Simpson Strait, toward the estuary of Great Fish River on the Arctic mainland.

"They fell down and died as they walked," said an old Eskimo woman in describing the tragic journey. "And as they fell they were left. Not a man of them was ever again seen alive. Not a solitary survivor of that grim march ever reached the mainland toward which they were struggling.

"This pitiful handful were the survivors of that body of 105 officers and men of the Franklin expetition, which, in 1845 left England to discover that goal of all Arctic explorers, the northwest passage from Baffin Bay to Bering Strait and the Pacific. Their leader, Sir John Franklin, and 15 of the crew, dead a year, their stout ships, Erebus and Terror, stove in by ice at sea off the west coast of King Williams Land, themselves weakened by three winters spent in the rigors of the Arctic, the survivors set forth toward the mainland and the outposts of the Hudson's Bay.

Records Found in 1860.

They did not know it, but they were the conquerors, even in death they had found their goal, the northwest passage, or as one writer put it, they had forged the last link of the Northwest Passage with their lives.

Twelve years later, in 1860, Sir Leopold McClintock in Lady Franklin's relief ship, "Fox," found with skeletons a complete record of the fate of the 129 explorers who left England in the summer of 1845 to leave their bones to bleach amid the ice of the Western Arctic.

And now in the summer of 1926 further relics have come to light. A skull, fragments of navy cloth, a piece of shoe leather and a piece of oak from an ice sled, picked up by a trader, Pete Norberg, at Thunder Cove, Adelaide peninsula, 10 miles across Simpson Strait from King Williams Land, off whose northern point the "Erebus" and "Terror" were abandoned 78 years ago.

J. M. Moran, inspector for the Northwest territories and Yukon branch of the Canadian Government, brought back these latest Franklin relics, for there is little reason to question that such they are—on his return from Aklavik, in the Mackenzie delta to Edmonton a few days ago.

Teeth of Skull Missing.

Medical men and anthropologists have examined the skull and pronounced it to be that of a white man. All the teeth save one molar are absent from the skull and the jaw bone is pitted as though with scurvy.

The navy cloth is faded and stained from contact with seawater and from long exposure to the elements, but is cloth of the type used for generations in making the uniforms of British seamen.

The piece of oak is apparently part of a rib from a snow sled shaped and cut off at one end with a saw. The strip of leather is evidently part of a white man's shoe.

Finally the relics themselves lends color to the theory that these are relics of that tragic battle against hunger, cold and exposure, which ended in death on the inhospitable rocks of King Williams land or on the ice of Simpson Strait as the last survivors dropped the frozen traces from their bloodless hands and laid themselves down to await the mercy of death.

Relics Taken to Ottawa.

Thunder Cove on Adelaide peninsula, is almost in the direct line which the men would take as they followed the West coast of King Williams land southward to Simpson Strait and headed south and east toward the estuary of great Fish River.

This skull, if it is that of one of the Franklin survivors, must be that of one of the last of that pitiful band of stragglers, for it has evidently been swept up into Thunder Cove on the mainland from its first grave in the waters of Simpson Strait, showing that it belonged to one of the few men who saw, across the dim vista of the ice that mainland which they were never to reach.

The relics are being taken by Moran to Ottawa where after examination it is probable that they will be deposited in the museum at the capital.

POINCARE TO DELAY DEBT RATIFICATION

Change in Policy Due to Report That U. S. Will Not Accept Reservations.

A Staff Corerpondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World) and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Premier Poincare is no longer preparing to bring up the uqestion of war debt ratification as soon as Parliament reconvenes. His ardor for ratification has been cooled by information he has received that ratification with reservations, no matter in what form, will not be considered ratification in Washington.

This being the case, it is beginning to look to him as if it were hardly worth while to risk the fall of the Government to accomplish a deed which may in itself prove serious for France's credit abroad. It is better, perhaps, to avoid the issue.

But successfully to delay ratification—to delay it indefinitely without giving France's credit such a blow that it will smash the franc—France must herself be in a less assailable position than she has been for months; and it is Poincare's present effort to accomplish this.

As Minister of Finance he paid back to the Bank of France yesterday the 650,000,000 francs borrowed from the Morgan credit fund during the July crisis, giving the bank again a $100,000,000 fund to resist attacks on the franc; and the bank has further funds which it is holding in reserve for the same purpose. Gold and silver of half billion francs also have been bought from the public by the bank on Government order.

The 1927 budget is ready to go before Parliament when it assembles Nov. 4 and the Government will be able to show that tax collecting is active and the 1926 budget is balanced in fact.

These facts are being made much of by newspapers friendly to the Government. France, it is claimed, does not need foreign credit. As ratification of the war debt accord and American credit have been linked for months, this is the same as saying France does not need ratification—France can afford not to ratify the Mellon-Berenger pact and see what comes of it.

WHOLESALE PRICES SHOW SLIGHT GAIN IN SEPTEMBER

Ore 5¾ Per Cent Lower, However, Than in September, 1925—Farm Products Higher.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Wholesale prices in September averaged slightly higher than in August, the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Commerce announced today.

The bureau's weighted index number, which includes 404 commodities, registered 150.5 for September, compared with 149.2 for the previous month. Compared with September, 1925, however, there was a decrease of 5¾ per cent.

Farm products in general were 2 1-3 per cent higher than in August, due mainly to advances in cattle, hogs, eggs, hides and wool. Smaller increases also were recorded for foods, clothing materials, fuels, metals and building materials. House furnishings and miscellaneous commodities were lower than in August. Of the 404 commodities, increases over the August figures were shown in 122 instances, and decreases in 98. No change was reported in 184.

WEDDING OCCASIONS AMNESTY

Belgium to Offer Special Pardons When Prince Weds.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 16.—The marriage of Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium and Princess Astrid of Sweden in Stockholm, the date for which has been advanced to Nov. 3, will be made the occasion of a special amnesty in Belgium, it is learned in court circles. The Belgian royal family will embark Oct. 30 on the steamer Marie Josef for Gothenburg, from which a special train will convey them to Stockholm for the civil ceremony.

Stockholm dispatches earlier this week said that, after the civil ceremony, the royal wedding party would leave for Belgium on the Swedish warship Fylgia and that Nov. 10 there would be a religious wedding service in Brussels, probably a double one, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, in order to meet the religious preferences of the Prince and Princess.

PLAN TO AROUSE PUBLIC INTEREST FOR SYMPHONY

Civic Leaders of St. Louis at Luncheon Meeting Declare Every Seat at Concerts Must Be Filled.

WOMEN TO AID BY SELLING TICKETS

Will Canvass Entire City in Effort to Popularize Orchestra Before Season Opens.

Confronted point-blank with the announced necessity of "saving the Symphony Orchestra or letting it go," a group of 115 men and women, representing nearly as many civic organizations, yesterday indicated the orchestra must be retained and encouraged as a cultural and civic asset of the community.

The meeting, at luncheon at Hotel Statler, was called by a group of leaders in the Symphony Society, the invitations simply referring to "a matter of importance to St. Louis" and saying, "This is an effort to ascertain and unite the best opinion of the city." Names signed to this indicated the purpose; they were John A. Bush, Martin J. Collins, J. Lionberger Davis, Lou's H. Egan, Thomas W. Garland, Henry Kiel, George D. Markham, Frank H. Mayfield, Carl F. G. Meyer, Mayor Miller, H. J. Pettengill, Paul J. Wielandy and F. W. A. Vesper.

It isn't money so much as general public interest that is needed by the Symphony. It has a considerable deficit each year, but guarantors take care of that. Something more vital is involved. As explained at the meeting the musicians cannot do their best when rows of empty seats echo their harmonies and the hall is only partly filled by a limited group of enthusiasts.

If the people want it assurance was given the orchestra will survive, and the question, it seems, is really whether the organization is to be saved from indifference of the public.

Chief among the results of the gathering was the agreement of those present to ask the societies they represent to consider what shall be done by St. Louisans for the welfare of the Symphony and what part each group shall play. In addition 25 of the men who were at the luncheon will be chosen as a committee of civic leaders to support the orchestra.

The existing Women's Committee reported a plan decided on earlier in the day for enlisting aid of all women of the city in selling tickets to fill all the seats. Women to be called on by this committee, and those present yesterday, will join in another luncheon at the same hotel next Friday.

It was in similar fashion that the community planned the $87,000,000 bond issue of 1923, by calling on leaders of organizations to discuss civic needs and how to meet them, speakers recalled. Markham, a vice president of the Symphony Society, referred to the spirit aroused here by the Cardinals' baseball victory and said it was desired to tap that same reservoir of interest for the orchestra. Mere deficit, he said, was no sign of failure. The trouble, he added, lies in the apparent low appraisal of the Symphony by the public.

Urges Organization.

Davis, another vice president, said the orchestra had outgrown control of the limited group. It should be determined, he suggested, whether the orchestra measures up to American standards or can be brought up to them.

"Difficulty with the Symphony," said former Mayor Kiel, "is that the only time we discuss it is when it's in trouble. I believe if it was organized like the Municipal Opera or the Veiled Prophet it would be better off. The Symphony advertises St. Louis and is a part of it, and we cannot afford to let it pass out of existence. Let us formulate some sort of comprehensive plan and bring in the masses, so we can all become boosters. We complain about the concert attendance; the trouble is the city doesn't know enough about them. Our job is to make them as popular as we can."

Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe of the Women's Committee praised the members of the orchestra and Rudolph Ganz, the conductor, declaring no other leader could get the response from children that he does in the special juvenile concerts. Vesper declared St. Louis had considered the Symphony too much "an accepted proposition." Wielandy said the failure seemed to lie in the publicity end, and declared North St. Louis, for one section, wants the orchestra.

Many Offer to Aid.

Representatives of the Advertising Club and Junior Chamber of Commerce offered to help in the publicity, the latter remarking that the "average citizen looks on the orchestra as high brow." Franz A. Cramer of the Associated Retailers declared his organization would back the Symphony. Every man in the gathering arose to signify that they, like the women, wanted to keep up the orchestra.

The orchestra costs about $207,000 a year and its income is about $92,000. The deficit of $115,000 is met by 1400 guarantors, who give from a few dollars each up to the $10,000 of one woman.

"I am overjoyed at the number of welcoming telegrams received upon my arrival in this country. I am anxious indeed to get back to work and begin rehearsals for what I expect to be the finest Symphony season St. Louis has ever had, plus a personnel in the orchestra that seems even better blended than before. May an added thousands of St. Louis music lovers come and hear us and learn to love our work—that is a vital, I dare say, a cardinal question for us. St. Louis gets more Symphony concerts than any city of its size in the United States. We will win through sheer merit."

Carmi Thompson Visits Pekin.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Oct. 16.—Carmi A. Thompson, who recently completed an economic survey of the Philippines for President Coolidge, arrived here yesterday with Mrs. Thompson. The envoy said the visit here was simply for pleasure and relaxation. After a few days' stay, he and Mrs. Thompson will proceed to Japan, en route to Seattle.

Design of Proposed Subway and Two-Block Plaza on North Side of Union Station

Lower Level of Two-Deck Street Would Be Present Market Street—Decorative Scheme Includes Pools.

The accompanying diagram is the lower level or subway of a double-deck street plan in front of Union Station, proposed by Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission, in conjunction with a suggested treatment of the plaza to be created in the two blocks opposite the station from bond issue funds.

The first step of the plan would be razing the buildings in the two blocks opposite the station, bounded by Eighteenth and Twentieth streets, Market and Chestnut streets. On the ground thus vacated, it is proposed to create two parking areas. That contiguous to Twentieth street would be reserved for taxicabs. About 100 could be parked there. The area contiguous to Eighteenth street would be for the parking of private automobiles.

Market street would remain undisturbed, except that possibly its street cars would be lowered a trifle to make way for a platform extending over them from the main entrance to the station—a mezzanine floor by which passengers to and from the first floor waiting room of the station could cross to taxicabs and private automobiles or to board street cars, on the north side of the street.

Deep Valley in Street.

Market street, in its present contour, has virtually the same elevation at Eighteenth and Twentieth streets. The surface of the street, in the intervening two blocks dips into a sharp valley. It is proposed to cover this valley over with a platform extending from the second floor of Union Station—on the same level with the second floor waiting room—north over Market street to Chestnut street and bounded on the east by Eighteenth street and the west by Twentieth street.

This platform would fit level with the present land grades at both Eighteenth and Chestnut streets. On Chestnut street, it would be, in spots, as high as 10 feet above the street and the platform on its north side hence would terminate in a stone wall on the south side of Chestnut street.

It is proposed to carry a widened Market street over this platform, making it virtually a level street in that vicinity and to reserve it for through vehicular traffic. Traffic to and from Union Station would descend to the present Market street at Eighteenth street and a short distance west of Twentieth street. It is asserted that this would be an effectual separation of traffic that would remove the present automobile snarl about the station.

Pools and Fountains.

That portion of the platform covering the two blocks cleared by the razing of present buildings would be converted into the plaza, as provided in the bond issue. It cannot be sodded to grow grass and trees, however, so the treatment proposed is formal, pools, fountains, urns and a flagging of ornamental tile in decorative designs.

The plaza thus would be reached from the east and west on the same level with the surrounding territory. To be reached from the north it would be necessary to ascend a short flight of stairs on the south side of Chestnut street opposite Nineteenth street.

Chief benefits asserted for the plan are the separation of through traffic on widened Market street, from that going to and from the station, and the convenience to travelers who would be able to reach the station and depart from it without getting out into the weather.

Cost is estimated at $1,289,000. The bond issue provided only for the condemnation of the plaza site. Improvements must be provided in further appropriations. The City Plan Commission has made the plan a special order for its next meeting. If it is approved, it will be submitted to the Board of Public Service. It then would go to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the Citizens' Bond Supervisory Committee and last, to the Board of Aldermen.

EARL OF STRATHMORE INCORPORATES HIS ESTATE

Converts Holdings Into Limited Company to Evade Taxes and Death Dues in England.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Earl of Strathmore, father of the Duchess of York, like the Duke of Devonshire and other great landed peers, is converting his vast estates into a limited liability company so as to be able to deduct the expenses of carrying the estate from his income tax and to avoid the payment of death dues.

The property of the Duke includes the famous haunted Glamis Castle in Scotland, which occupies the site where by legend Macbeth murdered Duncan, King of Scotland. The Prince of Wales recently visited Glamis Castle and is said to have been disappointed because the ghosts failed to materialize for him.

The Duke of Strathmore owns about 24,700 acres.

45 HURT IN STRIKE FIGHT

Three Women Among Injured in Attack in England.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A dozen policemen, 30 miners and three women were injured seriously in a fight resulting from an attack yesterday upon the Glyncymmer colliery, near Port Talbot, South Wales, by 700 strikers.

The strikers were attempting to prevent a few nonstrikers from continuing work.

MARINES TO GUARD MAIL TILL POSTAL FORCE IS FORMED

Postmaster-General to Ask Congress for Money to Organize Special Defense Body.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—United States marines are to be used to guard the mails pending organization of a new and larger armed force by the Postoffice Department.

As a result of recent mail robberies, including that at Elizabeth, N. J., marines will be assigned at once to railway terminals, postal cars and mail trucks transporting valuable registered mail.

As soon as Congress convenes in December, Postmaster-General New will ask for a special appropriation to meet the needs for a more effective guard than can be furnished under present budget assignments.

The Postmaster-General also has ordered that new specifications for railway mail cars be prepared at once. The cars will be built by the Government and leased to the railroads and will be designed with a view to effective protection of the mail and postal employes from bandit attacks.

In addition, a large number of armored trucks are to be built for the Postoffice Department at once.

The decision to use marines in the present emergency was reached at a conference between the Postmaster-General and Major-General Lejeune, commandant of the Marine Corps.

COURT BREAKS JURY "STRIKE" WITH BREAD AND WATER DIET

Kansas City, Kan., Jurors Decide Not to Withhold Verdict for Fees.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kansas, Oct. 16. Bread and water as a diet for recalcitrant jurors was tried out here yesterday.

After one such meal and further reflection, the five jurors decided not to come back today for more bread and water which Municipal Judge Don C. Combs had promised them would be their fare if they failed to return a verdict in a case involving a charge of disturbing the peace. The jurors returned a verdict of not guilty with a finding of malicious prosecution.

A question of fees caused the conflict between the Judge and the jury, two members of which were young lawyers. The jurors announced yesterday morning that they had a verdict but wanted their fees of $1 each before returning it.

Judge Combs wouldn't discuss fees. He sent the jurors to the jury room where at noon they were served a bucket of water and a loaf of bread at the court's direction. The jurors concluded finally that they had no legal ground for demanding spot cash fees, explaining that the verdict rendered made the plaintiff, a Negro woman, liable for the court costs and jury fees. They knew she didn't have the money to pay, and in as much as they were compelled to serve on the jury, they wanted their fees just as a matter of principle.

Mr. McFadden, who was well known as a philanthropist, was head of the cotton brokerage firm of George H. McFadden & Bro., which he founded in 1868. He was a partner in cotton firms in Liverpool, England, and other European cities. He was also a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

WELLS DEFENDS HAWES' RECORD ON POLICE BOARD

Former Mayor, in Address to Women's Organization, Calls Senator Williams' Attack Malicious.

TRIAL PROVED BOTH SIDES AT FAULT

Justifies His Own Votes Against Conviction of Kiely Because Facts Didn't Warrant It.

Rolla Wells, receiver of the United Railways Co. and former Mayor, warmly commended Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, in a speech before a group of Democratic women at Hotel Jefferson yesterday afternoon. The occasion was a meeting held to organize a women's Hawes-for-Senator Club.

Former Mayor Wells went back to the period, touched upon by Senator Williams in his Cape Girardeau speech last week, when Hawes was president of the St. Louis Police Board. Williams attacked Hawes' official record, and cited an assault made upon him, Williams, at a polling place in 1902. He charged that a false police report of that affair was made, by order of Chief of Police Kiely, Hawes being then head of the board, and that the succeeding Police Board removed Kiely on this and other grounds.

Defends Board Action.

Wells said that he, as Mayor, was a member of the Police Board in 1902. "An investigation was held," he said as to the Williams incident. "We found no tangible evidence that warranted action. We found that there were disturbances on the part of the followers of both factions. Mr. Hawes, president of the Police Board, was no more responsible for what may or may not have happened at that polling place than I, or any other good citizen. After a lapse of 24 years, I consider it unfair and unbecoming to resurrect this incident.

"I was a member of the board that tried Chief Kiely. I defy any unbiased person who will read the transcript of the trial to point out any evidence that justified his removal. I am happy to say I voted No as to conviction on all the charges. The board, in my judgment, viewed the matter through a political window. Kiely was a good policeman, and the board, which had the right to select another chief if it wished, should have permitted him to resign and accept a captaincy, instead of forcing him to trial and removing him."

Calls Attack Malicious.

Wells told of the leading part taken by Hawes in electing him to the office of Mayor in 1901, and said that, after his inauguration, he spoke to Hawes, acknowledging his effective service, and asking him, "What do you want?" Hawes, he said, replied, "I only want one thing, and that is for you to make your administration a success." In 1905, Wells said, when a number of political leaders opposed him, Hawes worked hard and successfully for his re-election.

"To go back 25 years and attack Mr. Hawes," Wells said, "and to assert that he did not stand for law and order and good government, is not only inopportune, but malicious and misleading."

He told of the pilgrimage of the Jefferson Club, conducted by Hawes, its president, to the home of Thomas Jefferson in Virginia, in 1901, and of the address made by Hawes on that occasion, as an inspiring tribute.

GERMANY ELATED AT VOTE OF PROVINCES GIVEN BELGIUM

Berlin Considers Result Justification of Campaign for Restoration of Area.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World) and Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The German Foreign Office is jubilant over the result of the local elections in the former German districts of Eupen and Malmedy. It is considered by officials here as the first "free" vote which the inhabitants of that territory have been able to register since it went to Belgium under the treaty of Versailles.

The fact that out of the local officials elected, 235 are German and only 35 are Belgian, is considered here as justification for the German campaign for return of Eupen and Malmedy to Germany. Berlin papers claim that this vote amounts to a plebiscite of the inhabitants on the question of their future national allegiance, pointing out that the original vote taken on that issue, which favored Belgium, was given under threat of expulsion of those voting for Germany and consequent confiscation of their property.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Night and Day Bank Payments.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE statement recently made, of the amount paid depositors of the Night and Day Bank, as being 60 per cent, is wrong.

So far only two payments have been made, the first 50 per cent and the second, 5 per cent. It seems to me, that if it is necessary for a bill to be passed by the Missouri Legislature, to reimburse the depositors for the amount stolen by Mr. Ross, who was an appointee of the State Finance Commissioner, then the member who is the author of that bill, would certainly make a name for himself, with the thousands of depositors of the Night and Day Bank. On entering that bank, I noticed on the left wall, a large shield of the State Seal, surrounded with the words, "This bank is protected by the strong arm of the State of Missouri."

This statement in itself was a strong inducement to every depositor that his money was protected by law. The State cannot be sued, but every employer can be sued, for the actions of his employes. Every bank receives a charter from the State Finance Commissioner, before it can lawfully do business, and is under the surveillance of that State officer. If the State fails to insist on its rules being obeyed, then common sense would naturally say, that the State is liable for the misdeeds of its own officers. Possibly 90 per cent of the depositors of that bank, were working people, and not able to employ lawyers to fight for their rights, but the State allows its affairs to dwindle along till its assets are eaten up by fees and expenses, so it needs a champion of the people, to get through the next Legislature a bill to pay the depositors back the money stolen by one of its own appointees. DEPOSITOR.

Don't Want to Lose Sisler.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SINCE there appears to be an uncertainty regarding the retaining of George Sisler on our Browns, I want to state emphatically that the loss to us of George Sisler is unthinkable.

To lose a cleancut player, as he is, would be an irreparable loss to the club and the city. A player of such caliber stands alone in the baseball field, and owing to his great prominence has put St. Louis in the front rank as possessing the most valuable player in the country. Any club would pay a big price for him and he would again duplicate his past performances, which made the fans "sit up and take notice" and cheer him throughout the continent. His name is a by-word among all people, when accomplishment and sincerity of purpose are mentioned. As an ardent fan and admirer of our Browns for many years, I will say that the Browns without Sisler would excite no attention whatsoever; but be just "a dead club." Those who know the inside circumstances know very well that Sisler was manager in name only, not in fact, and could not accomplish the result that he anticipated without interference from the owners.

Mr. Phil Ball knows that he can get a good price for a player of such outstanding qualities, but if he follows that course there will be nothing more to our Browns.

PORTER BILLINGS.

What Everybody Does Not Know.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AS everybody knows, George Washington is Mr. Coolidge's favorite historical character. He confided this fact to Bruce Barton recently and elaborated on it in these words:

Washington had that rare combination of a great soldier, a great statesman a great patriot and a great character. A careful study of all his life makes it difficult to come to any other conclusion than that you can pronounce it all good.

As everybody knows, Rupert Hughes has just written a book about Washington in which he says that Mr. Coolidge's favorite historical character was a past master of dancing, drinking, gambling, polite and exquisite flirtation, that Washington was in love with Sally Fairfax, another man's wife, and that he married Martha Custis for her money.

What everybody does not know is whether or not Mr. Coolidge, in making his "careful study" of Washington's life, came across these items and included them in his appraisal. If he did not, is Washington still his favorite historical character? Can Mr. Coolidge forgive his favorite historical character for lapses hardly in keeping with a strict New England view of things?

"Hornsby Drive.."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN WEDNESDAY'S edition of your paper was a letter from "An Old Subscriber" suggesting that the new Olive street parkway be named "Hornsby Drive." That is the best suggestion I have ever seen in the People's Column of your paper. I heartily agree with the author, and know that your paper, which always supports the right issue, will make the city of St. Louis listen to thousands of concurring fans, and name the new thoroughfare Hornsby Drive.

"WASHINGTON U. FRESHMAN."

THAT HAWES RECORD.

Former Mayor Rolla Wells, one of the best Mayors St. Louis ever had in point of honesty, efficiency and general public service, spoke from the shoulder to a meeting of 200 women at the Jefferson Hotel in reply to the vicious charges made against Hawes by Senator Williams and his political lieutenants. We said that Mr. Wells was one of the best Mayors, but we are inclined to think he would take first place in a popular referendum.

Mayor Wells was elected under the leadership of Harry B. Hawes, and he himself testifies convincingly of the purpose for which Mr. Hawes sought his nomination and election. He tells of a conversation he had with Mr. Hawes after his election as Mayor. He said that he sent for Mr. Hawes, who had not spoken to him about his administration, and saying that he was elected under pledges to serve the people, without obligation to anyone, he asked Mr. Hawes what he wanted. Mr. Hawes replied: "Mr. Mayor, I only want one thing, and that is for you to make your administration a success."

This reply doesn't indicate that Mr. Hawes used his power for spoils or graft or corruption. In fact, every man elected during his leadership, most of them high-class men, can give similar testimony. They were given entire freedom to serve the public, without dictation from their party organization.

The leadership of the Democratic organization in St. Louis was undertaken by Mr. Hawes in the stormy days of local politics. With the corrupt power of Boss Butler, on the Democratic side, and Boss Pohlman, on the Republican side, they were days of graft, corruption and ballot-box stuffing. Mr. Hawes made mistakes, but who in such a position has not? What President of the Police Board has escaped newspaper criticism? What leader of a party has escaped newspaper denunciation? It is to the credit of Mr. Hawes that he fought and whipped the Butler forces in his own party, and that he fought and whipped the corrupt bosses in the Republican party.

It is to the everlasting credit of Mr. Hawes that during this period of rampant corruption and political trickery he put on the Democratic ticket and elected some of the best men that have been elected to office in the city of St. Louis. Mayor Wells was one of them. Joseph W. Folk, who as Circuit Attorney, uncovered the mess of boodle corruption in St. Louis, without a word of protest or an effort to stop him from Mr. Hawes, was another. St. Louis has never had the equal of the judges elected to the Circuit bench during Mr. Hawes' leadership.

The Post-Dispatch at times criticised Mr. Hawes' direction of the police force, but we did not find him, in the days of the worst corruption, corrupt. The men who are assailing him now cannot point to a single charge of corruption that stayed at his door. The fact that the best they can do is to assail him because Senator Williams, 25 years ago, was slugged in a fight between the bosses at a voting precinct, is a compliment to Mr. Hawes' own personal character and his record as a Democratic leader at that time.

Mr. Oliver T. Remmers, chairman of the Republican City Committee, whose political utterances with regard to Mr. Hawes are untainted by any regard for honor or veracity, and his associates, can find nothing against Mr. Hawes except the old bump that was raised on Senator Williams' head in a political scrap with which Mr. Hawes personally had nothing to do. They do not mention the Republican corruption that existed in those days. They say nothing about the corrupt reign of Ziegenhein, nor the graft and boodle that prevailed before Mr. Hawes came into leadership. If there is any blacker record than that of the Republican leaders just before Mr. Hawes came into power and rescued the city from the worst of the Republicans and the worst of the Democrats, we do not know it. Remmers and his fellow wielders of the tar stick do not peep about that.

The sound measure of Mr. Hawes' record as Democratic leader is found in the men he helped to elect to office, and the excellent work they did for the public welfare.

GANZ AND THE CARDINALS.

Rudolph Ganz, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, was on the Atlantic when the Cardinals won the deciding game in the world series. He felt at sea the thrill we all felt ashore, and is now composing a Cardinal march.

Why not make it a symphony, Mr. Ganz? Did ever composer have an opportunity quite like it! Let us consider for a moment the architecture of such a composition. Say it is a symphony in the customary four movements, as follows:

First movement (allegro): The Cardinals begin their slow march to the pennant. They open the season by losing to the Browns in the spring series, and are given by almost no one a chance to finish better than one of the minor places in first division. Nevertheless, there rolls up from deep down somewhere in the horns the resolution of the Cardinals. They mean to win. The movement closes with the interpolation of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," this theme ringing resolutely from a full orchestra.

Second Movement (scherzo): The movement opens with a trio. Hornsby (first violins), Alexander (harps) and Southworth (French horns) join in the ecstatic vision of a pennant through reconstruction. This beautiful song, pregnant with new birth and the expectancy of resurrection, is followed by a crashing symbolization, drums, reeds, brasses, bells, etc., illustrating what the Cardinals will do to them if they ever get this combination under way.

Third Movement (andante): This movement opens with the Cardinals fighting for first place. The music is grim, slow, unstable. It is now loud, now soft. The Cardinals are in the lead. They are second. Loud wails from the saxophones—they are third. The drummer dumps a quart of sand on the drumheads. He scruffles, scruffles. The movement is accelerated. The Cardinals are coming ahead again. They win the little world series from Pittsburg. They take a double-header from Chicago. They go to meet Cincinnati, Boston, Philadelphia, New York. Shrieks from the flutes, piccolos, clarinets. The Cardinals win.

Fourth Movement (allegro): The movement opens brilliantly, with the Cardinals in the world series. It falls upon sadness. They lose the first game. It rises with the lark. They win the second. So, alternately rising, falling, it comes to the last game, the drummer meanwhile having struck three heavy booms for Ruth's home runs. The last game goes to a breathless crisis. Another boom for Babe. At last the bases are full of Yanks, two out, and Haines is done. Hornsby lifts his right arm, and out of the pen comes Alexander the Great. The movement swings from the agonies of a fevered orchestra into the ponderous measure of a march. What a march it is. Far, far away, is the advancing figure of Alexander. With each stride the basses and the drums boom, with each step drawing him nearer the hush of the violins mounts upward like a breeze rising upon deadly calm. The earth shakes as Alexander advances to the box. The tympanum quavers—a hush falls upon the orchestra. Alexander has begun to pitch. Back and forth runs the rippling music rising among the eager reeds. Then bedlam everywhere, from the least wood to the mightiest brass. He struck Lazzeri out! So on tremulously but confidently to the last. Then the final crash. Ruth is caught stealing. The game is over. A paean breaks forth. The Cardinals win! The movement closes with woods, winds, guts, kettles, steels all joining lustily in the theme, "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

There you are, Mr. Ganz. A Cardinal symphony. Think of Tchaikowsky, Haydn, Brahms. Not one of them had an inspiration like this.

THE COUNTY IS INVITED.

It is in the best spirit of the annexation movement that the St. Louis Board of Aldermen invites the county to merge with the city.

There are no neighborhood quarrels in that invitation, no blasts of birdshot in a common emergency. The invitation sticks to the needs of St. Louis as a big American city which has outgrown its bounds and must have the county into which to expand. There is some enumeration of benefits the county would get out of it, but in the main it confines itself to the theory that St. Louis County is inseparably bound up with the welfare of St. Louis.

If the people of the county will close their ears to all things else and read that invitation just before they go to the polls on October 26, annexation will carry. If they prefer to those broad and progressive arguments the dying wails of county politicians and the tearful entreaties of small towns that do not want to give up their pastoral existence for the good of the community, the cause is lost.

At any rate, lost or won, the campaign has achieved the distinction and politeness of an official invitation. The county is invited. It is officially offered the helpful hand of a great city which can do for it what has been done to make the city itself good to live in. We cannot have the advantages of city life, with its manifold blessings and charities, its arts and its sciences, its security and its beauty, without giving up for them something less than these are.

The county is asked to do that. There is no question but some of those things are dear to it. Everybody must respect them and understand the reluctance of the county to sacrifice them to a common cause. But there is no other way. Will the county do it, or must we go on divided half city and half town, until a better wisdom prevails?

POLICE PENSION AND WAGES.

The Post-Dispatch has received letters from readers, protesting against pensions for the police, on the ground that policemen enjoy what, to some ill-paid workers, is a good salary, and have certain small perquisites.

The tenor of these protests may be summed up in the sentence: "There are a great many workers who get less than policemen in wages, and enjoy no privileges."

That is the voice of envy. And it is a foolishly shortsighted view to take of the wage problem generally. To endeavor to cut down one man's salary or wages merely because he gets more than another would, if successful, bring all down to the lowest level. The wise worker rejoices to see those who can earn big wages. He knows that his effort should be directed towards increasing his own efficiency and earning better pay.

The police, in addition to long, tedious hours on duty, are called upon to risk their lives for the safety of the community. Retirement is inevitable. That alone is a sufficient answer to every protest against the pension proposition.

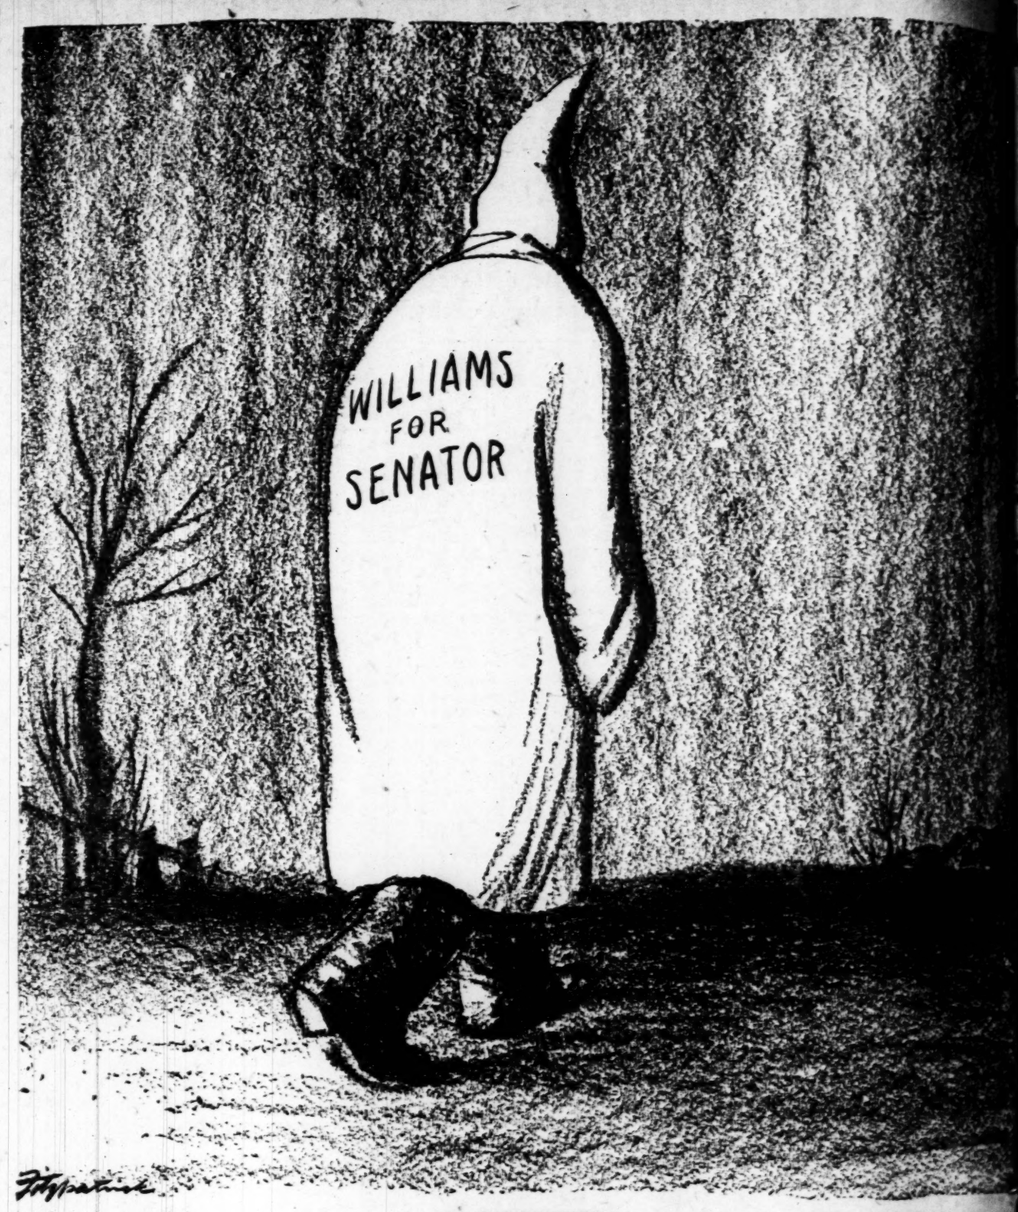

Other American dishes which Queen Marie will be interested in are Hungarian goulash, German fried potatoes, chop suey, French pastry, wiener schnitzel and roast beef a la Yorkshire.

NEW JERSEY'S LEOPARD.

When that Indian leopard escaped from Twin Brook Zoo, he had no road map to guide him through New Jersey, and his spots prevented him from traveling incognito, yet somehow he managed to make his way to the best place for a leopard to frolic in a state whose only man-eating denizens heretofore have been skeeters, namely to the environs of Barnegat Bay and the wilderness of sand and pinoak. New Jersey's crowded countryside is not an ideal place for a leopard, but he made the best of it. Of course, he might have taken the Sandy Hook ferry and crossed over to lower New York to mingle with the wolves of Wall Street; but he probably had doubts about his ability to hold his own there. Again, he might have gone northwest toward Jenny Jump mountain and the Kittatinnies, but that would mean passing near the deadly Phillips farm in New Brunswick. His own judgment was best as is proved by the fact that he has been at large since July and has only just been shot at Seaside Heights.

We doubt not that he found liberty in New Jersey not worth the price. At the zoo he had juicy cuts of beef and good clear water. The foraging did not yield filets mignon and the water probably tasted of Scotch. Maybe at Seaside Heights he had decided to expose himself. Perhaps he had gone there to gaze longingly across the sea with a picture in his mind's eye of his lush native jungles. After that deserted seaside cottages and a sandy wilderness which produced neither food nor playmates was unbearable. A stranger in a strange land, his fine coat losing its luster, his mind wearied by billboards and concrete pavements, he was in no mood to resist the bullet which killed him. His freedom was freedom in name only. It approximated the freedom of a silk worker in Paterson.

When Marion Talley, singer, and Gertrude Ederle, swimmer, collided as rival attractions at Des Moines the other night, 5000 people went to hear Marion sing while 700 were going to see Gertrude swim. That is about the relative importance of the two arts, and we congratulate Des Moines upon her critical discrimination. We did not know that country would have it.

COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENSE.

Dear Sir: So, according to some so-called "blase" New York editors (whose favorite food manifestly must be sour grapes) the unparalleled, stupendous reception the Cards received upon returning home from their Eastern triumphs was just an exhibition of provincialism and hickism! Now, ain't that nice? I suppose us berry pluckers here in St. Louis should feel elated because we were noticed by these world weary pooh-bahs of the press, even though they were merely criticising us. Being thoroughly metropolitan, we smart beneath the implication of hickism. We grasp the live thunderbolt, and hurl it back at our detractors. What did blase New York pull off when Gertrude Ederle came home? How did it carry on when little Marion Talley did her stuff in the opry house? How shamefully did it desecrate the remains of the late lamented Valentino! Oh, sure, we know what their retort will be. They'll crow back that in as much as but a small percentage of New York's citizenry was involved in these demonstrations (and mostly the common elements at that) it is unfair to include all in the same category. The same situation prevails out here in the cow country. There are thousands of St. Louisans who observed the recent wild goings-on with a pitying glance. The more conservative of the New York writers merely observe that they cannot understand what St. Louis has to rave over. For their benefit we enumerate our reasons for jubilation:

First: We ain't had a pennant for 38 years.

Second: Money enabled either one or the other, and sometimes both, New York teams to pull off a world's series every other year or so, and thus these events were commonplace in the big town.

Third: We've got the greatest, fightingest baseball team on earth.

Fourthly: St. Louisans are real people, who believe in relieving their pent-up emotions.

If the above reasons are not sufficient excuse for a wholesale outburst of enthusiasm, then New York indeed is to be pitied.

Telling the truth about our heroes is not, as the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs charges, disloyal. And when we get hold of a hero who was too good to be true, we discard him, as all our ideals must be practical.

KIND WORDS FROM ENEMY TERRITORY.

RED HEAD! RED HEAD!

We never have said anything against red heads, and we do not intend to. So far as we are concerned, brick tops can organize as much as they like; the flaming crests can nominate a presidential candidate, for all we care. In addition to all this, we dislike to say anything mean about the fair sex. But to save the Titian head from the consequences of their own folly, we protest against that folly. The President of the Order of the Golden Fleece, an organization of red headed students at William Woods College says that red hair represents character, vigor, self assertiveness and all that goes to make a real girl. That, ladies, shows an inferiority complex. You do not need fire in your eye to defend the fire in your thatch. Would you expose yourself to the raspberries because your hair is strawberry? Such language will start an argument. Some one will demand to know if a red headed woman can swim the channel. Others will protest that they have known red heads who lacked self assertiveness. "Could a red head strike out Lazerri in the seventh inning with the bases loaded?" some catty blonde will ask. Lists of famous women who were not red headed will be compiled. This list may include Cleopatra, Lydia Pinkham, Catherine the Great, Lady Godiva, and the first woman who had her hair bobbed. The connection between red hair and a prognathous jaw will be looked up, and your claims may be discredited. In the face of such dire possibilities, remember Polonius' advice to Laertes, who might have been a red head: "Give thy thoughts no tongue, * * * Beware of entrance to a quarrel."

RONDEAU.

A candid friend-to whom to go
With tales of joy or else of woe,
A friend to whom to open wide
My burdened heart, nor fear nor pride,
Nor secret shame to stop the flow:

If such a blessing fate bestow
On me, a debt to fate I owe:
No favor would I place beside
A candid friend.

And yet it was not always so
That I would soothe each bruising blow;
Ere yet the Volstead Act we tried,
Though filled with grief, I ne'er replied
On some fond breast; I'd have you know
A can did, friend.

FUNDAMENTALISM IN POLITICS.

From Prof. William B. Munro's Article in the October Atlantic.

THERE is more fundamentalism in political than in the religious thought the American people today, and it is a greater injury both to the cause of real progress and to the interests of the public order. Even the most casual observer of our political psychology must have noted that there are literally millions of Americans who decline to accept things on faith in the realm of religion, but who do not have the slightest compunction about following the catch-words, phrases, formulas and slogans that go to make up a creed in politics. * * * In the practice of American government this doctrine of human equality has done a lot of harm. By its implication it has afforded good soil for the growth of the spoils system and the practice of rotation in office, two of the most noxious weeds in the garden of American politics. * * * The consent of the governed is a myth; for the will of the majority, and the will of the majority is expressed by a plurality of those who take the trouble to vote. * * * Compasses for public opinion in perhaps a majority of cases, is simply the outcome of propaganda and counter-propaganda working upon the traditions, prejudices, ambitions or inertia of the people. I use the word "propaganda" in no disparaging sense. * * * Men and women inherit their party affiliations. They are creatures of the Memphis law. They are Republicans or Democrats because their fathers and grandfathers were. * * * The time has come to reexamine the validity of these maxims and postulates and axioms which are believed to embody the principles of democratic government. * * * What we most need is that the present generation shall make war on fundamentalism in politics, just as scholars of the present generation have assailed fundamentalism in religion.

NO PLACE FOR SMART ALECK.

From the Hartford City (Ind.) News.

IT IS not wholly a matter of education that sends the boy on his way to success, although education is a big help. The qualifications for success are wrapped up in the boy himself. Education does not make some, as is often heard. That boy will be ruined anyway. The boy who puts manhood and keeps his poise, always willing to learn something from his elders is on the right track. That boy will not only be courteous. The right-handed boy will listen attentively and learns to separate the chaff from the wheat in the matter of advice. The boys who have reached the highest rung of the ladder are still taking lessons, still learning something from others every day. They attained their exalted positions through civility and courtesy, taking advice from their superiors and faithfully carrying them out. The average young smart Aleck after he reaches maturity, either makes mistakes and turns about face, or he goes into dismal failure. He stops just where he is and can never hope to get ahead in any vocation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"The process of readjusting security prices to lower levels was continued in fairly active trading on the stock market today, with the result that fresh lows for the movement were reached in all parts of the list. Speculators for the decline dominated the situation, throwing large blocks of stock on the market when any of the favorable signs showed signs of rallying.

* * *

Decline Is Uniform.

"Under the impetus of continued liquidation the decline in stock prices was rather uniform in all groups, many of the industrial favorites establishing new low levels for the movement and some dropping to record lows for the year. In the absence of substantial support of any kind, operators for the decline were in complete control and made good progress in spite of scattered covering by speculators who were willing to remain out of the market over the week-end. Traders and commission house observers saw in the weekly commercial reviews indications of trade slackening and suggested the closing of long lines in industrial securities. Much attention was given to the view of Col. Leonard P. Ayres that October's business would serve as an indicator of future operations and that if little or no expansion takes place this month it may be assumed a slow reaction is at hand. In this connection, it was pointed out the commercial agencies found little evidence in the last week of the industrial activity that developed in August and continued last month.

* * *

Pressure Spreads to Rails.

"Pressure directed against industrials and specialties spread to rail shares, especially some of the southern carriers, as a reflection of renewed selling in the cotton market. Atlantic Coast Line was down, while Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Baltimore & Ohio and others lost ground. General Motors, U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Dupont and others fell to new low levels for the movement, while bottom prices for the year were recorded by Mack Trucks, Hudson, Jordan and other favorites.

* * *

"Stop-Loss Orders Uncovered.

"New setbacks uncovered 'stop-loss' orders, which added impetus to the reaction. Commission houses reported an increase in bearish sentiment. A mixed trend prevailed in the bond market, several convertible issues easing off with stocks.

* * *

Cotton Is Down.

"Increased hedge selling flooded the cotton market and brought declines of from $1 to $2 a bale. Offerings were increased by profit-taking sales on the part of traders who bought cotton on last week's break.

* * *

Exchange Irregular.

"Readjustments in the foreign exchange market were irregular, with trading was in small volume. Sterling lost a fraction and French francs eased off slightly, but lire continued to rally. Pesetas dropped back again. Chinese rates lacked support.

* * *

Clearing House Statement.

"Light on the credit situation was provided in the weekly statement of the Clearing House banks, which revealed a decline in the excess reserve and pointed to continuance of firm money rates. The surplus decreased $11,940,240, bringing the excess reserves to $24,-[illegible],990, against $37,932,330 a week ago. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $45,447,000."

Bond Market Review

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Bonds closed the week with prices firm and here and there fractional advances. Whether the buying was coming from investors who had disposed of stocks or whether it was coming from financial institutions, it was enough to hold quotations at the top of the movement.

The day's advances were only fractional, but large fluctuations are not the rule in bonds of this type. Among the issues in which gains were recorded were New York Central 5s at 103⅝, higher than at any time before this week; Wisconsin Central 4s, Baltimore & Ohio first 4s, West Shore 4s, Kansas City Terminal 4s and Norfolk & Western divisional 4s.

Among industrials, American Smelting and Refining 5s sold above 101 for the first time on the movement and Montana Power 5s at 101½, representing an advance of almost a point on the week. Humble Oil 5½s at 102 were almost at the high of the recent session.

NEW YORK CURB (COMPLETE)

LOWER PRICES MARK NEW YORK COTTON TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 24 to 36 points under continued southern selling which had developed here late yesterday and further realizing by recent buyers for a rally.

The selling was promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and the early weakness of the stock market, but after declining to 13.18 for December, and 13.33 for March, the market steadied on trade buying and covering. December sold up to 13.18 and March to 13.44 before the end of the first hour, the market at that time showing net losses of about 15 to 20 points.

Private cables said there had been some trade selling in Liverpool, but that prices had declined under hedge selling, with local and continental liquidation. The buying on the decline here may have been encouraged to some extent by reports of further showers in the Southwest.

The market weakened again in the forenoon under continued Wall Street and Southern selling. December declining to 12.92c and March to 13.25c in late trading. Closing prices were at the lowest of the day with the tone barely steady at net declines of 39 to 44 points.

ARGENTINE WEATHER IS WHEAT MARKET FACTOR

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—With reports at hand telling of unseasonable cold weather in Argentina, active buying of December and May deliveries advanced price sharply in wheat market today. Houses with Eastern connections led the purchasing movement. Little opposition was met, inasmuch as traders who were short became also free buyers when the market turned up grade.

Wheat closed firm 1c to 1¾c net higher; corn ¼c to ⅜c down; oats at a shade to ¼@⅜c advance and provisions varying from 20c decline to 5c gain.

Notice by wheat traders was taken today of an unofficial long range forecast indicating that a widespread storm was developing which portended snows in Canada and the Dakotas with rains across the corn belt in the coming week. According to this source, the frosts in Argentina pointed to an adverse spring and short summer.

Heavy country marketing of wheat in Canada was also a subject of attention. The aggregate yesterday was 4,350,000 bushels. Meanwhile, export demand for North American wheat today appeared to be limited and of an ordinary week-end sort.

Chicago Grain Carlots.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Carlot receipts: Wheat, 37; corn, 437; oats, 48; rye, 2; barley, 9.

SELLING MOVEMENT ON CURB EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The week closed with the selling movement still in progress on the Curb Exchange.

The very losses sustained as the result of the decline in prices during the past two weeks naturally necessitated liquidation of accounts which had become impaired, and this was what appeared to be in progress at the week-end.

One feature developed in the market for Dupont and Warner Brothers Pictures junior shares, both of which were active at declining prices. In the case of the former stock the offerings were nothing more than a reflection of the weakness of General Motors on the Stock Exchange. Because of the large holdings of the latter stock by Dupont the market was sympathetically effected.

Warner Brothers Pictures was taking its cue from the movement on the A shares on the big board which were under pressure.

QUESTIONNAIRE FOR GIRLS IN BUSINESS

Author Who Contends Married Woman Has Best Chance to Succeed Points Reason for Many Failures.

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL.

Women who succeed in business deserve and receive much gain and glory. But how about the women who fail? Of the thousands of girls who have just taken their first jobs in offices why will many be slow at finding advancement or even contentment in their chosen field?

It is not only women workers who are interested in these questions, it is the men for whom they work. Employers, for selfish reasons, would be glad to find more successes and fewer failures among their women employees. Here, for both groups, is a failure-detector. It is a questionnaire to be applied to the woman worker—by herself, if she wants to be honest with herself—and the answers should show whether success or failure lies ahead. The questionnaire is set forth by Miriam Simons Leuck in her new book, "Fields of Work for Women." How do you score, if you are a woman with a job? Ask yourself—

"Are you prone to say that you have done the things you only planned to do?

"Do you think that, having outlined the work, you can leave it for some one else, a vague subordinate, to execute, while you get the credit for organization?

WHAT IS TRIVIAL?

"Do you consider the typing of a letter without a mistake, either of mechanical perfection, spelling of English, a trivial matter?

"Do you think it is important that you know exactly the form with which your employer wishes his visitors met and their business discovered?

"Do you believe that your inability to add a column of figures correctly, finish your day's work on time, keep your desk and the office around it neat, and answer a question without frequent 'I think' or 'I guess' and similar inexactitudes is a matter of no importance?

"Do you look upon criticism of your work as a personal slight, or do you pout if you are not praised for doing the job you are paid to do?

"Are you 'just too sensitive to be talked to like that' and do you break down and cry if your employer remarks in stern accents that 'such sloppy typewriting won't do' or that 'this job must be finished before you go home tonight'?

"Do you fret because the girl at the next desk got a raise while you did not, and do you express your disgruntlement to the rest of the office force?

"Do you sympathize with insubordination?

"Do you think that it does not matter because you are consistently five minutes late, or have your desk closed and your eye on your hat five minutes before the end of the day?

"Do you think it silly for your employer to look cross when he finds you, after twenty minues, still far from the conclusion of a conversation which he interrupted to give you some work—and the work untouched?

"Do you entertain your friends in office hours either by telephone or in person, and then wax wrathy because your employer growls?

"Do you spend half of the time manicuring your nails, powdering your nose, combing your hair, yawning and going out for a drink of water?

"And then do you complain because 'no human being could do all the work that you're expected to do?'

"These are a few of the specific charges which employers bring against women in business," sums up Miss Leuck. "They are the reasons why other women must work at a lower wage, and work longer to gain an increase in salary or promotion. If you have spent a week in the business world you know that they are only true in part, but that that part is most dreadfully true."

Lack of a definite objective and lack of the dependability that comes through self-discipline are two other reasons for feminine failure—especially for the failure of the college woman—offered by the author of "Fields of Work for Women."

Another predestined failure, in her opinion, is "the woman who expects men to wait on her," opening and shutting windows, moving tables and carrying packages. Wisely, men feel that a creature too frail for such exertions is out of place in the stern competition of the business world.

"As long as women want equal pay and still expect special favors, they are playing a dishonest and two-sided game which gains them nothing but contempt from their men associates.

OFFICE POLITICS.

"Even more serious is the frequent and often sound accusation that women play at 'office politics' more than men do. Jealousy, carrying tales, personalities, cliquishness, are none too attractive feminine traits in any place, and because of their disruptive character in an office, utterly ruin the usefulness of any woman who practices them, regardless of her other virtues."

Still another indictment of the woman in business is her failure to stand promotion. To the new made woman executive Miss Leuck offers a little individual questionnaire:

"Do you feel the weight rather heavy on your shoulders?

"Is your nose a trifle higher, your manner toward those who didn't get on as well a little too sensitive of your new-found dignity?

"Then you are making it well nigh impossible for another woman to secure preferment in that particular establishment, and are paving the way for your own downfall."

The married woman, this writer argues, has a better chance of business success than the unmarried, once the married woman has overcome the prejudice against her working at all.

"In the first place," says Miss Leuck, "the sense of instability is gone. She is no longer a disturbing force among the men of the staff. They can treat her as an equal and give her honest credit for her work without being afraid that their praise will be misunderstood. Too, she cannot have been married very long without discovering that being too sensitive is a great waste of time and that half the remarks which she might have taken as slights were well meant advice to help her to success. In other words, if she has made a success of marriage she has learned that she is not nearly as important a person as she considered herself."

How to Meet Her Majesty Marie, Queen of Rumania

By ZOE BECKLEY.

(Zoe Beckley, as special correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is accompanying Her Majesty, Marie, Queen of Rumania, to America).

The impending arrival of Her Majesty, Marie, Queen of Rumania, in America is sure to be exciting considerable curiosity as to social etiquette employed toward royalty. Americans, not being accustomed to court usage, are often embarrassed—though they need not be—by not knowing "how to behave" before royalty.

When I went to Rumania in January, 1925, to see Queen Marie, I was told in advance of our meeting by members of the American diplomatic service that should I care to follow out certain small details of ceremony it might be a graceful thing on my part, but that on the other hand nothing whatever was necessary beyond the ordinary social courtesies followed anywhere in the world.

These were the customs usually observed in being presented to royalty: Wraps and gloves are removed so that in case the Queen shakes hands, palm meets uncovered palm.

You are not supposed to speak first. Wait until the royal person addresses you. (This makes it all the easier; you would hardly know what to say, anyhow.)

If the Queen holds out her hand, it is usually taken lightly and at the same time a curtsey made—a sort of little "duck," such as well-bred children make when presented to an older person. If you choose, you can kiss the hand. It is practically always done by Europeans. She would not expect it of Americans. Nor would she expect necessarily the curtsey. A bow is all that is really necessary.

The ice is thus quickly broken, and the Queen opens the conversation, usually saying some ordinary pleasantry, just as anyone else.

Form of Address.

A Queen is addressed as "Your Majesty." If you want to put it on a bit thicker, say "Your Gracious Majesty." Letters often come addressed to her so. In writing her I have always made the greeting read: "Dear Your Majesty," more in a spirit of whimsy than anything else. Once when she spoke of it, she said:

"You know, that is the way they did address royalty once upon a time."

"And I thought I was being so original!"

"No——" she breezed, "only old-fashioned!"

In addressing a letter to Her Majesty, the envelope need only bear: To Her Majesty Marie, Queen of Rumania. Or merely: Her Majesty Queen Marie. And the salutation would be simply Your Majesty. If you wrote "Dear Queen Marie" it wouldn't matter. As for closing the letter, any graceful ending suffices. Europeans make them elaborate; Americans would probably write: "With assurances of regard, I beg to remain——" or "I am, Your Majesty, very respectfully yours," or just "Yours very sincerely." However you feel.

In being presented (introduced) to the Queen, as I have said before, just bow and smile and say nothing at all. But if you said (as I did on the first occasion) "Oh—I am so delighted," she would never take it amiss. Even a Mainstreeter's "Pleased to meet you" would probably sound very jolly to her.

When we first met I tried to remember to say "Your Majesty" but usually forgot and used "you" instead, which did not in the least offend. But one can usually remember now and then to put in a "Your Majesty," and that is all that is necessary. The Queen makes every allowance for Americans not knowing these things.

When I had been in Rumania some weeks and came to know Her Majesty better, my greeting was often, "Good morning, beautiful lady," and she never seemed to mind.

The Princess Ileana is addressed as "Your Highness," as are all Princes and Princesses. The same custom of not speaking until you are spoken to holds good with her, the same bowing (if you wish), and the same general rule walking a little behind them if you are moving about together, and never turning your back in making exit. These two last are not observed in any conspicuous way—just sort of casually and naturally.

Making Introductions.

In making introductions, always present the arrival to the royalty "Your Majesty, may I present Mrs. Smith!" Never, "Mrs. Smith, this is Her Majesty, Queen Marie of Rumania."

When the Queen rises—at a musical, say, or reception—everyone else does, too. She enters a room last, after everyone else is assembled, and leaves it first. It is considered necessary to be at an audience 10 or 15 minutes before the appointed hour, to be certain of avoiding a wait, or even the suggestion of a wait, on the part of royalty. I remember once, when I had an appointment for luncheon at the palace, my automobile went wrong and I was delayed a few moments, getting there exactly at the hour named—1 o'clock. The ladies-in-waiting seemed very flustered.

"I'm not late, am I?" I asked.

"Well, not exactly—we feared you would be. It happens fortunately that Her Majesty is a few minutes detained." And while we were speaking, the Queen came smilingly in, bowing right and left, while everyone stood. When she was seated at table, the others followed, and the Queen at once started the conversation and kept the ball a-rolling skillfully.

Exceedingly Human.

At a musicale such as is often given at the town palace on the main street of Bucharest (the Royal Family live at Cotroceni, a sort of suburb), the Queen, Princess Ileana and the Princess Helene (wife of the former Crown Prince) entered the great room some time after the hundred or two guests were assembled. Everybody rose from the gilded chairs until the royal persons were seated in the front row, and when the concert was ended and the Queen rose, all the guests rushed to the side of the room making a lane down which her majesty walked, smoking her gold-tipped, crested cigarette and saying a pleasant word to this person and that.

When she had come all the way down the line, she paused beside me—standing as I was at the very end of the long crowd—and chatted, between puffs, of the weather, the feeling of tiredness she had as a result of a hard cold, and of the music we had just been listening to. Then the Queen and her party passed down the giant staircase, out the massive portal of the palace where the automobile was waiting, and the guests made a rush for the wardrobe room.

After all, royalty is exceedingly human, cordially appreciative of well-meant hospitality, and ready always to understand if we make little mistakes, and forgive them.

Method

By Lucy Lowell

METHOD—what a fine thing it is!

Systematizing the daily tasks—so much time for this, so much for that—today for something—tomorrow for something else. Method makes things so easy that they almost do themselves and given a chance, manages to get everything done.

No loose ends to worry, no I-can't-get-around-to-it troubles for the person who believes in method.

And yet it can be a slave-driver—tyrannical, senseless as all slave-drivers.

I'm thinking of a woman who uses method in her home.

Her house is a joy to behold—always just so, everything in its place, every scrap of work done up, nothing left over from today to bother tomorrow.

But the woman herself isn't so delightful. She never has anything to talk about, for one thing. The newest books, the latest movie, what the newspapers say—all Greek to her.

"A body that takes care of her house as it should be taken care of and keeps right to schedule can't waste time reading and gadding around the theaters," she explains.

She goes on: "What with the baking on Tuesday and the ironing on Wednesday I can't be running out to the movies. Get my work all in a muddle if I did!"

So her husband and her children go to the movies and leave her at home to finish the bread and the coffee cake and the pies and things. She could buy them at the bakery around the corner if she wished and everybody would be as well satisfied.

But no—it's been part of her method to do her own baking and she can't break away. Or at least she won't.

It's the same with the ironing. Laundries everywhere and sufficient means to pay for having her work done. But she's always taken care of the laundry herself—it was part of her method a long time ago when she was first married and there wasn't a great deal of money in the house—so she clings to habit.

The fact of the matter is that she is almost a stranger to her husband and children. She has few friends. They're likely to drop in at odd times and interfere with her work—upset her method.

What does she get out of life? Only the selfish joy of clinging to a habit, as far as I can see.

For that is what method may become if it isn't watched. Just a habit, unless it is taken out once in a while and made over to fit the changes that come into every life.

Laundering Pongee

PONGEE has a way all its own when it comes to the laundering. Just remember:

It should not be sprinkled or even slightly dampened.

It must be perfectly dry when ironed.

It should be ironed on the wrong side.

The iron used should be medium hot.

And then the laundered pongee will look like new.

The praises of others may be of use in teaching us not what we are but what we ought to be.—Harr

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE SOFT-BOILED HUSBAND.

MY Daughter, be not cast down if thine husband's heart be made of stone. For, a hard-boiled man turneth away from Beauty in distress and closeth his ears to the supplications of gold-diggers and grafters.

• • •

But a soft-hearted husband is like unto a blotter, whereon it is easy to make an impression. Yea, he is a sponge which can be wrung dry, by a simple twist of the wrist!

• • •

When an hard-hearted husband pecketh his wife upon the cheek, in the morning, she turneth to her household or her beauty creams with an easy mind; for she knoweth that his invulnerability will keep him in the strait and narrow way, until he returneth in the evening.

• • •

But, the wife of a tender-hearted man is filled with misgiving. She followeth him with her eyes until he turneth the corner, and with her mind all day. For she knoweth his susceptibility.

• • •

She feareth the beggar at the corner—and the vendor who will sell him stale, wired flowers.

• • •

She feareth the book-agent who will persuade him to sign upon the dotted line and the "promoter" who will sell him "gilt-edged stock."

• • •

She feareth the "old pal" who is down and out and needeth a "loan"—and the misunderstood lady, who yearneth only for the moneys to "get home on."

• • •

Alas, upon pay-day, her soul knoweth no peace, until her beloved hath reached home with his moneys intact and his arms empty of useless "gifts."

• • •

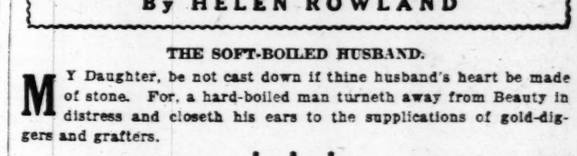

She feareth the "helpless widow" who cometh to him for "guidance" and the "appealing young thing" who beggeth him for "advice" in her troubles.

• • •

For, she knoweth that neither grafters, nor dissemblers, nor vamps, nor four-flushers, nor blondes can melt the GLACIER lodged within her husband's frozen breast!

Where Ceremony Ushers in the First Full Moon of the Year.

TIBET is an interesting and picturesque country. The leading religion of the Tibetans is Lamaism, and it is in Lhasa, the capital of Tibet and the chief city of the Lamas, or priests, that much of interest can be seen by the curious.

Lhasa is situated in a valley, near the Kyi River, and surrounded by high, barren mountains. To the unknowing eye, Lhasa would appear as the least interesting of all the cities and towns in Tibet, for there is but a very ordinary landscape surrounding it, and Tibet is noted for the grandness of its scenery. But, in the middle of the city, stands a huge palace, the Potala. This is the "Vatican" of the Lamas, for it is the home of the Dalai Lama, or Grand Lama (who corresponds to the Pope of the Catholics, and is a very important personage, indeed). It is an imposing picture, this giant edifice, with its red walls and golden roof against the blue sky.

The ceremonies that take place in Lhasa are extremely interesting, and not the least of these takes place the evening of the full moon of the first month. At this time at least 100 tormas, or large wooden structures, are erected along the streets. These structures form a shelter for numerous images of gods, men and animals, all carved out of butter dyed various colors. Before the tormas, altars are erected and butter-lamps swing over them.

When darkness falls, the Dalai Lama appears to inspect the tormas. Great crowds await him, and they are kept in order by policemen armed with long whips, who use them indiscriminately to keep the mob in order. At last he arrives. Surrounded by a troup of soldiers, and seated in a sedan-chair of yellow brocade, the Dalai Lama makes his rounds. And the sight is indeed a colorful one—the bright uniforms of the soldiers, the flags, the policemen, the yellow and red robes of the Lamas, and last but not least, the Dalai Lama himself. Firecrackers are set off and red and green lights cast a weird glow over the multitude. This goes on for almost the whole night, for after the high priest has retired, private processions pass, as people of rank, high ecclesiastics and so on also wish to view the sight.

The Dance Jacket.

THE short dance jacket, which has been recently introduced, promises to be popular. It is just the thing to slip on when one sits out the dance, and those displayed in the shops harmonize so beautifully with the modish evening gowns.

Made of metal brocades, in brilliant colorings or pastel shades, as well as in black and white, they are decidedly attractive.

A handsome model shading from a deep rose to a light pink has a wide gold band of exquisite embroidery and brocade covered buttons enhance its beauty.

SECRETS OF HEALTH AND SUCCESS

BY CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D.

FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

AMONG the most important of the recent advances in the treatment of tuberculosis is the work of Prof. A. Calmette, director of the Pasteur Institute in Paris.

He concludes that a light infection in infancy is not undesirable, since it gives the child sufficient resistance to protect him against later reinfections if they are not massive. On the other hand, it is impossible to vaccinate infected adults because this makes their condition much worse.

Although 90 per cent of the population suffer from tuberculosis during their lives in one form or another, as shown by careful post-mortem examinations of apparently normal people, confirmed by delicate pathological tests, yet the total death rate from this disease is now reduced to only about 1-1000.

This means that tuberculosis is one of the most curable of diseases, and that most of us have developed immunity.

When people come from the tropics, where tuberculosis hardly exists, to Europe, where it is relatively common, they rapidly succumb to it in large numbers, but those who live in Europe become immune through acquiring light infections in childhood and recovering from them.

Calmette discovered that if he grew a virulent tubercle bacillus culture in a certain medium in 13 years it lost the power of harming domestic animals.

Whereas in ordinary vaccination, however, the inoculated bacteria are rapidly destroyed, in tuberculosis vaccination they remain alive for several months without causing lesions, and while the bacillus remains in the body the subject is protected from infection.

One of Calmette's assistants found that inoculation, either under the skin or by the mouth, of a definite culture would not harm monkeys and protected them for at least a year, even though they lived in habitual contact with other monkeys suffering from open tuberculosis.

It is possible also to protect cattle by inoculating them immediately after birth, and, so far, no calf has ever suffered from harmful effects, although inoculated animals may give the tuberculin reaction. All, therefore, that is necessary to eradicate tuberculosis from heavily infected herds is to vaccinate the calves with what is called the B. C. G. culture during the first fortnight of their lives and to revaccinate them in a year's time.

The average of the statistics of six continental capitals shows that 20 per cent of deaths of children under a year old are from tuberculosis. Since 1922 in Paris alone about 5000 children have been given this B. C. G. culture by the mouth. Of these 1317 have been individually reported upon, the periods varying from six to 18 months. 564 of these had protection which would extend from a year to 18 months, and 753 were protected for six months to a year.

Of the 564 only two died of presumed tuberculosis, although 231 of them were reared in contact with tuberculosis parents or relatives.

Of the 753 only nine died of presumed tuberculosis. Therefore, out of 1,317 vaccinated children only 07 per cent had died of tuberculosis compared with the usual Parisian percentage of 20 per cent or more.

You will be co-operating with your local anti-tuberculosis league if you will clip this article and mail it either to the superintendent of that organization or to your health officer, or to some member of your health board.

An Unpleasant Relation

'Tis well, as you will sometimes find,
To be to some relations blind.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

HARDLY had Danny Meadow Mouse reached the shore by walking the rope from the motor boat when a sharp, squeaky voice demanded: "Who are you, and what are you doing here? What business had you on that rope?"

Danny discovered one of his own relations, a big brown fellow, Robber the Rat, as he is called. He looked so fierce, and he was so rough and dirty that Danny backed away hurriedly. "Excuse me, Cousin," said Danny, "if I have done something I shouldn't have done. I used that rope to get off that boat. It was the only way I could get off without swimming. Was there any harm in that?"

"What were you doing on that boat?" demanded Robber fiercely.

Danny told him the story. He told how he had been picked up in an old can. "Did you find anything to eat on that boat?" demanded Robber.

Danny admitted that he had found a few crumbs and had eaten them. "Those crumbs were mine," declared Robber. "I'm going out there now, and if you have eaten all the food on that boat I'll eat you when I get back."

Robber climbed up on that rope and lightly and easily ran out along it to the boat. Danny watched him. It was clear that Robber the Rat had done that often. Then Danny remembered the dreadful threat Robber had made. "He would do it, too," muttered Danny. "He would just as soon kill me and eat me as not, even if I am related to him. I guess I'll move along. I guess I don't want to be here when Robber gets back."

So Danny turned and raced off as fast as his little legs could take him. It was blind going, for of course he had no idea where to go. The only thing he could do was to run blindly and just keep going. By and by as Danny ran he came to a building. It was an old building, and it looked as if it might be a good place to hide. He dodged under it. Then he began to explore. There was a great deal of rubbish underneath that old building. Presently Danny heard a squeaky voice. He stopped and listened. But he didn't stop long. He turned and fled and his legs worked better and faster than they had for a long time. Out from under that old building he ran. He ran and ran, until he came to an old log that had a hole in it just big enough for a Meadow Mouse to get in. He was quite out of breath and very, very tired. Once inside that old log, he lay down and panted.

"That was Mrs. Robber," said he, talking to himself. "I must have found the home of my cousin, Robber the Rat. My, I don't see how people can live like that. No, sir, I don't. Such a dirty place as that was; I'm glad I'm away from there. I wouldn't trust that Robber long enough to switch my tail. Oh, dear, shall I ever get home? I wonder what Nanny is doing now. I wonder if she's thinking of me. I wonder if she misses me. I wonder if she ever went to look for me."

Danny spent the night in that old log. As soon as it was daylight he started out once more. It wasn't long before he came to a long stretch of meadow beside the Big River. It was almost like the Green Meadows at home. How good it did seem to get in the meadow grass once more. And right away, almost the very first thing, Danny discovered little paths in the grass. Then he knew there were other meadow mice there.

The Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis

ALIAS GEORGE.

I SEE the name of Pullman Porter, "George,"
Hereafter will be publicly displayed;
But that, however, will not raise his gorge,
As he will still insist on being paid;
For, "George," by any other name will be
As eager to receive his little fee.

You can summon him by any name you like,
It's absolutely all the same to "George";
You can call him Alexander, Bill or Mike,
He doesn't care as long as you disgorge.
So call him Jackson, Washington or Brown,
He'll dust you off and then he'll shake you down.

TOO TRUE.

The man on the sandbox, with all due respect to Volstead, Wheeler et al., says you could hardly blame anyone for going out and painting the old town red after that Cardinal victory.

SPELL IT WITH A "Z."

New York may be somewhat blase in regard to world series, but we will frankly say that we are not. On the contrary, the old town was in a blaze of excitement.

Then, too, New York, being composed largely of foreigners and citizens imported from the sticks, hasn't that civic pride in its ball teams that we of the West have in our ballplayers who wear St. Louis uniforms and live somewhere else.

"Case Against Three Scalpers Dismissed."

Sure, why not? Who cares a rap about scalpers now?

The ownership of an English setter is the subject of a lawsuit in St. Louis County. The dog answers to the name of "Bob" or "Link," which is not strange in a bird dog as he probably thinks it is "bobolink."

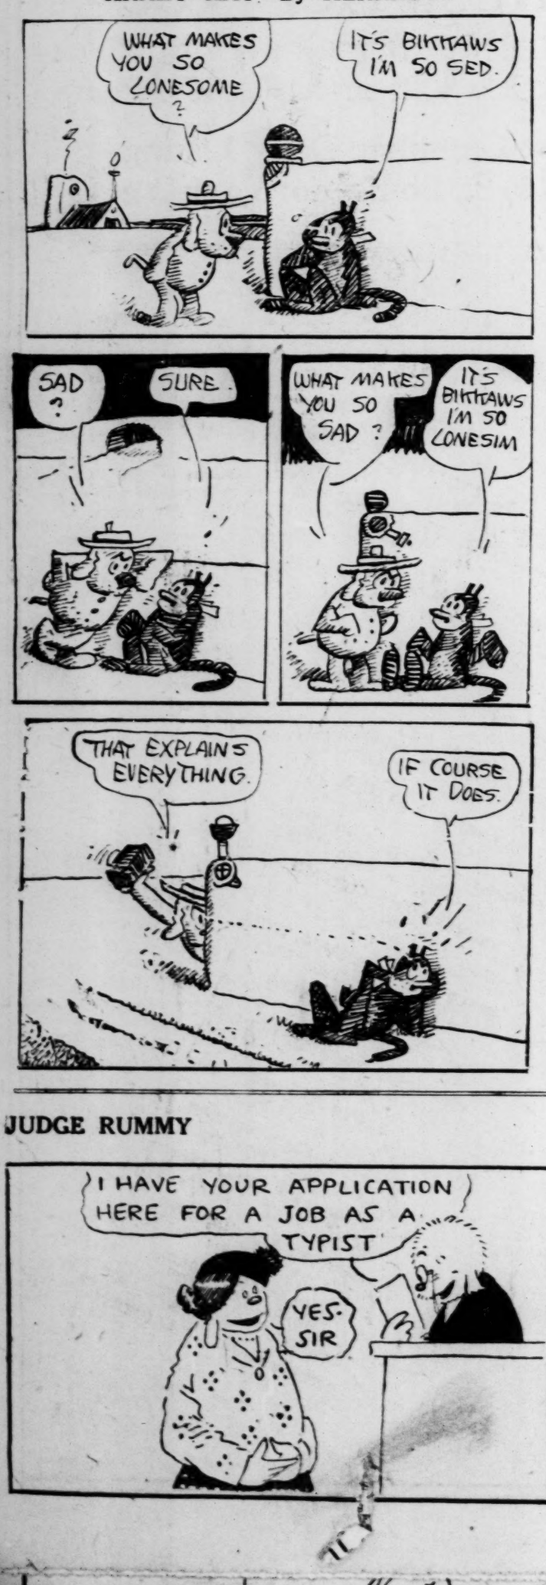

The name of Link suggests that he may be one of those hot dogs we read about. At any rate one of the claimants is positive that he has found the missing Link.

YES, SIR!

La Belle Otero, the European dancer, says she bared her soul in a book on her love affairs. All right, La Belle, there's no law against baring your soul, but appearing unadorned on a silver platter as the piece resistance at a dinner is crowding the limit a bit and flying in the face of pneumonia.

Charley Barrett, the justly famous Cardinal scout, was presented with a diamond studded watch at a testimonial dinner given in his honor. It never occurred to anyone that Charley would have appreciated an ivory-headed cane as symbolic of his prowess as a bushwhacker.
